If expansion referendum passes

Library may raze art center

Vote OK would meet library needs

Arlington Heights library officials say approval of Saturday's $2.25 million referendum will satisfy Arlington Heights' library needs for the next 10 years.

The referendum, if approved, would cost homeowners with a house assessed at $10,000 approximately $8 a year during the next 20 years.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said Wednesday he is optimistic about the outcome of the referendum because, he says, there has been only minimal public opposition.

AT STAKE IS a $2.2 million bond issue to expand the library building at 500 N. Dunton St. The proposed $1.6 million expansion will extend the building across Fremont Street onto land now used as a commuter parking lot.

A $50,000 remodeling of the existing building, $55,000 expansion of parking areas, and $265,000 for new library equipment also are part of the planned expenditures.

When the library last went to the voters in April, its proposal included a tax rate increase, an auditorium, the expansion program and $720,000 in bonds for new books.

All but the book purchases went down in defeat, but a legal technical-

The Countryside Art Center and another village-owned house will likely be demolished this spring if a referendum to expand the Arlington Heights Memorial Library is approved Saturday.

The two village-owned buildings at 414 N. Vail Ave. and 115 W. Fremont St. would become a parking lot to serve the library, which is kitty-corner from them.

The new parking lot will be needed because the expansion of the library would eliminate the parking lot now used by the library.

THE BUILDING at 115 W. Fremont St. provides offices for the Arlington Heights Youth Counseling Center, the Civil Defense and the United Fund. Countryside Art Center is located at 414 N. Vail Ave.

All four organizations will be moved to a small brick building next door at 408 N. Vail Ave. is the two buildings are demolished, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said.

The two buildings are in deplorable condition" now, and will eventually need to be razed even if the library expansion is not approved, Hanson said.

"It's not economically feasible to continue repairing the roofs and plumbing of the two buildings to keep them operating," he said.

THE COUNTRYSIDE Art Center, a non-profit organization, is housed in a three-story building, but since last fall has been allowed to use only the first level because the top two floors do not meet fire code regulations. The organization pays the village $125 a month to rent the building.

"We feel the rent is quite fair, but the building really is horrible. It's falling down around us," said Susan Mart, president of the art group.

She said she is not sure if the building at 408 N. Vail Ave. is large enough for all four organizations to use. She also questioned whether the rooms are "structurally" large enough for the art gallery.

The move of the art center will be

Landmark art, 'The Bather,' is 1 year old

One year later she sits in the pond, nude, serene, oblivious of the flurry of controversy that still surrounds her.

"The Bather," a concrete sculpture designed by the late Pablo Picasso, is a Roling Meadows landmark — like it or not.

Built in 1975 in the $30 million Gould Center at Golf Road and the Northwest Tollway, the sculpture of a nude woman bathing in a pool is in the center courtyard of the company's office-sports complex still under construction.

THE BATHER during its construction was and still is, probably the most talked-about woman to settle in the suburbs.

To some The Bather "is a touch of class," while others describe the statue as "that ugly, fat thing."

Inspirational, icky, art, neat or a waste of money? Take your pick. The words have all been used to describe The Bather.

While no one has termed the statue a raving beauty, The Bather has been noticed. In terms of her becomine a focal point of both the complex and city and attracting national attention, she has made it.

"I don't see her as a controversial piece," said Mayor Roland J. Meyer. "She is art.

Prosecution hits image of Patty as 'school girl'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst smoked marijuana and pressed fiance Steven Weed to give her LSD and mescaline which she took in the year before her kidnaping, a psychiatrist told her trial jury Wednesday.

Dr. Louis J. West, a defense witness, acknowledged under probing government cross examination that both the defendant and Weed told him about using the illegal hallucinatory drugs and marijuana while they were living together.

The questions by Assistant U.S. Atty. David Bancroft brought defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey to his feet shouting objections.

"Is the government saying that anyone who smokes grass is a bank robber?" Bailey asked.

Bancroft said he was not, but that he was trying to show that before her abduction she was not a "naive school girl" as he said the psychiatrist had tried to portray her at her trial on bank robbery charges.

West, head of the psychiatry department at UCLA and an expert on brainwashing of POWs, was followed to the stand by a colleague, Dr. Martin T. Orne of Philadelphia, a research psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania and an expert in hypnosis.

Dr. Orne was on the stand very briefly Wednesday and was to continue his testimony Thursday.

Orne said he had come to the concluson after interviewing her extensively that Miss Hearst was not "sim-

Shape up or else, Walker tells RTA

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday he will ask the Illinois Generl Assembly to "do something" about the Regional Transportation Authority if it does not improve this year. "I supported the RTA and still think it's a good idea," he told students at the College of Lake County in Grayslake. "But I am very disappointed in what has come out of it. "They have given disproportionate attention to just paying off the deficit of the Chicago Transit Authority." Walker said he also is disturbed that the RTA board has not worked out purchase-of-service agreements with most commuter railroads in the six-county Chicago area, and has done little to improve suburban bus service. "I'm willing to give them a little more time, but if they don't get on the ball and start moving, in the next session of the legislature, we've got to do something about it," he said.

Greyhound seeks stop in area

The Greyhound Bus Co. may have a passenger and package service location in Rolling Meadows by summer. The bus firm is negotiating with city officials to operate a bus stop and package delivery and pickup service at Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, Kirchoff Road and Meadows Drive. "A bus stop in the city would be good for residents and also industry, which often uses the package delivery and pickup service Greyhound provides," Jerry Metyk, owner of Meadows Drugs and president of the shopping center association which is supporting the move. A Greyhound official said the nearest Greyhound terminals to the Northwest suburban area are in Elgin and Northlake.

Teachers join bargaining unit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 teachers have voted to join a bargaining coalition of elementary school teachers in the North and Northwest suburbs, and other area teachers' unions are expected to join soon. The North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council, representing 1,300 teachers in 10 area school districts, was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for member unions and research the financial backgrounds of each school district. A Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers' union official says his union is expected to join the coalition within the next month and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 union leaders may consider joining later this year.

Oakton work on schedule

Construction plans for Oakton Community College's permanent campus are back on schedule, but college officials are still under orders to trim $1.7 million from its $12.7 million building budget. The Illinois Capital Development Board, which must approve all construction budgets for state schools and has ordered the budget cutback, told architects to continue designing the campus as planned. The architects have previously said they would not continue working on designs until the budget issue was resolved. College officials had feared that a delay in designing the campus would affect the scheduled fall 1978 opening.

Ford looks ahead to string of victories

From Herald news services

President Ford, who defeated Ronald Reagan by about 1,300 votes in the cliffhanger New Hampshire primary Wednesday, said his victory will propel him to a string of victories over Reagan and first ballot nomination at the GOP national convention.

Democrat Jimmy Carter, meanwhile, bouyed by an unexpectedly solid win over four liberal Democrats said he doesn't have "any fear" of the other candidates and predicted a first ballot victory at the Democratic convention.

With virtually all ballots counted, Ford had 54,824 votes, or 51 per cent; Reagan 53,507, or 49 per cent. Ford also won 17 of the 21 delegates to the GOP national convention.

In the Democratic race, with the vote also nearly complete, Carter polled 22,895 votes (30 per cent); Rep. Morris Udall, 18,594 (24 per cent); Sen. Birch Bayh, 12,557 (16 per cent); former Sen. Fred Harris, 8,824 (11 per cent); Sargent Shriver, 6,649 (9 per cent). Carter won 13 convention delegates and Udall the other 4.

Ronald Reagan

Campaigning in Illinois, Reagan said he "couldn't be more pleased" with his showing but it would be "very difficult" to win in Illinois in three weeks.

Reagan told reporters "It's an extremely uphill fight here. We know that the state organization has been well put together in regard to the President. We'll take our own case to the grassroots and see at least how much of the vote we can get."

He said it will be "an accomplishment" if he gets 40 per cent of the Illinois vote.

In Washington, Ford scoffed at Reagan for finding satisfaction with second place.

"I never knew of a political campaign where finishing second was any good," he said.

In reaction from Illinois, meantime, there is no indications that Carter, despite his victory, will have support from Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization in the March 16 presidential popularity contest.

Carter, Shriver, Harris and Alabama Gov. George Wallace are the only Democrats entered in the Illinois primary, and so far the Daley organization hasn't come out for anyone.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, Daley's choice for secretary of state, called Carter "a favorite in a field of non-favorites," and said he thinks it is unlikely the Daley organization would support him in the state's primary or on the first ballot at the convention.

Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, Daley's choice for governor, said Carter's showing "will make him a better candidate in Illinois," but declined to predict organization backing.

Meantime, Morris Udall, who finished second in the primary, said he must lead the liberal pack in the Massachusetts primary or his candidacy is "in real trouble."

Udall said the big difference between the Massachusetts and New Hampshire primaries is "we are playing with a full deck. All the candidates are in the race."

Udall said if all the candidates, including Wallace and Sen. Henry Jackson had run in the New Hampshire primary, he would have won.

Reacting to the primary, Senate GOP leader Robert Griffin said if Ford captures the Florida primary, Reagan "will be out of the race."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee said Udall "clearly won" the battle among "more progressive" candidates bidding for the nomination. He said: "If we are heading toward a race between Udall and Carter, Udall is clearly the better man — in his record, his consistency of principle, and his vision of the country."

Senate votes daylight time extension

The Senate voted Wednesday to put the nation on daylight saving time for seven months a year instead of six, accepting arguments this would save energy and reduce traffic accidents and street crime. The legislation passed 70 to 23 and was sent to the House — which appears unlikely to act on it before the implementation date. As finally approved, the bill calls for starting daylight time on March 14 and terminating it in mid-October. Daylight saving time now runs from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

Schorr, of leak fame, cites 'pendulum'

Suspended CBS reporter Daniel Schorr, under congressional investigation for releasing a secret House intelligence report, said Wednesday he was hit by a "pendulum" swinging from public interest in spy agencies to concern about security. Schorr told a news conference he did the right thing in making the House intelligence committee report available for newspaper publication, but disclosed no details of where he got it or how he channeled it to the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper. "There have always been in our country two great urges — one towards security, one towards liberty," he said. "The pendulum constantly swings between them . . ."

Union farm workers get boost from court

The Supreme Court Wednesday gave a boost to unionized California farm workers who are trying to keep cheap Mexican labor out of the state's vineyards and lettuce fields. In an 8-0 decision, the court held that a California law punishing those who knowingly employe illegal aliens does not necessarily impinge on Congress' control over immigration, under either statutes or the Constitution. Nevertheless the court sent the case back to the 2nd District California Court of Appeals, which had ruled the statute unconstitutional on its face, for closer examination as to whether it conflicts with federal law.

Country can't export revolution: Castro

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro declared Wednesday it was impossible for his country or any country to "export" revolution through war but warned no one can prevent a nation from having a revolution. Castro spoke before 5,000 applauding delegates at the 25th Communist party congress in the Kremlin in an apparent reply to a warning from U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Cuba against armed intervention. "No one can export revolution or impose revolution by means of war," the bearded Cuban leader said.

Civilian role pact delayed in Portugal

Last-minute complaints by political parties to the Portugal military's refusal to give up certain decision making powers Wednesday delayed the formal signing of an agreement giving civilians a bigger role in government. The centrist Popular Democrats and the conservatives in the Center Democratic Social party refused to sign the pact. The Socialists voiced objections. The crux of the controversy was a new preamble to the agreement under which the military would retain decision making powers they had earlier agreed to surrender to elected officials.

Palestinians free 2 kidnaped Americans

Palestinian guerrillas Wednesday night freed two kidnaped American diplomats after four months of captivity and the U.S. embassy said they were in good health. Charles Gallagher, 44, and William Dykes Jr., 55, both officials of the United States Information Agency, were released shortly after 7 p.m. at the home of Lebanese Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt. A U.S. embassy spokesman said Gallagher and Dykes would be flown to the United States "almost immediately."

Police fire on Spanish strikers, I killed

Police fired into a crowd of strikers in the southeastern town of Elda, Spain during a demonstration, killing one person in the first fatality of a wave of post-Franco strikes and street protests, the government announced Wednesday. A statement issued by governor of Alicante province said police were forced to fire into a crowd of protesters after shots were allegedly fired from their direction. The governor said the death of 20-year-old office clerk Teofilo del Valle Perez was the culmination to a series of street protests in the traditionally leftist region.

Nixon told China wants to improve U.S. relations

PEKING (UPI) — Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng toasted the health of President Ford for the first time Wednesday and told former President Richard M. Nixon that China wanted to "further the improvement of Sino-U.S. relations."

Nixon, in a farewell toast to his Chinese hosts, said the United States and China must work together in "building a new world . . . building a bridge of understanding that reached from the Golden Gate of California to the Golden Gate of Heavenly Peace in Peking."

Nixon, the first private individual allowed the use of the Great Hall of People, threw a party there for his hosts on his last night in Peking and said the bridge he started building with his first visit to China four years ago was still not completed.

"We have begun to build a great bridge," Nixon said. "And as we build that bridge we will remember that it will be a bridge of understanding, a bridge of future respect and a bridge of lasting friendship between two great people — the Chinese people and the great American people."

Hua and Nixon held talks totaling more than 10 hours during the former president's stay in Peking. Very few visitors to China, no matter what their ranks, ever spend as much time talking with top Chinese leaders.

Nixon and his party next go to Kweilin, a scenic city 1,100 miles southeast of Peking in Kwangsi Province on the second leg of his three-city, eight-day visit to China.

In related developments:

- Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., charged Nixon was "violating the law" by discussing foreign policy in China and if the former president wanted to do the United States a favor "he might stay over there."

Goldwater said ". . . The Logan Act says no one but the President and the secretary of state can discuss foreign policy . . . and he made a tremendous mistake in doing what he did at the time he did it."

- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Nixon will be questioned on his return about his talks with Chinese leaders. Kissinger said the administration is always interested in what Chinese leaders say, although he would have "chosen a different forum."

FORMER U.S. President Richard Nixon toasts farewell to Peking with acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng at banquet Wednesday hosted by Nixon in the Great Hall of the People. Nixon next visits Kweilin and Canton before returning to the U.S. on Sunday.

ulating" her story of taking part in the Hibernia bank robbery out of dread terror of her SLA captives.

"She didn't lie," he said.

That statement in turn brought a hail of objections from the prosecution and an admonition from the judge to the jury that it was up to them to decide whether the 22-year-old heiress had told the truth on the witness stand.

"No psychiatrist, no judge, no lawyer or anyone else can invade your province of deciding that," he said.

Orne amended his statement to say that he didn't mean to state flatly that she did not lie. He said he meant that when he asked questions intended to sway her into answers that would have been favorable to her defense she did not take the opportunity to do so.

"Much to my surprise, she wouldn't pick up on the clues," he said.

Earlier, West had a sharp retort to Bancroft's suggestion that smoking marijuana and taking drugs proved that she was not as naive as the psychiatrist had suggested.

West said he had testified that she was naive in a political sense.

"Mr. Bancroft, if you would like to debate the matter of high school and even junior high school students who enter into experiments with hallucinogenic drugs, I would be glad to discuss it with you," West said sarcastically.

The doctor said Weed was conducting an experiment with marijuana and "growing grass on the back porch," and that he introduced Miss Hearst "to the substance and she smoked it on several occasions."

West said Miss Hearst also told him she took LSD and mescaline.

"Wasn't it she who was consistently after LSD instead of the other way around?" Bancroft asked.

The psychiatrist said Weed told him that Miss Hearst wanted to try it out and he finally gave her some.

Under further questioning, West said that Weed told him that Miss Hearst's "capacity for sarcasm is unparalleled."

Bailey again objected.

"She is not on trial for sarcasm," he said.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter overruled the objection.

Bancroft also brought out from West that Miss Hearst "almost got kicked out of the Sacred Heart Academy for telling a nun to go to hell." She also was described by some of her teachers as "detached, disdainful and self centered."

Weed also told the psychiatrist that Miss Hearst was "scathing about her parents," but that he believed she really loved them, particularly her father. He said she felt she could not meet her mother's high standards.

Weed said she told him she was going to change her name because "being a Hearst was so hard."

Bancroft then posed a lengthy question about Miss Hearst's apparent transformation in character after her kidnaping by the SLA in which she joined a bank robbery, shot up a store and made tapes spouting revolutionary slogans and disowning her parents and the establishment.

The lawyer asked if such behavior could not be in part the result of having been a sarcastic young woman who had negative feelings about her parents, felt depressed and trapped in her way of life and then had the opportunity to express her hostilities.

West said he did not believe that had in any way been the case with Miss Hearst.

Near midair crash is linked to controllers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safety investigators Wednesday blamed lax performance by two Federal Aviation Administration radar controllers for the near midair collision of two high-flying jumbo jets last November near Carleton, Mich.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the two planes, carrying a total of 306 persons, came within 100 feet or less of each other at a combined speed of 978 miles per hour. It indicated little more than pure luck kept the planes from ramming together.

One of the controllers noticed at the last minute that the American Airlines DC10 and the Trans World Airlines L1011 were three or four miles apart on a collision course and ordered the American pilot to descend immediately, the board said.

A total 24 persons aboard the craft were injured, three seriously, when the sudden evasive maneuver hurled flight attendants serving dinner and one passenger adjusting her seatbelt to the cabin ceiling and then to the floor.

The safety board said that incident was but one of 21 reported near midair collisions and 278 air traffic control system failures recorded by the FAA during the first 11 months of 1975.

It urged the FAA to have all traffic controllers study the report of the Michigan incident, warning: "The circumstances of this accident indicate that automation technology can lead to complacency when it takes the controller 'out of the loop' by reducing the need for his interaction with a flight crew and deemphasizing the cooperative aspects of the air traffic control system."

The board said the planes were so close the second controller, looking at his radar screen, "saw the targets merge and then separate."

The American pilot, who saw the TWA craft just as the controller ordered him to dive to avoid it, estimated the two planes were 100 feet apart.

The 11 crewmembers aboard the TWA plane, Flight 37 carrying 103 passengers from Philadelphia to Los Angeles, were not told of their close brush with disaster until they reached their destination.

The American craft, Flight 182 bound with 179 passengers and 13 crewmembers from Chicago to Newark, N.J., made an emergency landing at Detroit so the injured could be taken to a hospital.

Near midair crash is linked to controllers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safety investigators Wednesday blamed lax performance by two Federal Aviation Administration radar controllers for the near midair collision of two high-flying jumbo jets last November near Carleton, Mich.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the two planes, carrying a total of 306 persons, came within 100 feet or less of each other at a combined speed of 978 miles per hour. It indicated little more than pure luck kept the planes from ramming together.

One of the controllers noticed at the last minute that the American Airlines DC10 and the Trans World Airlines L1011 were three or four miles apart on a collision course and ordered the American pilot to descend immediately, the board said.

A total 24 persons aboard the craft were injured, three seriously, when the sudden evasive maneuver hurled flight attendants serving dinner and one passenger adjusting her seatbelt to the cabin ceiling and then to the floor.

The safety board said that incident was but one of 21 reported near midair collisions and 278 air traffic control system failures recorded by the FAA during the first 11 months of 1975.

It urged the FAA to have all traffic controllers study the report of the Michigan incident, warning: "The circumstances of this accident indicate that automation technology can lead to complacency when it takes the controller 'out of the loop' by reducing the need for his interaction with a flight crew and deemphasizing the cooperative aspects of the air traffic control system."

The board said the planes were so close the second controller, looking at his radar screen, "saw the targets merge and then separate."

The American pilot, who saw the TWA craft just as the controller orderd him to dive to avoid it, estimated the two planes were 100 feet apart.

The 11 crewmembers aboard the TWA plane, Flight 37 carrying 103 passengers from Philadelphia to Los Angeles, were not told of their close brush with disaster until they reached their destination.

The American craft, Flight 182 bound with 179 passengers and 13 crewmembers from Chicago to Newark, N.J., made an emergency landing at Detroit so the injured could be taken to a hospital.

ity prevents the board from buying the approved books until there is space for them.

Beside the multi-faceted library proposal on last year's ballot, there also was a hotly-contested village board and presidency race, and a park board election.

WITHOUT THE PARK or village elections and elimination of the tax hike and auditorium, library officials think they have a winning proposition.

Dempsey said telephone surveys of residents is getting "a really good response."

He said a proreferendum group is finding "overwhelming positive response" this time around.

Frisbie said he has taken a slide show, "To Thine Own Shelf Be True," to community organizations and civic clubs throughout the village.

"Where the last time we had time for just a show before a half-dozen candidates took over, now we are getting 5 to 10 minutes to answer questions that come up," Frisbie said.

"We haven't found really anybody who's against it. There are always some individuals, but we've followed up those negative feelings with a letter," he said.

"We aren't finding opposition. If we need space for books, we need space for books. We can't stack them up in the parking lot," Frisbie said.

its third in five years.

"Our members are getting a little tired of moving from location to location; we are looking for another place to go. If the village can't find a suitable location for us, we may leave the area," Mrs. Mart said.

THE ART CENTER always has been in Arlington Heights because about half of the members live in the village, she said.

One possibility that will be explored if the library is expanded is the renting of space in the library, said Jackie Rapp, a member of the art center.

There will not be "a big rush" to relocate the art center, Civil Defense, United Fund and the counseling center if the library referendum is approved, Frank Charlton, assistant village manager, said. "It will depend on the problems of moving the tenants," he said.

Board races in Dist. 21, 25 to offer competition

The race for school board positions in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will be contested this year.

Wednesday was the first day for filing nominating petitions for school board candidates. Petitions may be filed until March 19. Elections will be April 10.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, four candidates have filed for three 3-year terms on the board.

INCUMBENTS Edith Jolly, 1310 N. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, and Donald Gibbons, 33, of 507 W. Cedar St., Arlington Heights, filed petitions Wednesday along with newcomer Sharon Wanner, 41, of 404 Larkdale Ln., Mount Prospect. All three have been endorsed by the Dist. 25 Nominating Committee.

Douglas Chidley, 29, of 211 N. Lincoln Ln., Arlington Heights, also filed Wednesday. He was not endorsed by the committee.

James Foster, 37, of 1416 N. Walnut, Arlington Heights, has a nominating petition but has not filed his candidacy. Foster also sought committee endorsement but was defeated.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board race began Wednesday with five candidates filing petitions for three seats.

INCUMBENTS Barbara Farr, Steven Greenberg and Kenneth Rodeck will seek reelection to three-year terms on the board. Joining the race as of Wednesday are newcomers Barbara Floyd and Linda Sprechman.

Mrs. Farr, 48, of 60 E. Jeffery Ave., Wheeling, has served on the board six months since her appointment to the vacancy created by Edwin Smith's resignation. She has been endorsed by the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

Greenberg, 35, of 3138 Wilshire Ln., Arlington Heights, and Rodeck, 36, of 1117 Sarasota Dr., Wheeling, are both seeking second terms. Greenberg did not receive caucus endorsement, while Rodeck, the current board president, did not request endorsement.

Mrs Floyd, 36, of 923 Greenridge Rd., Buffalo Grove and Mrs. Sprechman, 30, of 318 Hackberry Ln., Arlington Heights, did not receive caucus endorsement and will run as independents.

Two candidates who received caucus endorsement, Elaine Bond and Fred Harms, had not filed.

ONE CANDIDATE filed Wednesday for the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Gayatri P. Tewari, 925 Spruance Pl., Des Plaines, filed a nominating petition for one of the three 3-year terms on the board. Tewari is a member of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district study committee.

Elk Grove Village resident Marilyn M. Quinn has picked up a nominating petition but has not filed. Petitions also have been sent to the three members of the board who are up for reelection. Donald Hoeck, 611 W. Berkley, Arlington Heights, John M. Costello, 301 N. Dale, Mount Prospect, and Warren C. Schabinger, 1812 Laurel Dr., Mount Prospect. They have not yet filed nominating petitions.

Two candidates filed petitions Wednesday for the school board race in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Incumbents Judith Zanca, 81 Roxbury Ln., Des Plaines, and Emil E. Bahn maier, 1822 Pheasant Tr., Mount Prospect, will seek reelection to three-year terms. Mrs. Zanca, current board president, will run for a third 3-year term, and Bahnmaier will seek his second term.

THREE SEATS on the school board will be on the ballot. Two other petitions for candidacy were picked up but have not been returned.

In Prospect Heights Dist. 23, where two 3-year terms are open, incumbent Sallyann Okuno, 35, of 2 Garden Ct., Prospect Heights, filed Wednesday for a second term on the board.

Supt. Edward Grodsky said a petition has also been taken out by incumbent Alan Krinsky, 38, of 2027 Rosehill, Arlington Heights, but has not been filed Krinsky recently said he was undecided whether to run for a third board term.

Shirley Munson, Harper College board president, filed the only petition for candidacy for the college board Wednesday.

Mrs. Munson, 46, of 639 N. Benton St., Palatine, will seek a second term.

TWO 3-YEAR TERMS will be available in the April election. Incumbent Trustee Jessalyn Nicklas, 60, of 450 N. Ayrshire Ln., Inverness, has not filed for reelection.

One other petition has been picked up but has not been returned.

School board candidates must be at least 18, residents of their district for one year and registered voters.

Meets with suburb committeemen

'Suburbs, city 1 unit,' says Daley

by WANDALYN RICE

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley continued wooing the suburbs Wednesday at a meeting in Chicago of township committmen and precinct captains from the 30 suburban townships.

The meeting, the last in a series held for regular Democratic Organization precinct workers in preparation for the March 16 primary, featured appearances by party-endorsed candidates ranging from Secretary of State Michael Howlett to candidates for the Metropolitan Sanitary District board.

During the speechmaking, Daley referred to his campaign trip last weekend to north suburban Kenilworth: "I was out in the suburbs last week, and I really enjoyed it," Daley said to the cheers of the suburban Democrats.

DALEY SAID, "We know that the suburbs and the city are one unit — we realize you don't have a suburb until you have a city. We're one in the Democratic Party and I'm thankful for you people in the suburbs because you are organized as a party."

Daley also defended the party organization, saying independent Democratic candidates such as those running with Gov. Daniel Walker, "can't be independents and be a member of our party. You have to be a Democrat."

He said critics charge the party engages in patronage, but "I don't talk about patronage. I call it friendship. What's wrong with doing a favor for a man or a woman? People criticize us because we help people."

The party's candidates confined most of their speeches to attacks on Walker and Walker candidates.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, who is running for secretary of state, attacked the "scurrilous things" and "vituperative epithets" used by Walker candidates. The attacks, he said, are an effort to divert attention from Walker's record as governor.

DIXON SAID, "Any man who's been governor of one of the biggest states of the union for four years and doesn't have the guts to run on his record and nothing else, doesn't have the right to be dogcatcher of the smallest hamlet in Illinois."

Dixon also defended Howlett for holding a $15,000 a year consulting job with Sun Steel Co. while a state official. "Mike Howlett is a decent citizen who has worked hard all his life. He has educated his family. There is nothing wrong with honorably earning a salary," Dixon said.

Michael Bakalis, candidate for comptroller, said the Walker administration is "amoral" and attacked Walker's deputy governor and campaign manager Victor DeGrazia.

"When I was a child I used to enjoy Edgar Bergan and Charlie McCarthy (a radio and television ventriloquist act)," Bakalis said. "With Edgar Bergan and Charlie McCarthy, I could always tell who the ventriloquist was and who was the dummy. I can't tell with Dan Walker and Vic DeGrazia."

Dem women's club in township?

Jane Byrne, Cook County Democratic committeewoman, wants to start a Democratic women's club in Elk Grove Township, William Rose, Elk Grove Township committeeman, said Wednesday.

Rose, who talked to Mrs. Byrne before a meeting for suburban Democratic workers held by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, said she does not plan to set up an organization to rival the present township party organization he heads.

Mrs. Byrne was quoted earlier this week as saying Elk Grove Township was one of the townships where she wants to set up a Democratic club. There are similar clubs in Palatine and New Trier townships where the township's regular committeemen have shown independence of the county organization.

The clubs in Palatine and New Trier both act as rival organizations to the regular township party groups. The New Trier Township club, which had its headquarters dedicated by Daley last weekend, began as a women's club organized by Mrs. Byrne.

Before talking to Mrs. Byrne Wednesday, Rose said he was concerned that a rival club might be set up in the township. "I think the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization has done a creditable job. I see no need for other groups," he said.

The organization has no separate women's organization because Rose has said he thinks women should be active in regular party affairs.

2 area teacher unions join talks unit; others on way

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two Northwest suburban teachers' unions have voted to join a bargaining coalition of elementary school teachers from the North and Northwest suburban area and other local unions are planning to join soon.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 teachers voted to join the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council, which represents about 1,300 teachers from 10 school districts in neighboring suburbs. The bargaining council, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assn., was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research the financial backgrounds of school districts.

Ed Searing, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 union president, said he expects his union to vote on joining the coalition within the next month. James Modec, Arlington Heights Dist. 25 union president, said his teachers might consider joining later this year.

OTHER TEACHERS' unions in the area also have discussed asking their members to join the group but do not have definite plans.

Toni Kane, Dist. 59 union official, said, "We voted overwhelmingly last week to join NSUBC. We saw the group was effective in bargaining last year and decided to join."

Camille Oldenburg, Dist. 57 union president, said the teachers decided to join the coalition because "we have similar communities and goals as the other members. The biggest thing right now is sharing information and research for negotiations purposes."

Last year the bargaining coalition set negotiation goals that included pay equal to high school teachers' and guidelines for cutting tenured teaching staffs.

The coalition also confronted the Cook County assessor's office with figures showing 18 commercial sites in the North and Northwest suburban area are being underassessed by $50.29 million, costing school districts more than $4 million in lost taxes.

Included in the properties charged as underassessed were Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, $5.87 million, and Golf Mill Shopping Center, Niles, $4.27 million.

2 unhurt in crash of plane in Colorado

An Arlington Heights coupled escaped injury when their light plane crashed while landing at an airport in Breckenridge, Colo., shortly before noon Wednesday.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 teachers voted to join the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council, which represents about 1,300 teachers from 10 school districts in neighboring suburbs. The bargaining council, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assn., was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research the financial backgrounds of school districts.

Ed Searing, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 union president, said he expects his union to vote on joining the coalition within the next month. James Modec, Arlington Heights Dist. 25 union president, said his teachers might consider joining later this year.

OTHER TEACHERS' unions in the area also have discussed asking their members to join the group but do not have definite plans.

Toni Kane, Dist. 59 union official, said, "We voted overwhelmingly last week to join NSUBC. We saw the group was effective in bargaining last year and decided to join."

Camille Oldenburg, Dist. 57 union president, said the teachers decided to join the coalition because "we have similar communities and goals as the other members. The biggest thing right now is sharing information and research for negotiations purposes."

Last year the bargaining coalition set negotiation goals that included pay equal to high school teachers' and guidelines for cutting tenured teaching staffs.

The coalition also confronted the Cook County assessor's office with figures showing 18 commercial sites in the North and Northwest suburban area are being underassessed by $50.29 million, costing school districts more than $4 million in lost taxes.

Included in the properties charged as underassessed were Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, $5.87 million, and Golf Mill Shopping Center, Niles, $4.27 million.

Debts the logical deficit solution? Don't bet on it

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

Roger Bardwell is a man who strongly believes in borrowing money to operate a school district.

And his deficit financing beliefs have brought no end of criticism from the press, the people and his peers.

Bardwell is superintendent of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, a school district that has been borrowing money to meet its budget for about 14 years.

The district is projecting a $500,000 to $2.3 million deficit in the 1976-77 school year if current programs are maintained. The figure is variable because it depends on inflation, teacher salary increases and the amount of money the district will receive in state aid.

The Dist. 59 board earlier this year decided to give a balanced budget a whirl and is studying what type of impact it would have on programs and staff.

THIS WEEK, board members sat through several hours of grim financial projections that point to multimillion dollar deficits down the road.

Bardwell admits the district is "not in as good shape as our neighbors," but defends operating at a deficit — a practice the neighbors are trying to avoid.

He pointed out this week that other districts have managed to save money during the years and built up a surplus of cash that they now are dipping into to prevent deficit spending.

"They can use their savings accounts to buy some time, but when you borrow from a cash surplus you can only do it once," he said.

Borrowing from the surplus "builds up on you so quickly" that before you know it you're in a deficit, he said. He added that while these other frugal districts are stashing the cash they are taking more money than they need to from the taxpayer — and taxpayers have a more immediate need for money than school districts.

ON THE OTHER hand, Dist. 59 doesn't have to worry about going into a deficit because it is already there. "We've got all of our cards on the table," Bardwell said. "We have nothing to back into, nothing to bank on. We know how much we can borrow and it's there every year."

What Bardwell seems to miss with his logic is that all of these districts with dwindling cash surpluses are taking steps now to prevent deficits. Practically without exception, Northwest suburban districts are mapping out long-range plans, finding ways to pare down their budgets, cutting staff, examining programs and making sure future ends meet.

Bardwell is absolutely right when he says that school districts can borrow money more cheaply than your average taxpayer. But for every dollar a school district borrows it must pay interest — and that means taxpayers dollars going to banks rather than educational programs.

Eventually, borrowing catches up with you. Dist. 59 resorted to borrowing $1.75 million in teachers orders this year to bring enough money into the district to keep it going for a year. Teachers were paid in script earlier this year and the district sold bonds to put real money behind the script.

Who is paying for the bonds? The taxpayer. Dist. 59 tax bills will automatically go up during the next four years to pay back the debt. And residents never approved this tax increase in a referendum.

There may be outstanding reasons to borrow money to operate a school district. But I haven't heard one yet.

Reform of workers' benefit bill urged

Reform of Illinois' workmen's compensation legislation is needed "if great damage to the state's economy is to be avoided," said an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce spokesman Wednesday.

Leonard Day, labor relations manager for the organization, testified at a Springfield hearing of the Illinois Insurance Laws Study Commission. The 1975 compensation law is a "bad scene" for business in the state, he said.

"The detrimental effects of S.B. 234 and 235 on the Illinois business community are, after eight months, even worse, even more costly than we'd feared," Day said. "Establishing benefit levels far beyond the National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws recommended maximums; drastically easing eligibility requirements; introducing many employer roadblocks to fair, effective administration; imposing a host of pen alties on those who pay for the entire program — all this is heading the state's W. C. law toward total disaster."

Debts the logical deficit solution? Don't bet on it

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

Roger Bardwell is a man who strongly believes in borrowing money to operate a school district.

And his deficit financing beliefs have brought no end of criticism from the press, the people and his peers.

Bardwell is superintendent of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, a school district that has been borrowing money to meet its budget for about 14 years.

The district is projecting a $500,000 to $2.3 million deficit in the 1976-77 school year if current programs are maintained. The figure is variable because it depends on inflation, teacher salary increases and the amount of money the district will receive in state aid.

The Dist. 59 board earlier this year decided to give a balanced budget a whirl and is studying what type of impact it would have on programs and staff.

THIS WEEK, board members sat through several hours of grim financial projections that point to multimillion dollar deficits down the road.

Bardwell admits the district is "not in as good shape as our neighbors," but defends operating at a deficit — a practice the neighbors are trying to avoid.

He pointed out this week that other districts have managed to save money during the years and built up a surplus of cash that they now are dipping into to prevent deficit spending.

"They can use their savings accounts to buy some time, but when you borrow from a cash surplus you can only do it once," he said.

Borrowing from the surplus "builds up on you so quickly" that before you know it you're in a deficit, he said. He added that while these other frugal districts are stashing the cash they are taking more money than they need to from the taxpayer — and taxpayers have a more immediate need for money than school districts.

ON THE OTHER hand, Dist. 59 doesn't have to worry about going into a deficit because it is already there. "We've got all of our cards on the table," Bardwell said. "We have nothing to back into, nothing to bank on. We know how much we can borrow and it's there every year."

What Bardwell seems to miss with his logic is that all of these districts with dwindling cash surpluses are taking steps now to prevent deficits. Practically without exception, Northwest suburban districts are mapping out long-range plans, finding ways to pare down their budgets, cutting staff, examining programs and making sure future ends meet.

Bardwell is absolutely right when he says that school districts can borrow money more cheaply than your average taxpayer. But for every dollar a school district borrows it must pay interest — and that means taxpayers dollars going to banks rather than educational programs.

Eventually, borrowing catches up with you. Dist. 59 resorted to borrowing $1.75 million in teachers orders this year to bring enough money into the district to keep it going for a year. Teachers were paid in script earlier this year and the district sold bonds to put real money behind the script.

Who is paying for the bonds? The taxpayer. Dist. 59 tax bills will automatically go up during the next four years to pay back the debt. And residents never approved this tax increase in a referendum.

There may be outstanding reasons to borrow money to operate a school district. But I haven't heard one yet.

Reform of workers' benefit bill urged

Reform of Illinois' workmen's compensation legislation is needed "if great damage to the state's economy is to be avoided," said an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce spokesman Wednesday.

Leonard Day, labor relations manager for the organization, testified at a Springfield hearing of the Illinois Insurance Laws Study Commission. The 1975 compensation law is a "bad scene" for business in the state, he said.

"The detrimental effects of S.B. 234 and 235 on the Illinois business community are, after eight months, even worse, even more costly than we'd feared," Day said. "Establishing benefit levels far beyond the National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws recommended maximums; drastically easing eligibility requirements; introducing many employer roadblocks to fair, effective administration; imposing a host of pen alties on those who pay for the entire program — all this is heading the state's W. C. law toward total disaster."

'Truth squad' supports Howlett over Walker

Gov. Daniel Walker should be replaced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett because the Walker administration doesn't issue unemployment checks on time, spends money faster than it comes in and fights with Democrats instead of the GOP, the "truth squad" said Wednesday.

The "truth squad" — state Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale and state Reps. Gerald Bradley of Bloomington and E. J. "Zeke" Giorgi of Rockford, all Democrats — made a four-city flying tour to denounce Walker. They scheduled stops in Alton, Springfield, Chicago and the Quad Cities.

Illinois briefs

Reagan worth $1.5 million

Ronald Reagan said in Matoon, Wednesday his net worth is nearly $1.5 million, but he still owes $451,000 on his ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Reagan's total adjusted gross income from 1970 to 1974 was $520,518, including non-taxable income, the statement said. For those years he paid a total of $135,380 in federal and state income taxes and sales, property and miscellaneous taxes.

However, the statement said his 1974 estimated income totaled $282,253, on which he paid a total of $119,332. The statement did not itemize the sources of his 1975 income.

Bias charged by NOW

The Chicago chapter of the National Organization for Women Wednesday charged Standard Oil Co. of Indiana with discrimination against women.

The group filed a complaint with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and distributed leaflets in front of the Standard Oil Building.

The class-action complaint charged Standard Oil with discriminating in hiring, promotions, assignments, salaries and benefits. It also charged Standard's subsidiaries, including the Amoco Motor club, with employment discrimination against women.

Judge McLaren, 57, dies

U.S. District Court Judge Richard McLaren died Wednesday in Northwest Memorial Hospital, Chicago. He was 57.

McLaren was admitted to the hospital two weeks ago with a heart problem. He also suffered from a crippling blood disease and had been ill for several months.

McLaren had been on the U.S. District Court bench since February, 1972, replacing Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who became a senior judge with a lighter workload.

He previously served as chief of the U.S. Justice Dept.'s antitrust division, and before that was a member of a Chicago law firm.

Cut farm output: union

Harold Dodd, president of the Illinois Farmers Union, Wednesday urged farmers to "think twice before planting their farm from fence to fence" this spring.

"We farmers," Dodd said in a statement, "are saddled with administrative decisions which clearly put a ceiling on our prices by virtue of controling our foreign sales, but on the other hand are not willing to give us any realistic support on the bottom in case we produce too much."

The IFU urged farmers early last year to restrict planting to 90 per cent of their available acreage. The organization held meetings in many parts of the state and obtained signed pledges from many farmers to limit production. The IFU later abandoned the plan, however.

Jack Ford to stump for Dad at Harper March 5

Although President Ford has not made a primary campaign appearance in Illinois, his son, Jack, will come to Illinois next week for several days.

The younger Ford is scheduled to make an appearance at Harper College March 5. A tentative schedule indicates Ford will make a number of other appearances on college campuses earlier in the week.

Some campaign officials indicate this is one of the first campaign swings any of the President's children have made in the current election campaign.

Ford is expected to come to Illinois twice before Illinois' March 16 primary. The Herald has learned Ford may appear at a high school rally in the Northwest suburbs on March 13. Full details and the location of the appearance are being withheld at this time.

Political briefs

Carter supporters meet

Democratic National Convention delegate candidates backing Jimmy Carter will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in Des Plaines.

The sessions will be held at the South Park Field House, Howard and White streets.

Delegate candidates from the 10th Congressional District will be on hand to discuss Carter's candidacy. The delegate candidates are Joseph Possberber Jr., Ruth Sorenson Singer, Stanton Brody, Elaine Lisberg, William Murphy, James Epstein and Rodney Merwin; the alternate delegate candidates are Robert Gordon, Judith Kitzes and Donald Kron.

'Hales strength is growing'

Supporters of Daniel B. Hales, a candidate for the Republican nomination in the 10th Congressional District, said the growing strength of their campaign was the main factor in blocking Samuel H. Young from getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization endorsement.

The North Shore group failed to give a 60 per cent vote to any of three candidates — State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, Hales or Young — at a weekend endorsement session.

Hales credited a "growing army of volunteers" with blocking the endorsement of Young. The former congressman fell two votes short of getting the organization's endorsement. Hales finished second in the balloting, and Nimrod finished third.

Hales claimed the Evanston results showed the people of the 10th Congressional District prefer citizen politics rather than professional politics.

Seminar on politics set

Kemper Insurance Co. Jaycees will hold a two-day seminar next week on political activities.

The seminar, which will be held Monday and Tuesday from 4:45 p.m. until 6:45 p.m., is open to all Lake County residents. The seminar will be held at Kemper headquarters in Long Grove.

Reservations may be made by calling 540-2919 or 321-3645.

'Walker carpetbags'

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett continued his attack on his Democratic gubernatorial opponent, Gov. Daniel Walker, Wednesday with charges the governor has neglected talented Illinois residents and gone outside the state to hire his aides.

Howlett cited a number of cabinet level appointments made by the Walker administration from outside the state.

Howlett made his comment in a prepared statement, but repeated it later at a meeting of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee.

He predicted the state will see one of the "greatest airlifts of all time" after the election when the Walker appointees go back to where they came from.

College 'frills' defended

Gov. Daniel Walker's criticism of the community college system drew more heated reaction Wednesday from another candidate.

Republican Joan Anderson, a candidate for lieutenant governor, charged Walker's statement distorts the facts and is damaging to community college students and faculties.

Mrs. Anderson, who is a Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee, was a member of the College of DuPage board of trustees from 1971 to 1974.

Walker, in an exclusive interview with The Herald, said community colleges have to "cut out its frills courses."

Mrs. Anderson said the courses called frills by Walker are actually "self-supporting, enrichment courses which enrich the whole community."

She also disputed Walker's statement theat college enrollments are dropping. She said community college enrollment is up about 25 per cent over last year.

GOP seeks members

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has begun a new membership drive for the year.

Mrs. Spruill Beckstrom is leading the effort to increase the number of members in the GOP group. She said persons interested in joining the organization can obtain more information by calling 392-2580 or 255-9105.

Jack Ford to stump for Dad at Harper March 5

Although President Ford has not made a primary campaign appearance in Illinois, his son, Jack, will come to Illinois next week for several days.

The younger Ford is scheduled to make an appearance at Harper College March 5. A tentative schedule indicates Ford will make a number of other appearances on college campuses earlier in the week.

Some campaign officials indicate this is one of the first campaign swings any of the President's children have made in the current election campaign.

Ford is expected to come to Illinois twice before Illinois' March 16 primary. The Herald has learned Ford may appear at a high school rally in the Northwest suburbs on March 13. Full details and the location of the appearance are being withheld at this time.

Political briefs

Carter supporters meet

Democratic National Convention delegate candidates backing Jimmy Carter will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in Des Plaines.

The sessions will be held at the South Park Field House, Howard and White streets.

Delegate candidates from the 10th Congressional District will be on hand to discuss Carter's candidacy. The delegate candidates are Joseph Possberber Jr., Ruth Sorenson Singer, Stanton Brody, Elaine Lisberg, William Murphy, James Epstein and Rodney Merwin; the alternate delegate candidates are Robert Gordon, Judith Kitzes and Donald Kron.

'Hales strength is growing'

Supporters of Daniel B. Hales, a candidate for the Republican nomination in the 10th Congressional District, said the growing strength of their campaign was the main factor in blocking Samuel H. Young from getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization endorsement.

The North Shore group failed to give a 60 per cent vote to any of three candidates — State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, Hales or Young — at a weekend endorsement session.

Hales credited a "growing army of volunteers" with blocking the endorsement of Young. The former congressman fell two votes short of getting the organization's endorsement. Hales finished second in the balloting, and Nimrod finished third.

Hales claimed the Evanston results showed the people of the 10th Congressional District prefer citizen politics rather than professional politics.

Seminar on politics set

Kemper Insurance Co. Jaycees will hold a two-day seminar next week on political activities.

The seminar, which will be held Monday and Tuesday from 4:45 p.m. until 6:45 p.m., is open to all Lake County residents. The seminar will be held at Kemper headquarters in Long Grove.

Reservations may be made by calling 540-2919 or 321-3645.

'Walker carpetbags'

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett continued his attack on his Democratic gubernatorial opponent, Gov. Daniel Walker, Wednesday with charges the governor has neglected talented Illinois residents and gone outside the state to hire his aides.

Howlett cited a number of cabinet level appointments made by the Walker administration from outside the state.

Howlett made his comment in a prepared statement, but repeated it later at a meeting of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee.

He predicted the state will see one of the "greatest airlifts of all time" after the election when the Walker appointees go back to where they came from.

College 'frills' defended

Gov. Daniel Walker's criticism of the community college system drew more heated reaction Wednesday from another candidate.

Republican Joan Anderson, a candidate for lieutenant governor, charged Walker's statement distorts the facts and is damaging to community college students and faculties.

Mrs. Anderson, who is a Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee, was a member of the College of DuPage board of trustees from 1971 to 1974.

Walker, in an exclusive interview with The Herald, said community colleges have to "cut out its frills courses."

Mrs. Anderson said the courses called frills by Walker are actually "self-supporting, enrichment courses which enrich the whole community."

She also disputed Walker's statement theat college enrollments are dropping. She said community college enrollment is up about 25 per cent over last year.

GOP seeks members

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has begun a new membership drive for the year.

Mrs. Spruill Beckstrom is leading the effort to increase the number of members in the GOP group. She said persons interested in joining the organization can obtain more information by calling 392-2580 or 255-9105.

The way we see it

Garbage is a public matter

The question of who should collect a community's garbage has been raised again, this time in Des Plaines, where the city is losing money on its municipal service. It lost $400,000 in 1974 and $360,000 in 1975. More losses are predicted this year.

Some officials are suggesting that private firms should be allowed to collect garbage, thus removing the cost burden entirely from the city.

Others, especially members of the public employes' union, say private scavenger services won't save Des Plaines residents any money. The way to reduce costs, they argue, is to reduce the number of supervisors in the department.

City officials are studying the cost problem. They've talked about hiring a private firm to collect garbage in a portion of Des Plaines on a trial basis.

We believe there's an overriding reason to maintain the present system. Garbage collection, like water service, must be supplied to everyone within a community. It seems to us to be a basic government service.

If Des Plaines wants to continue to provide its fine garbage collecting service, it obviously is going to have to control costs. It should also look to the experience of neighboring communities before it either partly or completely does away with an inexpensive system that has served its residents well.

Give Prospect Heights a chance to develop

Before the new City of Prospect Heights can learn to walk, some local residents are trying to cut off its legs.

A group of apartment and business owners in the month-old city are considering filing in court for disconnection from the city.

They feel that the combination of increased taxes and limited services are reason enough to pull out of the fledgling community.

But Prospect Heights hasn't had the chance yet to prove itself. Residents have a year until the filing period for disconnection ends; the least they can do is give the community's government a chance to take shape before they attack it.

At this moment, Prospect Heights needs all the support it can get. Later, residents will have a more legitimate reason to criticize its achievements and failures.

Villages should meet, act upon fire service

Wheeling's move to form a municipal fire department and to withdraw from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection district has forced Buffalo Grove officials into a decision-making posture they aren't prepared to face.

They must decide whether Buffalo Grove, too, should form a municipal department to offset the impact of the Wheeling withdrawal from the rural district. Right now, a municipal department appears financially unfeasible.

If Buffalo Grove were to form a municipal department, it would have to assume the cost of equipment, stations and manpower from the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc., which is part of the Wheeling rural district. The village also would have to plan for a new station in the Lake County section of the village in order to protect the area now covered by the Long Grove and Vernon Township fire districts.

In order to make a solid, intelligent and long-lasting decision, the Buffalo Grove Village Board should take the lead in getting all parties involved in this important matter together.

Several alternatives should be developed, and the people of Buffalo Grove should then vote for the type service they wish to receive since their tax bills will support the changes.

Whatever changes are made in Buffalo Grove, the type of service offered should be no less than that offered by the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. Inc.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 26 — Gen. Washington advised the Massachusetts legislature he intended to occupy Dorchester Heights, possibly within a week. A general order went out that all regiments send their axes, shovels, pick-axes and other entrenching tools to headquarters.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of 1976 with 309 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born this day are under the sign of Pisces.

American frontiersman William "Buffalo Bill" Cody was born Feb. 26, 1846.

On this day in history:

- In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte and 1,200 men left the Isle of Elba to start his 100-day conquest of France.
- In 1919, Congress established Grand Canyon Park in Arizona.
- In 1935, Germany began operation of its Air Force — the Luftwaffe — under Reichmarshal Hermann Goering.
- In 1972, a flash flood in West Virginia killed 118 persons.

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

Day-care controversy coverage hit

I am a resident of Arlington Heights and I subscribe to the Arlington Heights Herald. I have been aware for quite some time that there is a need for better news coverage between neighboring suburbs.

Paddock deems it necessary to devote plenty of space for international and national news. If I want to read about international and national news, I will buy a Chicago paper, or I can, at almost half-hour intervals, dial any radio or television station. I subscribe to The Herald because it is supposed to be a community-oriented newspaper. I want to read about my community and those in which I shop, work and have friends. You do have a lovely paper, so please consider my suggestion.

My appeal is stemmed from the controversy over Baby Town in Des Plaines. I am extremely interested in the outcome of this issue and nothing has been printed in the Arlington Heights Herald. This issue is the second and most important part of my letter.

Baby Town in Des Plaines is the only facility in this area that provides care for infants as well as pre-school children. There is a desperate need for day care centers such as this in our community. Our economic situation makes it necessary for more and more families to have both parents working. Then we must consider the single parent, who has only one income. Statistics prove that there are not nearly enough day care facilities to accommodate the children whose parents work. We need the new day care center Baby Town is proposing to build.

How many of you have ever been in this situation? If you have, you know the difficult task of finding suitable care for your child. All day care centers are not staffed with top personnel, they do not have a program of quality education, give the child a home-like atmosphere. Please, if you know these difficulties or even if you just feel that the building of this new center is the step Des Plaines needs to take, please write to your alderman, to the mayor of Des Plaines and/or the city council. Let them know you care about children and that they should, too.

I would be very proud to live in a community that knew the needs of their residents. Fostering and helping this new Baby Town might open the eyes of surrounding communities.

Paddock should print a story, a good story, about Baby Town and the management of the school. Let all the papers print it, let the communities know that there is a center that cares.

My closing comment will be a challenge to Paddock Publications to both print my letter and to print a story about Baby Town as told by Mrs. Lorraine Angel.

Reader concerned about rock concert

As a resident of Mount Prospect, I become very concerned about the leadership and direction of our board members and the mayor when I read articles in the paper regarding rock concerts at Randhurst.

Could these officials tell the community please:

- Why do we need these rock concerts?
- What do we as a community gain from these type of activities?
- What percentage of the 3,400 people who attended this last concert were residents of Mount Prospect?
- Is this activity and the publicity we received from it in the newspaper and TV good for our town?

I thought the picture in the paper of one of our trustees watching while people were being searched was particularly interesting. I can't ever think of a function I have ever attended where I was searched, alcohol was permitted around teenagers and marijuana was being smoked!

At the next concert, will our senior citizens or Boy Scouts be interested in attending? I'm sure they wouldn't be opposed to attending something where they have to be frisked first!

My personal belief is that when items such as rock concerts are presented for approval to our board, one of the most important factors to consider is, are these concerts or any other items requested for approval in the best interest of the total community? Are these concerts something that would appeal to a majority or a cross-section of a local population?

Before approving such items, do a little research. Are you aware that rock concerts are not allowed in the local high schools because of the problems they cause and everywhere that these concerts have been held, there have been numerous problems.

Come on, village board, get your heads screwed on straight! What have we to gain by these rock concerts that appeal to a minority and a minority also is making a lot of money!

He applauds Moynihan's U. N. record

Your column, "Moynihan Makes a Timely Exit," as written by NEA/London Economist News Service, apparently was prepared by someone too long under the influence of British philosophy and too little under the influence of U.S. history. Professor Moynihan represents the true nature of the U.S.: strength, forthrightness and honesty, being only three of our attributes not found in this combination in any other national makeup.

The few countries like England that we call friends may have grown upset with Professor Moynihan and will feel relieved to see him leave their "diplomatic clique"; but let us face facts. We will never have any real friends as long as our allies continue to look at our strength from a position of envy.

Throughout our history, we have earned respect by meaning what we say. Professor Moynihan was exemplary in this regard. If we speak in the weak tones pleasing to the ears of our allies, we are not speaking the language understood by our enemies, but only by the western minority in the U.N. The next U.N. Ambassador from the U.S. may appease our allies, but he will more than please the Russian bloc who take advantage of our every weakness. The world respects us for what we are, not for what our allies say we should or should not say.

Paramedics boosted

I would like with all my heart to thank the Wheeling police and Wheeling paramedics for literally saving my life on Jan. 7.

Thank God they are there. How wonderful to know when they are needed they are there within minutes.

She seeks adult 'control'

I am writing regarding your article on "Trustees go to rock concert, a first-hand view" in your Feb. 14 issue of the Mount Prospect Herald. I'm not writing in complaint or to say your article was false.

As the rock concert is a big thing to the teens, adults also have their events — such as the Bicentennial Ball (also held at Randhurst). Will there be proper crowd and alcohol control at this event? There should be some teens going to the ball to see how adults act after they have had a few drinks.

There is very limited entertainment for teens in our community and like most of the the time you just hear about the bad things a few kids did. Why spoil everyone else's fun because of what you heard about a few people.

Vacant store?

Dist. 54 administration has gone to great lengths to express the need for a tax increase to continue program and to build an administration center. Why not show the taxpayer their willingness to economize by considering the use of one of several empty buildings in the area? I am thinking specifically of the vacant store on Golf Rd. recently occupied by Skorberg Furniture. It is a large building, adequate parking, centrally located, and would lend itself to remodeling.

We are an important school district, nationally as well as locally. Let us present ourselves as an example in wisdom, not in wealth.

The way we see it

Garbage is a public matter

The question of who should collect a community's garbage has been raised again, this time in Des Plaines, where the city is losing money on its municipal service. It lost $400,000 in 1974 and $360,000 in 1975. More losses are predicted this year.

Some officials are suggesting that private firms should be allowed to collect garbage, thus removing the cost burden entirely from the city.

Others, especially members of the public employes' union, say private scavenger services won't save Des Plaines residents any money. The way to reduce costs, they argue, is to reduce the number of supervisors in the department.

City officials are studying the cost problem. They've talked about hiring a private firm to collect garbage in a portion of Des Plaines on a trial basis.

We believe there's an overriding reason to maintain the present system. Garbage collection, like water service, must be supplied to everyone within a community. It seems to us to be a basic government service.

If Des Plaines wants to continue to provide its fine garbage collecting service, it obviously is going to have to control costs. It should also look to the experience of neighboring communities before it either partly or completely does away with an inexpensive system that has served its residents well.

Give Prospect Heights a chance to develop

Before the new City of Prospect Heights can learn to walk, some local residents are trying to cut off its legs.

A group of apartment and business owners in the month-old city are considering filing in court for disconnection from the city.

They feel that the combination of increased taxes and limited services are reason enough to pull out of the fledgling community.

But Prospect Heights hasn't had the chance yet to prove itself. Residents have a year until the filing period for disconnection ends; the least they can do is give the community's government a chance to take shape before they attack it.

At this moment, Prospect Heights needs all the support it can get. Later, residents will have a more legitimate reason to criticize its achievements and failures.

Villages should meet, act upon fire service

Wheeling's move to form a municipal fire department and to withdraw from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection district has forced Buffalo Grove officials into a decision-making posture they aren't prepared to face.

They must decide whether Buffalo Grove, too, should form a municipal department to offset the impact of the Wheeling withdrawal from the rural district. Right now, a municipal department appears financially unfeasible.

If Buffalo Grove were to form a municipal department, it would have to assume the cost of equipment, stations and manpower from the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc., which is part of the Wheeling rural district. The village also would have to plan for a new station in the Lake County section of the village in order to protect the area now covered by the Long Grove and Vernon Township fire districts.

In order to make a solid, intelligent and long-lasting decision, the Buffalo Grove Village Board should take the lead in getting all parties involved in this important matter together.

Several alternatives should be developed, and the people of Buffalo Grove should then vote for the type service they wish to receive since their tax bills will support the changes.

Whatever changes are made in Buffalo Grove, the type of service offered should be no less than that offered by the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. Inc.

"Whether I personally care for that type of art is not important. People should be able to make their own decision," he said.

"The Gould people are sincerely interested in bringing art to the suburbs as shown by the statue and their extensive collection of art works within the building. I say good for them and the community," Meyer said.

The Bather "is neat," says one Rolling Meadows resident. "It's a touch of class. It doesn't offend me in the least," she said.

To another woman, an employe of Gould, the statue is an "inspiration" of a special sort.

"EVERYTIME I come to work and look at that — the shape she is in — I'm inspired to lose weight," she said.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case is indifferent. "I have no feeling at all about her. The statue has not created a personal nor a police problem and has not influenced me as a resident. Maybe I'm not a connoisseur of that type of art," he said.

Gertrude Pfingsten of Arlington Heights said she would not go out of her way to see the statue but agreed with those who defend it as art.

"I don't particularly like the ugly, fat thing, because I'm a realist and don't see eye to eye with that expression of art," she said.

An employe of Gould who declined to identify himself "because my wife would kill me" said he has "grown very fond of the lady."

"SHE WAVES HI to me when I drive up to work in the morning, waves good-bye again when I leave and has never turned her back on me yet," he said with a grin.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke, 5th, of Rolling Meadows, takes out-of-town visitors to see the statue.

"It's the first thing people ask to see. But, once they see her most of them have the same reaction I do. They just grin," he said.

"I think they (Gould) could have spent the money a better way. They got sold a bill of goods," he said.

Retzke described the statue as a great advertising idea.

"The company got more free advertising for it than they paid for the statue," he said.

Gould officials agree that The Bather has brought the firm publicity. They also maintain the work has earned a generally favorable response from visitors to the complex.

IT HAS WON acclaim in The Art Gallery and other art magazines.

"I'm for the lady," said Harry O'Brien, executive director of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce. "Even those who may not like the statue have at least been prompted to think about art. We (the suburbs) have been criticized as the great cultural void.

"It took a corporate name to bring a Picasso to the suburbs," he said.

Ask Andy

Homely devilfish aren't demonic

WHAT IS A DEVILFISH?

This question gave Andy quite a bad time when he sat down to answer it. Not because he didn't know the answer — quite the opposite. This time Andy knew a bit too much. He knew that there are two animals living in the ocean commonly called a devilfish. And exactly which devilfish to write about was the problem.

When men first began studying animals in a scientific way, one of the first things they considered was placing them in some sort of order. A bat, for example, flies through the air with the greatest of ease — but this doesn't necessarily make him a bird. And the intelligent dolphin lives in the ocean and can swim with speed and grace, but that still doesn't make him a fish.

As the early naturalists collected data about nature's creatures, they observed similarities as well as differences. Gradually they began to place them in orderly groups. They made a few mistakes at first, but that's easy to understand when you think of the multitudes of creatures that fly, swim, crawl, walk or hop.

Our classification system is made up of seven basic groups: kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, genus and species. The kingdom is the largest group, and the species is the smallest. Since both of our devilfish belong to the animal kingdom, we can move down to the phylum.

The animal kingdom is separated into 20 or more phyla. One of these is the phylum Chordata, or the animals with a backbone. In further divisions of this phylum we meet our first devilfish — the manta ray. He's a large flattish fellow, as much as 22 feet across and weighing up to 3,500 pounds. He seems to fly through the ocean on huge, winglike fins. Although he might give you quite a start if you were to meet him face to face, he is really a rather gentle giant. And since he only eats small marine animals, you wouldn't be on his menu.

Our second devilfish, the octopus, belongs to the Mollusk phylum. This large group includes the snails, slugs, clams, oysters and the octopus. It's no wonder the octopus is called a devilfish — he really looks the part. With eight long arms and two eyes bulging out from atop his head, he looks much fiercer than he really is.

Although both the manta ray and the octopus are called devilfish, it is a name that neither of them deserves. For the most part they are gentle creatures and seldom bother man unless they are bothered first.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Deneen Haynie, 8, of Decatur, Ga., for her question:

HOW DOES A QUEEN BEE BECOME A QUEEN?

A colony of busy buzzing bees can have as many as 60,000 members, but it will have only one queen. She is larger and more specially equipped than the workers and drones, and her very important job is to lay the eggs for the entire hive. In one day she may lay up to a thousand eggs, and during her five-year life span she might produce a whopping 2 million.

Our royal queen secretes a substance that reassures the workers of her presence. The absence of this secretion tells the workers they must prepare special cells in the comb for a new queen. The workers tirelessly nourish the larva of the growing queen with extra-nutritious food and secretions. When she is ready, the brand-new queen cuts her way out of her cell and begins her reign. If by chance another queen has appeared at the same time, one must kill the other before harmony in the hive is restored.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of The Herald, P. O. 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

TV primary coverage—giant yawn

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There were almost enough television network employes in New Hampshire Tuesday night to have swung the vote in the Republican primary, and some of them had been there almost long enough to qualify for a ballot.

From a television point of view, the time and labor, the expensive personnel and equipment, all ended up producing a giant yawn.

The results in the Democratic primary, with Jimmy Carter, Morris Udall and Birch Bayh in one-two-three order, was predicted and therefore without excitement.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, the contest remained too close for the networks to call by midnight, so all but night owls and the politically pious went to bed unsatisfied.

The trouble might lie in frustrated expectations. Back in 1952, when New Hampshire's primary began, the state had its lake country as a summer attraction, the falling leaves in autumn, winter skiing and, as a harbinger of spring, the first preference primary of the presidential election year.

By 1976, it had ballooned into an affair covered over a period of months by the three television networks and the pencil press.

It took a combined staff of almost 400 people to let the nation know that immediately past midnight in the morning of Feb. 24, the 25 voters of Dixville Notch, N.H., cast their ballots — Gerald Ford 11, Ronald Reagan 4, on the Republican side, with the town's 10 Democrats giving Jimmy Carter 6 votes, and 1 each to 4 other contenders.

WHEN IT CAME TO calling the state-wide results, ABC called the Democratic contest for Carter at 7:50 p.m. Eastern time on its radio network, even though all the polls didn't close until 8 p.m. It couldn't do the same on television at that hour because network time doesn't begin until 8 p.m., with affiliates on local access until then. ABC called Carter on television at 8:05 p.m., Eastern time.

Apparently the conventional wisdom was that the Democrats had just begun to fight — among themselves, anyway — and the focus of interest lay with the Republicans, whose contest was too tight to predict.

Back in the early '30s the late Lewis Osborne ran an April Fool one session duplicate. He made up all the hands himself and it was understood that the players had to play what they were dealt and that anything went.

The hand in the box was one of the simplest he produced. At every table but one, West played and made seven spades. It didn't matter how he bid it, but no one ever doubled him. At the table where South managed to play seven hearts, the bidding went as shown in the box except that East decided to be brilliant first and made an insufficient bid of three diamonds before bidding seven diamonds. This barred his partner and South got to play his heart suit.

Incidentally if you want to produce four 13-card suits just take a new deck. Give it exactly two perfect shuffles, cut and deal. If your shuffles were perfect you will have this ultimate freak hand.

Suburban open space gets last chance

by LEA TONKIN

The last chance for open space has come to the Northwest suburbs.

As the land is turned to new housing and business development, opportunities to set aside undeveloped acreage disappear, said Tom Hamilton, a director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. Hamilton will join a panel of land-use experts in a discussion of open space issues at the district's annual meeting tonight in Schaumburg.

The public meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Interested residents are invited but attendance is limited to 100 persons. The district offices in Lake Zurich can provide reservations information.

The conference is planned as a meeting place for area residents interested in open space opportunities, Hamilton said.

"We've got to be able to work together and find out how we can help each other," he said.

Tom Hamilton

"OUR HIGHEST priority should be to preserve natural areas not really suited for development, such as bogs and forests — now being converted to commercial development," he said. "Land is a commodity. Use the land according to its capabilities. If you do that, you'll come up with open space."

The rapid development which characterized the suburbs during the past decade often failed to include open space planning, Hamilton said. "What we lack is space for passive recreation," he said. He envisions the preservation of small land parcels for close-to-home recreation.

LAND DEVELOPMENT in the Northwest suburbs should leave room for open space, said Tom Hamilton of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. The district is among the sponsors of tonight's open space seminar slated in Schaumburg.

"Put into perspective, it's not open space for itself. It's for people," Hamilton said. Pockets of land should be preserved for their importance as recreational, geological, historical and environmental areas, he said.

A good example of lands which should be set aside for common sense reasons is flood plain property, Hamilton said. A newly enforced state regulation requires application for a permit to develop lands within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries.

"NO ONE CAN build on the flood plain without permission from the state," Hamilton said. He serves as chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee. "What this law is saying is that you can't go against the laws of nature," he said. Although the new regulation will mean "some pain" for land owners and developers who planned construction projects in the flood plain area, it will prevent flooding problems encountered by owners of flood plain buildings, he added.

When it comes time to plan development of the remaining open areas in the suburbs, Hamilton said, an enlightened public can work together to preserve open space, "the kind that heals the soul."

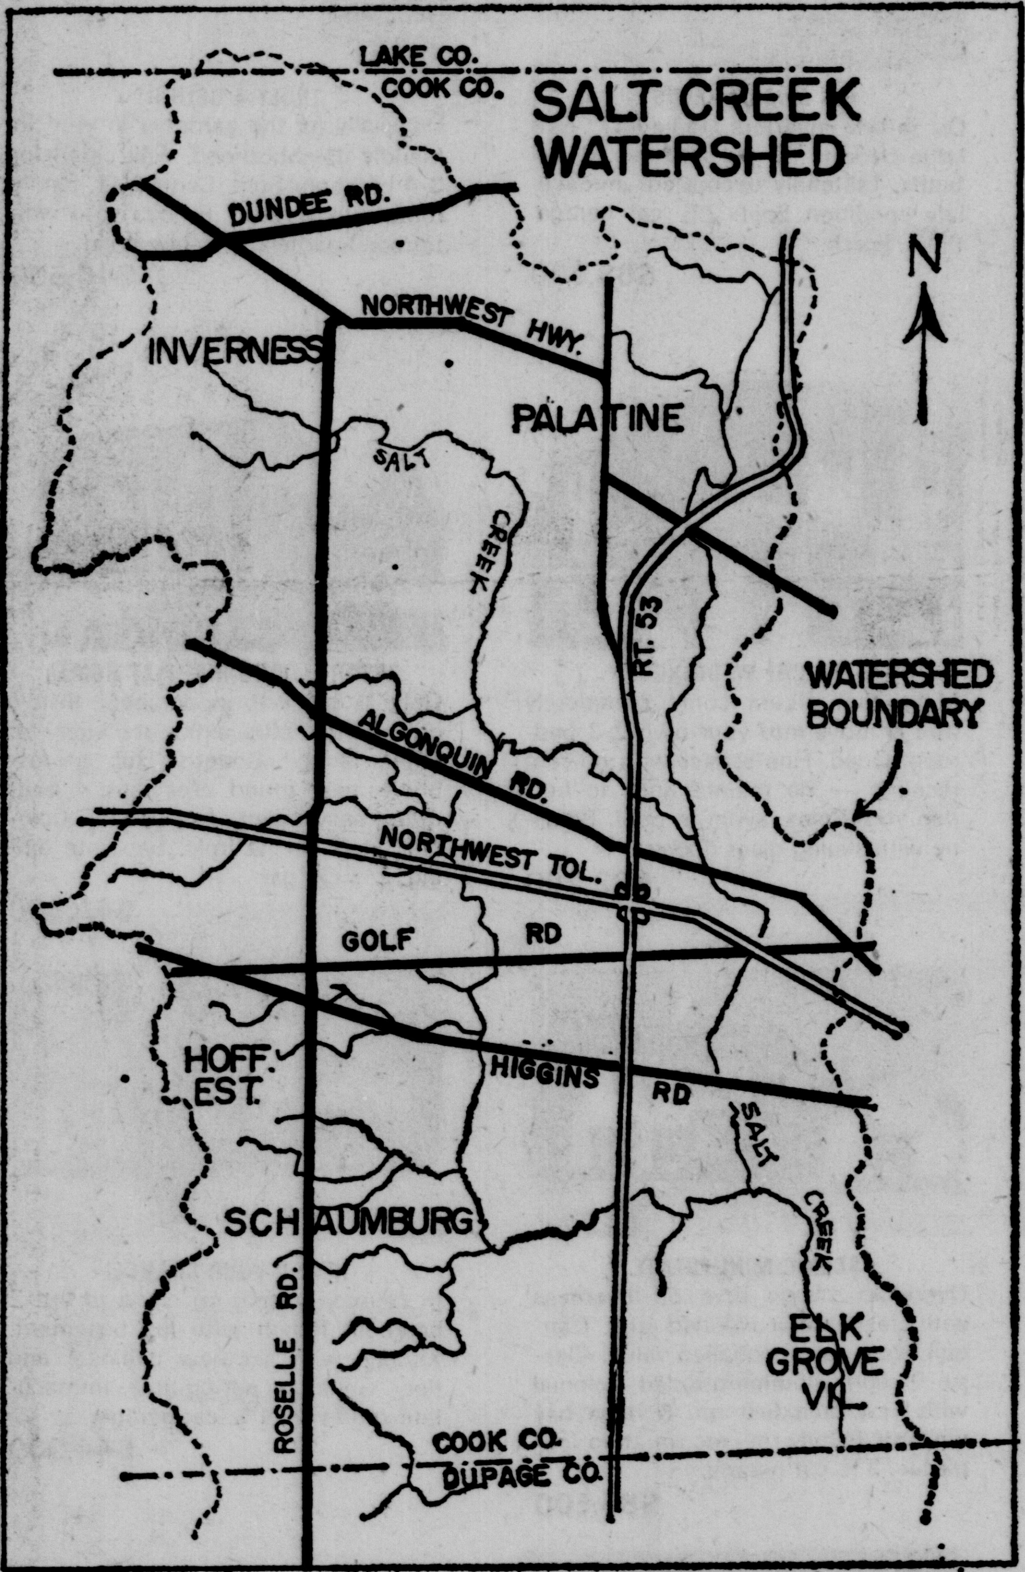
Participants in the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District meeting will include:

- April Young, teacher and planner at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and director of the Open Lands Project. The project develops policy statements on land use issues, coordinating citizen efforts to reserve or acquire land.
- Nil Gaston, an attorney and director of the Nature Conservancy. The conservancy promotes the acquisition of Illinois natural areas for scientific, educational and aesthetic reasons.
- Joe Nevius, assistant landscape architect for the Cook County Forest Preserve. He has worked on district property development.
- Mike Ives, a land planner with the Michael Ives & Associates firm, who will discuss human engineering and how to use open space in development.
- Don Klein, executive director of the Barrington Area Council of Governments. The agency has developed ordinances to insure orderly growth in the Barrington area.
- Ellsworth Meineke, director of conservation for Spring Valley Nature Center in Schaumburg and associate director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation district.

The meeting is sponsored by the Spring Valley Nature Club, the Des Plaines chapter of the Sierra Club, The Prairie Woods chapter of the National Audubon Society and the conservation district.

In Upper Salt Creek area

Flood plain permits now required



NEW FLOOD plain development controls are enforced in the Upper Salt Creek watershed area. A state permit is required for construction.

Developers must apply for a state permit to build within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries under regulations effective Feb. 1.

Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships are affected by the new standards. According to Tom Hamilton, chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, the area is one of two in Illinois where the strict controls are enforced. The North branch of the Chicago River is the second location.

The flood plain zoning is designed to prevent loss and destruction due to flooding, Hamilton said. The state authority for flood plain management is in the 1971 amendment to the Rivers and Lakes Act. It calls for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to define flood plains and set up a permit procedure to regulate construction on the flood plain.

THE DEPARTMENT'S division of water resources will administer the permit program in the Upper Salt Creek region and other flood plains. The regulations will not eliminate development. Construction will be permitted in areas designated as the "flood fringe" if it will not cause an increase in flooding problems. Permits must be obtained from the Dept. of Transportation. In areas designated as "floodway," permits for construction will not be granted.

If a homeowner plans a major addition, and the property is located within the flood plain, a permit from the state will be required. Although "flood-proofing" development is encouraged, other improvements must meet state standards.

Homeowners may decide to take the risk of development in the flood plain. But the state Dept. of Transportation must first consider the possible flood-causing impact of the project.

In the long run, the state agency said, the flood plain regulations will decrease the total cost of owning or using a structure. The cost of precautionary measures is minimal compared to the cost of repairing or replacing a building with extensive flood damage, the agency said.

More minorities move to suburbs

Quality education for children, easy access to jobs and comfortable living environments attract an increasing number of minority families to suburban apartments, said Paul Epstein, executive director of the Fair Housing Center in Chicago.

The nonprofit agency offers counseling to minority families moving to suburban communities.

"The Northwest suburbs is a great area of interest because of the number and variety of apartments available," Epstein said. Amenities such as pools and saunas, and nearby employment centers prompt city dwellers to choose suburban apartment living, he said.

Epstein noted an increased interest in apartment rentals as compared to home buyer inquiries.

"Fully half our suburban inquiries during the last year have been about apartment rentals instead of home purchases," he said. "It's simply because of the increased cost."

The Fair Housing Center has a free booklet that explains its services. Entitled, "It's Your Choice," the booklet can be obtained from the center, 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Suburban open space gets last chance

by LEA TONKIN

The last chance for open space has come to the Northwest suburbs.

As the land is turned to new housing and business development, opportunities to set aside undeveloped acreage disappear, said Tom Hamilton, a director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. Hamilton will join a panel of land-use experts in a discussion of open space issues at the district's annual meeting tonight in Schaumburg.

The public meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Interested residents are invited but attendance is limited to 100 persons. The district offices in Lake Zurich can provide reservations information.

The conference is planned as a meeting place for area residents interested in open space opportunities, Hamilton said.

"We've got to be able to work together and find out how we can help each other," he said.

Tom Hamilton

"OUR HIGHEST priority should be to preserve natural areas not really suited for development, such as bogs and forests — now being converted to commercial development," he said. "Land is a commodity. Use the land according to its capabilities. If you do that, you'll come up with open space."

The rapid development which characterized the suburbs during the past decade often failed to include open space planning, Hamilton said. "What we lack is space for passive recreation," he said. He envisions the preservation of small land parcels for close-to-home recreation.

"Put into perspective, it's not open space for itself. It's for people," Hamilton said. Pockets of land should be preserved for their importance as recreational, geological, historical and environmental areas, he said.

A good example of lands which should be set aside for common sense reasons is flood plain property, Hamilton said. A newly enforced state regulation requires application for a permit to develop lands within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries.

"NO ONE CAN build on the flood plain without permission from the state," Hamilton said. He serves as chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee. "What this law is saying is that you can't go against the laws of nature," he said. Although the new regulation will mean "some pain" for land owners and developers who planned construction projects in the flood plain area, it will prevent flooding problems encountered by owners of flood plain buildings, he added.

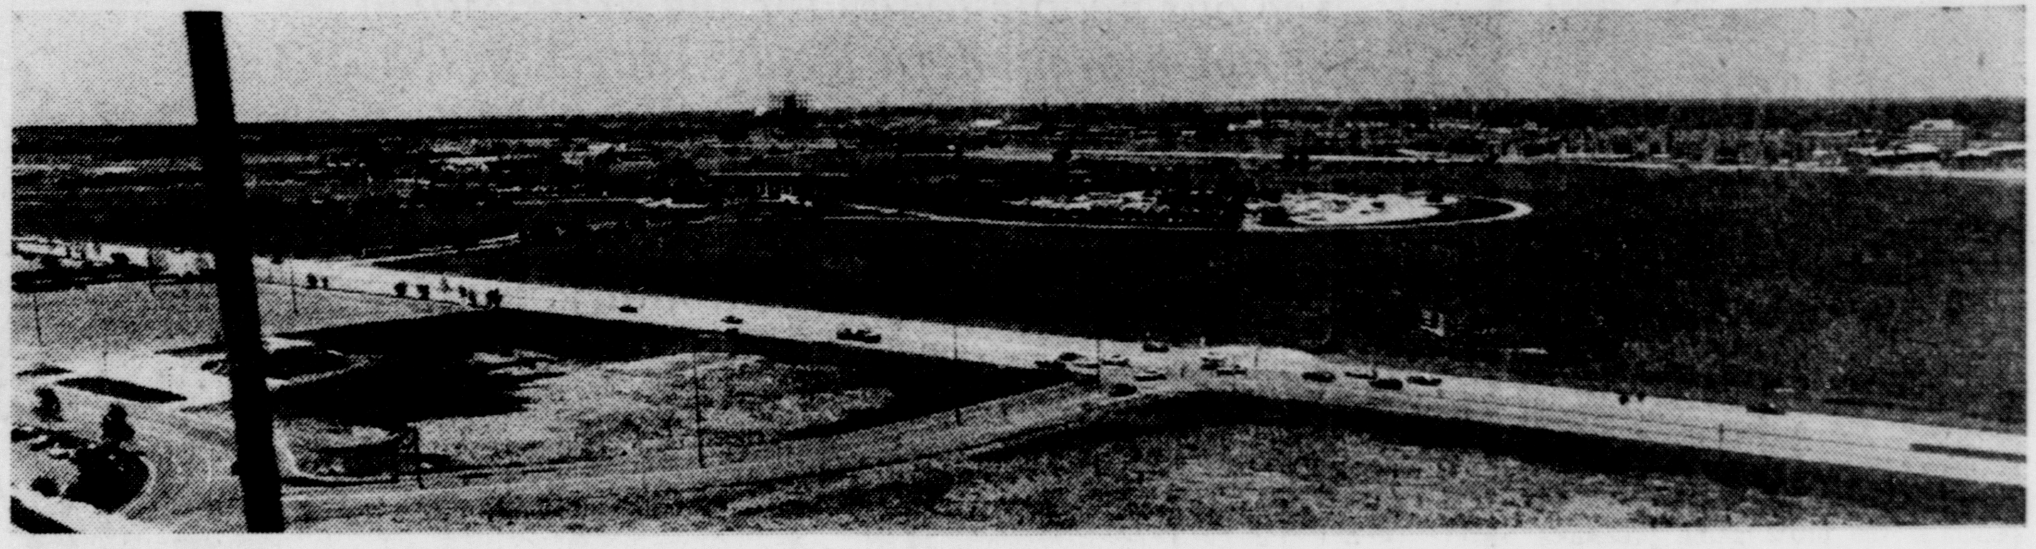
When it comes time to plan development of the remaining open areas in the suburbs, Hamilton said, an enlightened public can work together to preserve open space, "the kind that heals the soul."

Participants in the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District meeting will include:

- April Young, teacher and planner at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and director of the Open Lands Project. The project develops policy statements on land use issues, coordinating citizen efforts to reserve or acquire land.
- Nil Gaston, an attorney and director of the Nature Conservancy. The conservancy promotes the acquisition of Illinois natural areas for scientific, educational and aesthetic reasons.
- Joe Nevius, assistant landscape architect for the Cook County Forest Preserve. He has worked on district property development.
- Mike Ives, a land planner with the Michael Ives & Associates firm, who will discuss human engineering and how to use open space in development.
- Don Klein, executive director of the Barrington Area Council of Governments. The agency has developed ordinances to insure orderly growth in the Barrington area.
- Ellsworth Meineke, director of conservation for Spring Valley Nature Center in Schaumburg and associate director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation district.

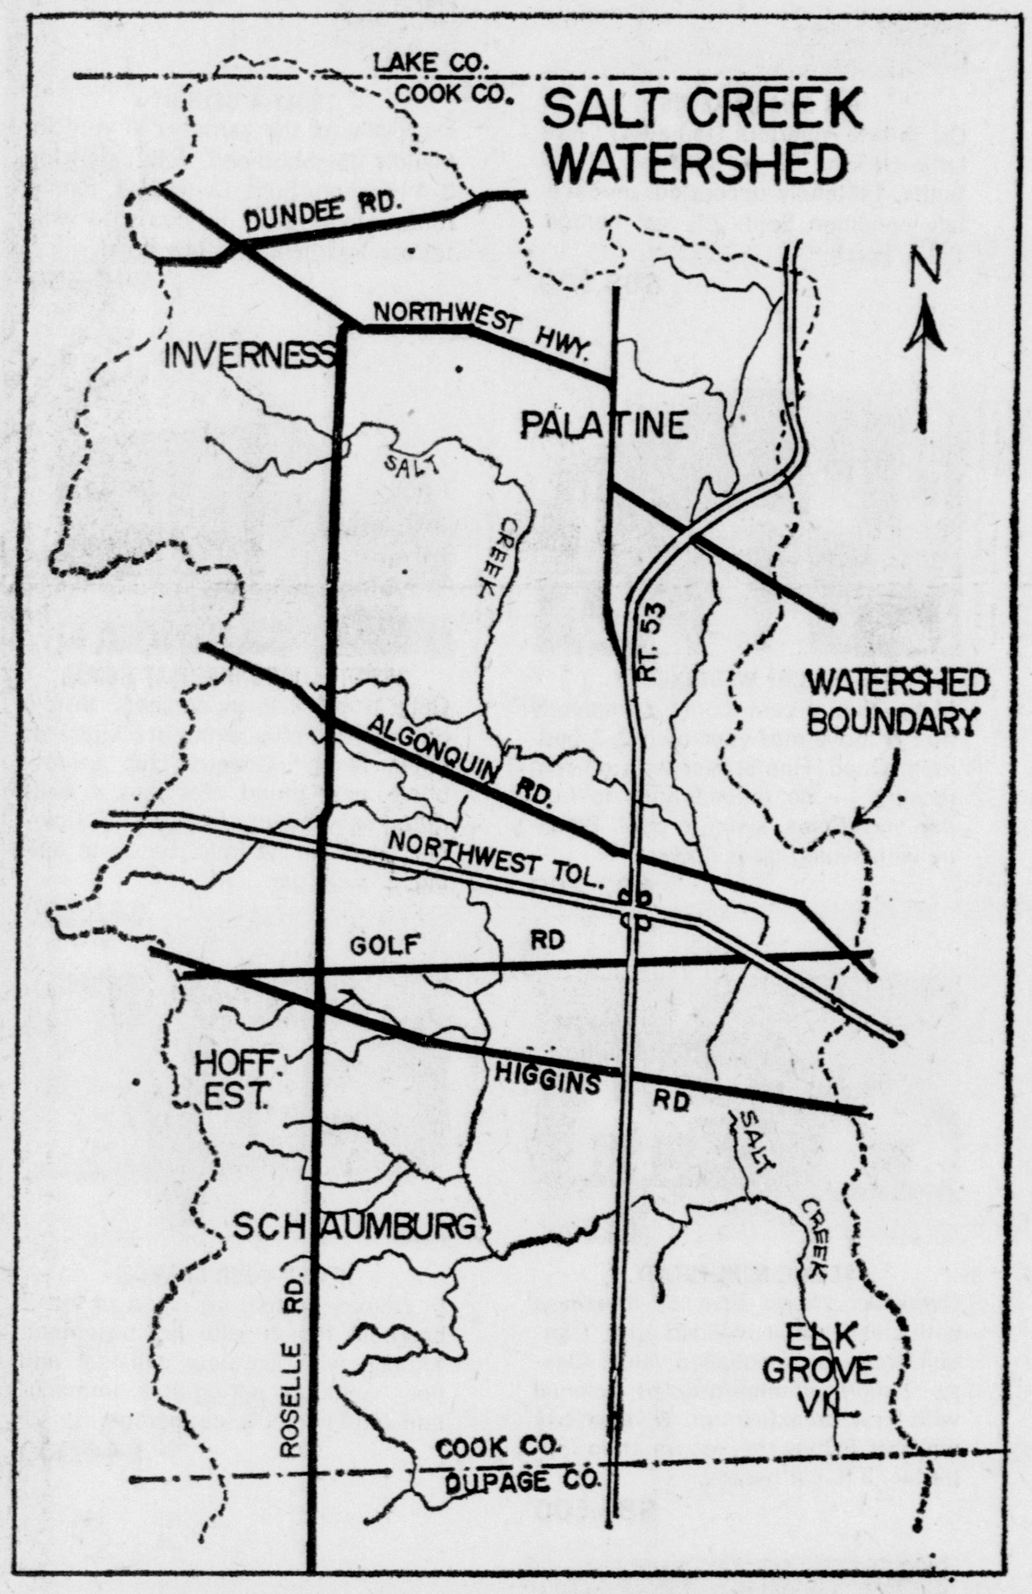
The meeting is sponsored by the Spring Valley Nature Club, the Des Plaines chapter of the Sierra Club, The Prairie Woods chapter of the National Audubon Society and the conservation district.



LAND DEVELOPMENT in the Northwest suburbs should leave room for open space, said Tom Hamilton of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. The district is among the sponsors of tonight's open space seminar slated in Schaumburg.

In Upper Salt Creek area

Flood plain permits now required



NEW FLOOD plain development controls are enforced in the Upper Salt Creek watershed area. A state permit is required for construction.

Developers must apply for a state permit to build within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries under regulations effective Feb. 1.

Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships are affected by the new standards. According to Tom Hamilton, chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, the area is one of two in Illinois where the strict controls are enforced. The North branch of the Chicago River is the second location.

The flood plain zoning is designed to prevent loss and destruction due to flooding, Hamilton said. The state authority for flood plain management is in the 1971 amendment to the Rivers and Lakes Act. It calls for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to define flood plains and set up a permit procedure to regulate construction on the flood plain.

THE DEPARTMENT'S division of water resources will administer the permit program in the Upper Salt Creek region and other flood plains. The regulations will not eliminate development. Construction will be permitted in areas designated as the "flood fringe" if it will not cause an increase in flooding problems. Permits must be obtained from the Dept. of Transportation. In areas designated as "floodway," permits for construction will not be granted.

If a homeowner plans a major addition, and the property is located within the flood plain, a permit from the state will be required. Although "flood-proofing" development is encouraged, other improvements must meet state standards.

Homeowners may decide to take the risk of development in the flood plain. But the state Dept. of Transportation must first consider the possible flood-causing impact of the project.

In the long run, the state agency said, the flood plain regulations will decrease the total cost of owning or using a structure. The cost of precautionary measures is minimal compared to the cost of repairing or replacing a building with extensive flood damage, the agency said.

More minorities move to suburbs

Quality education for children, easy access to jobs and comfortable living environments attract an increasing number of minority families to suburban apartments, said Paul Epstein, executive director of the Fair Housing Center in Chicago.

The nonprofit agency offers counseling to minority families moving to suburban communities.

"The Northwest suburbs is a great area of interest because of the number and variety of apartments available," Epstein said. Amenities such as pools and saunas, and nearby employment centers prompt city dwellers to choose suburban apartment living, he said.

Epstein noted an increased interest in apartment rentals as compared to home buyer inquiries.

"Fully half our suburban inquiries during the last year have been about apartment rentals instead of home purchases," he said. "It's simply because of the increased cost."

The Fair Housing Center has a free booklet that explains its services. Entitled, "It's Your Choice," the booklet can be obtained from the center, 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Stocks flirt with Dow's 1,000 mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices closed mixed in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday as the Dow Jones industrial average, fighting profit takers, flirted unsuccessfully with the 1,000 barrier in reaching another three-year high.

A late rally lifted the Dow average 1.02 points to 994.57, the highest level since it finished at 996.76 on Feb. 13, 1973. It was ahead three at the outset and off as much as five during the afternoon before rallying in the last hour.

But other averages skidded. Standard & Poor's lost 0.34 to 101.69, the NYSE common stock index 0.16 to 54.46, and the average price of an NYSE by 10 cents.

THE MARKET'S breadth figures reflected the profit-taking pressures and some investor uncertainty. Of the 1,909 issues crossing the tape, 867 declined, 678 advanced and 364 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 34,680,000 shares, slightly better than the 34,380,000 traded Tuesday.

Most Wall Street analysts said the significance of the Dow's breaking through the 1,000 level would be that stock prices are approaching their highest level ever and have a chance to move even higher.

The last time the blue-chip average of 30 industrials closed over 1,000 was Jan. 26, 1973, when it finished at 1,003.54. The Dow reached its all-time high of 1,051.70 on Jan. 11 that year.

Analysts said Wall Street was almost unanimous in expecting the blue-chip Dow average to crack 1,000. But it failed Wednesday because of preplanned selling by traders in advance of its reaching that level.

"THIS DEFINITELY was a factor in the Dow failing to move any more than it did," said Monte Gordon, vice president of Dreyfus Corp. "What was more significant, however, is that the market quickly absorbed the profit taking."

Chrysler, a 1 1/8-point gainer in Tuesday's rally, led the Big Board actives, gaining 2 1/8 to 18½ on 664,600 shares. The company said it expects to report profits in each quarter of 1976. Were it not for its Airtemp division, which it sold, Chrysler would have had a $34 million profit in the fourth quarter of 1975.

Other auto stocks also advanced, helped by a stronger-than-expected 21 per cent overall jump in mid-February sales. American Motors was the second most active issue, up 7/8 to 7¼ on 476,100 shares. General Motors rose 1 3/8 to 66 1/8 and Ford ¾ to 52 1/8.

Prices closed mixed in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by one cent. Volume totaled 5,720,000 shares, compared with 6,360,000 traded Tuesday.

ONE CALL DOES IT ALL

Firms buy homes to aid transferees

Some type of employer-funded purchase of the equity in a transferred employe's former home is the most popular means of helping solve transfer-related estate problems among companies that offer any kind of assistance.

This was reported recently by Robert W. Starck, president of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect, in summarizing results of a recent survey among members of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. Robert W. Starck & Co. is one of more than 850 RELO members, whose offices market homes in more than 8,000 cities and towns throughout the United States and Canada and in several nations overseas.

A cross-section of RELO's membership was asked to list the kinds of programs offered by employers in their communities to ease an employe's potential money problems encountered in selling one home and buying another because of a transfer to another company location.

"OF THE MEMBERS who reported one or more types of aid that are included in local companies' transfer programs, 80 per cent listed an employer-funded purchase of equities in the homes transferees must leave in order to accept new positions," Starck said.

Some companies purchase transferred employes' former homes with corporate funds. Others contract with outside firms that specialize in buying, then reselling transferees' properties.

"The newest such equity-purchase program, Trans/Action, has been offered to local employers by Robert W. Starck & Co. and other RELO brokers since the first of the year," Starck said. "Under it, an employer contracts to pay a modest per cent of each transferee home's selling price — which includes real estate brokerage commission and other costs of selling.

"In return, Trans/Action offers the transferee a guaranteed price for his equity, based on independent appraisal of the home's market value. If the transferee gets an outside offer that is higher than the Trans/Action figure, he receives the additional money."

Other types of company help were reported in the RELO survey. Forty-five per cent of responding brokers said firms in their areas offer transferred employes short-term, interest-free loans with which to make down payments on homes in their new locations. Forty-two per cent reported employers in their localities provide low-interest interim financing for purchase of homes by transferees.

Firms buy homes to aid transferees

Some type of employer-funded purchase of the equity in a transferred employe's former home is the most popular means of helping solve transfer-related estate problems among companies that offer any kind of assistance.

This was reported recently by Robert W. Starck, president of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect, in summarizing results of a recent survey among members of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. Robert W. Starck & Co. is one of more than 850 RELO members, whose offices market homes in more than 8,000 cities and towns throughout the United States and Canada and in several nations overseas.

A cross-section of RELO's membership was asked to list the kinds of programs offered by employers in their communities to ease an employe's potential money problems encountered in selling one home and buying another because of a transfer to another company location.

"OF THE MEMBERS who reported one or more types of aid that are included in local companies' transfer programs, 80 per cent listed an employer-funded purchase of equities in the homes transferees must leave in order to accept new positions," Starck said.

Some companies purchase transferred employes' former homes with corporate funds. Others contract with outside firms that specialize in buying, then reselling transferees' properties.

"The newest such equity-purchase program, Trans/Action, has been offered to local employers by Robert W. Starck & Co. and other RELO brokers since the first of the year," Starck said. "Under it, an employer contracts to pay a modest per cent of each transferee home's selling price — which includes real estate brokerage commission and other costs of selling.

"In return, Trans/Action offers the transferee a guaranteed price for his equity, based on independent appraisal of the home's market value. If the transferee gets an outside offer that is higher than the Trans/Action figure, he receives the additional money."

Other types of company help were reported in the RELO survey. Forty-five per cent of responding brokers said firms in their areas offer transferred employes short-term, interest-free loans with which to make down payments on homes in their new locations. Forty-two per cent reported employers in their localities provide low-interest interim financing for purchase of homes by transferees.

Nontaxable income outlined by tax, business law firm

Many taxpayers receive income that is not taxable, according to Commerce Clearing House, a Chicago tax and business law firm.

S&L offers plants as deposit premiums

Palatine Savings & Loan Association is filled with tropical decorator plants — Schefflera, Marginata Dracaena, rubber plants and other exotic greenery fill the lobby — 8-inch pots sell for $5 plus tax and the 10-inch pots are $10 plus tax. These plants are being sold with a deposit of $50 to a savings account. The last day is Feb. 28. Proceeds of all plants sold will be donated to the Northwest Suburban Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Carsons, Amlings set salute to U.S. plants

Long before the United States was celebrating its red-white-and-blue birthdays, this land was giving birth to a thriving life of a different color — Green. In all shapes and sizes, from every kind of soil and climate, the flora of this country is as diverse as its people.

Carson Pirie Scott & Co. salutes this diversity by presenting under its State Street roof a unique garden show entitled "Flora Americana" March 1 through March 20.

The "gardening" of Carsons is the production of Amling's Flowerland, headquartered in Melrose Park. The installation, is a round-the-clock session utilizing Carsons' display department as well as a 45-man team from Amling's.

Amling's indoor landscape division will be on hand throughout the three-week show to ensure the necessary atmospheric conditions and maintain freshness.

Two horticultural experts from Amling's Flowerland are on hand daily to answer questions and conduct tours through "Flora Americana." The tours provide information on the geography and range of climates that produce the various flora regions as well as on the specific plants found in them.

Market dominated by used houses

Thorough check the key to purchasing old home

Chances are the new house you plan to buy this year will be a pre-owned house.

A big reason for this probability is that the homebuilding industry has been operating at a very low level for the last two years. Even though industry problems are beginning to ebb, a big recovery is not expected quickly. Axiomatically, the decline in new home construction has fueled a tremendous spurt in used home sales, both locally and nationally, and more of the same is expected in 1976.

But the prospect of buying a house that has been occupied by other families should not disappoint you.

"After all, thousands of families, including people who have lived in new houses and those who have only lived in used homes, make it a special point only to buy used homes," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"Older homes may have many features that newer homes can't duplicate at today's prices," said Walters, who is general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division. "Multiple wood-burning fireplaces, abundant wood paneling and trim, large high-ceilinged rooms, bedroom suites and full separate dining rooms are some of them."

Since older homes are in established neighborhoods, you can know who the people are, how good the school system is and be comforted by the knowledge that taxes won't go up as fast as they will in a newly developing area.

All of these factors can make an older home a top value. But there's no denying that an older home, no matter how well built, may have some problems associated with age. For that reason, realtors advise sellers to put their house in first-class condition before putting it on the market.

"The buyer of such a house stands a better chance of getting a sound older home if he buys with a realtor's aid," advises Walters.

Over the years as the Chicago area's largest seller of residential properties, Baird & Warner has developed a checklist to guide prospective buyers of older homes. The list also points to things a seller should attend to. Here's what the company suggests:

- Carefully examine the exterior of any house you're thinking of buying. If the house is of frame construction, is the paint in good condition? If brick, is the tuck pointing in good condition?

Peeling paint and crumbling mortar may be signs of more serious deterioration.

- Check for leaky faucets, cracked walls and woodwork, loose doors, knobs, sticky windows and warped doors. All of these defects will have to be repaired once the prospect purchases the house. If these defects are present, they should affect the purchase price.
- Is the heating plant in good condition or will it have to be replaced? Will it accommodate air-conditioning?
- Is the water heater adequate for your needs? A couple with several growing children will need a larger water heater than an older couple living alone.
- Is there a complete set of screens for doors and windows? Storm doors and windows?
- If the house has a basement, is there any evidence of water seepage?
- Are there connections for an automatic washing machine and dryer?
- The kitchen today has become one of the most important rooms in the house. Check to see if it is well laid out and convenient to work in. Are the counter tops and floors in good condition? Will they have to be replaced? Is the cabinet space adequate? For casual meals, is there room for a dining table and chairs?
- Equally important are the bathrooms. Home buyers should check the condition of the tiling around the tub and shower areas as well as around the vanity. If the grouting is not in good condition, it may indicate water leakage that could lead to damaged walls and ceilings.
- Is there adequate closet space in each bedroom? This is especially important to a growing family.
- Is there a separate linen closet centrally located to bedrooms and bathrooms or will linens have to share space with clothes in one of the bedroom closets?
- Is the wiring adequate? Frequently in older homes, unless the wiring has been completely replaced, the electrical system cannot accommodate the myriad of appliances in daily use in contemporary living.
- Are the gutters and downspouts in good condition?
- Are lawns and landscaping in good condition? Overgrown shrubs, dead or dying trees, and scrubby-looking grass may mean extra work or money paid to a landscaper to fix up.

"All in all, an older home can be a tremendous value, provided you shop carefully and choose well," Walters concluded.

Market dominated by used houses

Thorough check the key to purchasing old home

Chances are the new house you plan to buy this year will be a pre-owned house.

A big reason for this probability is that the homebuilding industry has been operating at a very low level for the last two years. Even though industry problems are beginning to ebb, a big recovery is not expected quickly. Axiomatically, the decline in new home construction has fueled a tremendous spurt in used home sales, both locally and nationally, and more of the same is expected in 1976.

But the prospect of buying a house that has been occupied by other families should not disappoint you.

"After all, thousands of families, including people who have lived in new houses and those who have only lived in used homes, make it a special point only to buy used homes," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"Older homes may have many features that newer homes can't duplicate at today's prices," said Walters, who is general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division. "Multiple wood-burning fireplaces, abundant wood paneling and trim, large high-ceilinged rooms, bedroom suites and full separate dining rooms are some of them."

Since older homes are in established neighborhoods, you can know who the people are, how good the school system is and be comforted by the knowledge that taxes won't go up as fast as they will in a newly developing area.

All of these factors can make an older home a top value. But there's no denying that an older home, no matter how well built, may have some problems associated with age. For that reason, realtors advise sellers to put their house in first-class condition before putting it on the market.

"The buyer of such a house stands a better chance of getting a sound older home if he buys with a realtor's aid," advises Walters.

Over the years as the Chicago area's largest seller of residential properties, Baird & Warner has developed a checklist to guide prospective buyers of older homes. The list also points to things a seller should attend to. Here's what the company suggests:

- Carefully examine the exterior of any house you're thinking of buying. If the house is of frame construction, is the paint in good condition? If brick, is the tuck pointing in good condition?

Peeling paint and crumbling mortar may be signs of more serious deterioration.

- Check for leaky faucets, cracked walls and woodwork, loose doors, knobs, sticky windows and warped doors. All of these defects will have to be repaired once the prospect purchases the house. If these defects are present, they should affect the purchase price.
- Is the heating plant in good condition or will it have to be replaced? Will it accommodate air-conditioning?
- Is the water heater adequate for your needs? A couple with several growing children will need a larger water heater than an older couple living alone.
- Is there a complete set of screens for doors and windows? Storm doors and windows?
- If the house has a basement, is there any evidence of water seepage?
- Are there connections for an automatic washing machine and dryer?
- The kitchen today has become one of the most important rooms in the house. Check to see if it is well laid out and convenient to work in. Are the counter tops and floors in good condition? Will they have to be replaced? Is the cabinet space adequate? For casual meals, is there room for a dining table and chairs?
- Equally important are the bathrooms. Home buyers should check the condition of the tiling around the tub and shower areas as well as around the vanity. If the grouting is not in good condition, it may indicate water leakage that could lead to damaged walls and ceilings.
- Is there adequate closet space in each bedroom? This is especially important to a growing family.
- Is there a separate linen closet centrally located to bedrooms and bathrooms or will linens have to share space with clothes in one of the bedroom closets?
- Is the wiring adequate? Frequently in older homes, unless the wiring has been completely replaced, the electrical system cannot accommodate the myriad of appliances in daily use in contemporary living.
- Are the gutters and downspouts in good condition?
- Are lawns and landscaping in good condition? Overgrown shrubs, dead or dying trees, and scrubby-looking grass may mean extra work or money paid to a landscaper to fix up.

"All in all, an older home can be a tremendous value, provided you shop carefully and choose well," Walters concluded.

Trade magazine features Plaza in cover story

Plaza Verde, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, Buffalo Grove, was the featured cover story in the December 1975 edition of "Modern Stores and Offices," an electrical publication.

The center was cited for its landscaping, natural light skylights and artifically-illuminated skylights which "give a feeling of open spaciousness," according to the magazine.

Marvin C. Hymen, developer of Plaza Verde, said, "We are not simply 'another shopping center.' The entire concept of Plaza Verde has been carefully planned to benefit our tenants, their customers and the village as a whole.

"For example, Buffalo Grove is one of the few villages with an appearance commission. The community leaders are interested in presenting an image of planned growth and good taste. We worked very closely with the commission, and our architecture and over-all appearance have been designed to complement the neighborhood for many years to come."

Plaza Verde currently houses more than 25 retail stores and 4 restaurants.

Rubloff announces $1,900,000 sale

Chicago-based Arthur Rubloff & Co. disclosed a recent sales transaction in Schaumburg.

Industrial properties specialist William A. Lederer represented all parties in the $1.9 million sale of an industrial complex of three multi-tenant buildings on approximately five acres at 1200 Remington Rd. in Schaumburg. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States acquired the property as a real estate investment. Arthur Rubloff & Co. will remain as the leasing agent for the recently completed development containing 83,000 square feet of space, including offices and truck level loading docks. Approximately 75 per cent of the space has been leased The seller was Main Bank of Chicago, as trustee. Legal counsels for the seller were Bernard Sang and Vincent Carney of Sturman, Sang, Carney. Counsel for the buyer was Malcom McCartney of Ross, Hardies, O'Keefe, Babcock and Parsons.

LET'S TALK IT OVER
JERRY BOUSCHARD

Some homeowners, who do not understand all the facts about real estate transactions, are reluctant to give a Realtor an "exclusive right to sell." However, when they are serious about wanting to sell, within a reasonable time and at a reasonable price, they can usually understand that an "exclusive" listing is actually best for them.

When a Realtor has an "exclusive," he is not afraid to invest in advertising. He will see that other qualified brokers know about the property. If another broker makes the sale, the single commission is shared so that each receives fair payment for their contribution to the sale.

Planning to sell? Let us explain why an exclusive listing is better for you. Phone or drop in to see me.

Trade magazine features Plaza in cover story

Plaza Verde, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, Buffalo Grove, was the featured cover story in the December 1975 edition of "Modern Stores and Offices," an electrical publication.

The center was cited for its landscaping, natural light skylights and artifically-illuminated skylights which "give a feeling of open spaciousness," according to the magazine.

Marvin C. Hymen, developer of Plaza Verde, said, "We are not simply 'another shopping center.' The entire concept of Plaza Verde has been carefully planned to benefit our tenants, their customers and the village as a whole.

"For example, Buffalo Grove is one of the few villages with an appearance commission. The community leaders are interested in presenting an image of planned growth and good taste. We worked very closely with the commission, and our architecture and over-all appearance have been designed to complement the neighborhood for many years to come."

Plaza Verde currently houses more than 25 retail stores and 4 restaurants.

Eileen Rodgers

Jane Jackson

Honored at the Annen & Busse annual Awards Night banquet recently at The Lancer for surpassing $2 million in real estate sales were two of the firm's Arlington Heights associates EILEEN RODGERS and JANE JACKSON.

These two saleswomen reached this goal in 1975 for the second time. They both have previously been honored as $2 Million Dollar Sales Club members, Eileen Rodgers in 1972 and Jane Jackson in 1973.

Rubloff announces $1,900,000 sale

Chicago-based Arthur Rubloff & Co. disclosed a recent sales transaction in Schaumburg.

Industrial properties specialist William A. Lederer represented all parties in the $1.9 million sale of an industrial complex of three multi-tenant buildings on approximately five acres at 1200 Remington Rd. in Schaumburg. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States acquired the property as a real estate investment. Arthur Rubloff & Co. will remain as the leasing agent for the recently completed development containing 83,000 square feet of space, including offices and truck level loading docks. Approximately 75 per cent of the space has been leased The seller was Main Bank of Chicago, as trustee. Legal counsels for the seller were Bernard Sang and Vincent Carney of Sturman, Sang, Carney. Counsel for the buyer was Malcom McCartney of Ross, Hardies, O'Keefe, Babcock and Parsons.

LET'S TALK IT OVER
JERRY BOUSCHARD

Some homeowners, who do not understand all the facts about real estate transactions, are reluctant to give a Realtor an "exclusive right to sell." However, when they are serious about wanting to sell, within a reasonable time and at a reasonable price, they can usually understand that an "exclusive" listing is actually best for them.

When a Realtor has an "exclusive," he is not afraid to invest in advertising. He will see that other qualified brokers know about the property. If another broker makes the sale, the single commission is shared so that each receives fair payment for their contribution to the sale.

Planning to sell? Let us explain why an exclusive listing is better for you. Phone or drop in to see me.

Love a consideration in property sale

In order to have a valid agreement, there must be a consideration or a price must be paid for the property. If the money does not pass, then the deal is not valid. However, there is an exception to this rule. "Love and affection" can be just as valuable a consideration as cold cash.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have a real problem! I may not be the owner of the house we now live in.

The story begins with a gift from my father. Four years ago, his health started to fail. At that time he decided to give away most of his property. To me he gave a beautiful nine-room house worth about $60,000. My father passed away two years later.

The second part of the story begins with my husband. This year he decided to get into real estate. He is going to school.

One of his assignments was to prepare a deed. He used our house as an example. This is when he discovered that the consideration in the deed was $100. Worse yet, there is no evidence that the $100 was paid. In fact, there was good reason to believe it wasn't. Now for the problem.

My husband points out that a contract without consideration is not valid. Since the price was set at $100, and that was never paid, the whole transaction, he thinks, is void. He tells me that, in his opinion, my house will now become part of my father's estate. My two brothers and sister would love to get their hands on this house.

Now what do I do? — SCARED.

Tell your husband to go back for more schooling. He has frightened you because he is only giving you half an answer.

It is true that in an ordinary arm's-length transaction there must be consideration, and the money must pass. But this is not the case for a gift — especially one between father and daughter.

In such cases, the consideration can be "love and affection." The fact that the $100 did not change hands does not, in any manner, invalidate the deed. Your father's love for you was more than ample consideration. No money was required.

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My builder wants to start the house in the middle of winter. He says freezing weather doesn't bother his method of construction. He uses a special chemical called calcium chloride. He compares this chemical to anti-freeze in a car. In that way, he says, he can pour the footings and foundation even if the temperature is zero.

Shall I allow him to start?—WANT A GOOD JOB

Don't! Your house will be in trouble from the start if you do. Calcium chloride cannot be compared with anti-freeze. To appreciably lower the freezing point of concrete would require so much calcium chloride that the concrete would be ruined.

Concrete should never be poured on frozen ground. Once poured, it must be kept at 70 degrees for two or three days — or at 50 degrees for three to five days.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Our son is in trouble. He is four months behind in his mortgage payments, his wife has left him, he owes the finance company $1,800 and there are half a dozen other bills he can't pay. I need not tell you that he is about to lose his house.

Also, he is getting ready to leave town to escape his problems. Before he goes, he wants to turn the house over to us, his parents. The house is in his name, so he won't have any trouble giving us the deed. He says that in the way we will be the owners of the property — and the creditors will not be able to do anything because they will be unable to catch up with him.

Can my son do that he says?—AN ESCAPE PLAN

Your son can give you a deed, but it will not mean anything. In fact, all you'll get from it is grief and harassment.

To start with, the wife not signing off messes up the title. The bank still has the right to foreclose, but now, in addition to your son, they will join you in the action. Also, all the creditors probably have liens against the property by now.

You are getting a true trojan horse as a gift. Don't accept it!

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The electric company has just ruined my yard. They have mutilated four beautiful oak trees I planted 25 years ago.

Through the years, my plantings have grown tall and straight — while I have grown bent and stooped. In summer, the shade they cast makes the yard a delight. All this has now changed.

Last week, when I was out shopping, a crew from the electric company arrived and mutilated them. They cut down the branches to half their size. Of course, I screamed! They tell me they had the right to do this because the tree branches were interfering with the electric wires.

Who gave them that right? I never did — and I have owned the house since it was built.—MY TREES ARE NAKED.

You didn't, but the builder of your house did. Way back, while your house was being built, he gave the electric company an easement so that they could put up the poles and string the wires.

Included in the easement was the right to cut down and trim all trees and shrubbery that might in any way interfere with service.

Love a consideration in property sale

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

In order to have a valid agreement, there must be a consideration or a price must be paid for the property. If the money does not pass, then the deal is not valid. However, there is an exception to this rule. "Love and affection" can be just as valuable a consideration as cold cash.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have a real problem! I may not be the owner of the house we now live in.

The story begins with a gift from my father. Four years ago, his health started to fail. At that time he decided to give away most of his property. To me he gave a beautiful nine-room house worth about $60,000. My father passed away two years later.

The second part of the story begins with my husband. This year he decided to get into real estate. He is going to school.

One of his assignments was to prepare a deed. He used our house as an example. This is when he discovered that the consideration in the deed was $100. Worse yet, there is no evidence that the $100 was paid. In fact, there was good reason to believe it wasn't. Now for the problem.

My husband points out that a contract without consideration is not valid. Since the price was set at $100, and that was never paid, the whole transaction, he thinks, is void. He tells me that, in his opinion, my house will now become part of my father's estate. My two brothers and sister would love to get their hands on this house.

Now what do I do? — SCARED.

Tell your husband to go back for more schooling. He has frightened you because he is only giving you half an answer.

It is true that in an ordinary arm's-length transaction there must be consideration, and the money must pass. But this is not the case for a gift — especially one between father and daughter.

In such cases, the consideration can be "love and affection." The fact that the $100 did not change hands does not, in any manner, invalidate the deed. Your father's love for you was more than ample consideration. No money was required.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My builder wants to start the house in the middle of winter. He says freezing weather doesn't bother his method of construction. He uses a special chemical called calcium chloride. He compares this chemical to anti-freeze in a car. In that way, he says, he can pour the footings and foundation even if the temperature is zero.

Shall I allow him to start?—WANT A GOOD JOB

Don't! Your house will be in trouble from the start if you do. Calcium chloride cannot be compared with anti-freeze. To appreciably lower the freezing point of concrete would require so much calcium chloride that the concrete would be ruined.

Concrete should never be poured on frozen ground. Once poured, it must be kept at 70 degrees for two or three days — or at 50 degrees for three to five days.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Our son is in trouble. He is four months behind in his mortgage payments, his wife has left him, he owes the finance company $1,800 and there are half a dozen other bills he can't pay. I need not tell you that he is about to lose his house.

Also, he is getting ready to leave town to escape his problems. Before he goes, he wants to turn the house over to us, his parents. The house is in his name, so he won't have any trouble giving us the deed. He says that in the way we will be the owners of the property — and the creditors will not be able to do anything because they will be unable to catch up with him.

Can my son do that he says?—AN ESCAPE PLAN

Your son can give you a deed, but it will not mean anything. In fact, all you'll get from it is grief and harassment.

To start with, the wife not signing off messes up the title. The bank still has the right to foreclose, but now, in addition to your son, they will join you in the action. Also, all the creditors probably have liens against the property by now.

You are getting a true trojan horse as a gift. Don't accept it!

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The electric company has just ruined my yard. They have mutilated four beautiful oak trees I planted 25 years ago.

Through the years, my plantings have grown tall and straight — while I have grown bent and stooped. In summer, the shade they cast makes the yard a delight. All this has now changed.

Last week, when I was out shopping, a crew from the electric company arrived and mutilated them. They cut down the branches to half their size. Of course, I screamed! They tell me they had the right to do this because the tree branches were interfering with the electric wires.

Who gave them that right? I never did — and I have owned the house since it was built.—MY TREES ARE NAKED.

You didn't, but the builder of your house did. Way back, while your house was being built, he gave the electric company an easement so that they could put up the poles and string the wires.

Included in the easement was the right to cut down and trim all trees and shrubbery that might in any way interfere with service.

Several significant factors are responsible for the consistent sales volume increase of the MAP Mutliple Listing Real Estate Service and these factors were outlined at the recent MAP directors meeting where the January sales report was released.

The most significant factor is the real estate market in general and the greater Northwest suburban area in particular. "The general real estate market remains healthy," says Stan Lieberman, president of MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service, "and of course, the Northwest Chicago suburbs continues to be a most desirable living area; consequently, we do enjoy a better than average flow of home buyers who know the value of dealing with a professional real estate broker to assure quick, trouble-free service satisfaction."

Another contributing factor in the MAP sales increases is reflected in a recent report by the National Association of Realtors which shows that during 1975 new single family home sales lagged behind the existing home market. Price, supply and cost and availability of financing for homes resulted in a greater recovery in existing single family home sales in 1975 as compared with sales of new single family homes.

"Probably the most important reason for the strong performance of the resale market was the cost and availability of financing. Existing homes which had an assumable low interest rate have a competitive edge over new structures requiring new mortgage financing," stated Lieberman.

The MAP Multiple Listing Service reported 632 transactions during January, 1976, resulting in over $29 million in real estate sales, an increase of almost 50 per cent over the same period in 1975, and an increase of over 34 per cent over the preceeding month. As previously reported, the MAP organization established an all time high sales volume in 1975 of $343,537,409.

"We are noticeably proud of our 1975 sales record," says Lieberman, "and we have every reason to believe that 1976 will continue to reflect buyer confidence in the economy recovery and in the real estate market."

Big profits found in firewood sales, service

Happiness a warm hearth for young businessmen

ATLANTA (UPI)—George Hart, a 34-year-old Harvard Business School graduate, makes house calls at all hours of the night to show people how to build fires in their fireplaces.

Bob Wardle, 29, a Georgia Tech graduate in industrial management, makes similar house calls. He also spends hours at an old warehouse in downtown Atlanta splitting oak and hickory.

They are business partners in a venture called "Firewood Co." which sells firewood, then calls on its customers if the wood doesn't burn properly.

ALSO WORKING IN the new company are Norbert Ecker, 25, and Walt Stone, 27. Ecker is a graduate engineer taking chemistry so he can enter Johns Hopkins University next fall. Stone is studying for his Ph.D in chemistry.

Hart and Wardle believe they may be getting in on the ground floor of a potentially booming business. What they're selling that's different, in addition to their house calls, is "processed firewood" bundled neatly with plastic bands, consisting only of hard wood and measured precisely as to firewood cord, half a cord or bundle. It is clean and stacks neatly.

Each firewood cord consists of one-third dry or cured wood, one-third seasoned wood that's mostly dry, and green wood.

A cord costs $70 at the warehouse or $80 delivered.

The company "office" is the middle of the warehouse floor. A wood-burning stove warms visitors. On all sides are racks of pungent oak and hickory. Baskets of "fat light-ard" sit on a table. "Fat light-ard" is a type of pine wood, heavy with resin and readily ignited.

WHEN HART OR Wardle make a house call, they take along a little brown box equipped with a meter and a two-pronged skwer-like instrument. It operates electrically and gives an exact reading on the moisture content of the wood. With the box, Hart can readily tell a customer if his dying fire is caused by burning wood that's too green.

Hart was out until 9 o'clock one night recently, showing a young couple how to start a fire in their fireplace.

"He was gone so long," said his blonde wife, Penny, 33, "that I started to call the police."

"Hart said he spent so much time on thecall "because I love wood . . . not just the selling of it but the enjoying of it."

Hart's boyhood home near Gray, Ga., had nine fireplaces. "Some of my fondest memories of childhood revolve around the hearth," he said.

"Most young people love a wood-burning fireplace and get a real feeling of accomplishment from building a fire," he added, "but many of them don't know how to start a fire."

HART, youngish-looking and with a preference for bluejeans, owns the old warehouse that headquarters his Firewood Co. He sells commercial real estate and is on the board of directors of several small businesses. But he spends 90 per cent of his time selling firewood and drinking coffee around the stove with customers and visitors.

The business has been in operation about three months. In that time it has picked up 510 customers and sold 150 cords of wood for $23,000 dollars. Hart says it is the first small enterprise he has ever been associated with that's been so sucessful from the start. A market study, he says, indicates that his firm can do $500,000 worth of firewood business annually in the Atlanta area in years to come.

"Our only limitation right now is what we can get out the door," Hart said, adding that when summer comes he plans to warehouse all the firewood he can get and let it dry out. "We found out," he said, "that people want seasoned firewood."

He believes the energy crisis is going to get worse and that this country, which stopped using wood as a fuel years ago, will return to this renewable resource.

"Wood is going to come back to life," Hart said. He tells his customers, "We will be happy to discuss any of your firebuilding problems in general. In fact, if you'd like to come down and have a cup of coffee with us around our pot-bellied stove — we'd love to see you."

New ski area near Vail built with nature in mind

AVON, Colo. (UPI) — Willis Nottingham regarded his 2,200 acres of Aspen-lined meadow in the Colorado Rockies as a fine cattle ranch. Vail Associates envisioned the tract as the most environmentally sound ski area in the nation.

Nottingham refused VA's first purchase offer in the early 1960s. However, he gave in three years ago to an offer of better property in northwestern Colorado plus a substantial amount of cash.

Christened for the Eagle River tributary running through the area, Beaver Creek has been designed as a 10-12 chairlift ski area which harmonizes with rather than destroys its surroundings.

LOCATED 10 MILES west of President Ford's favorite ski slopes at Vail, Beaver Creek has been planned with an internal mass transit system, a water purification plant and stiff building regulations to minimize environmental effects. Vail Associates even has made plans to ban traditional fireplaces if smoke emission threatens air quality.

Offering summer sports as well as winter, Beaver Creek has a projected population of 12,000 by its 1990 completion date at a total cost of $20 million. VA hopes the first skiers will take to the slopes by 1979.

Bob Barker, senior vice president of VA, envisions the area as a model for all future environmentally sound recreation projects, and a necessary one.

"If recreation has a future in this country, it has to be along environmentally sensitive lines," he said. "It is not possible in this day and age for an environmentally unsound area to make it. People are now buying the environment as part of their experience."

BOUNDED ON all four sides by National Forest lands to halt further growth, Beaver Creek, for all its environmental considerations, has drawn considerable criticism.

Although VA has completed several impact and pollution studies, state government officials and conservationists have opposed the area since its inception. Gov. Richard Lamm joined the battle this year and won a year's delay in construction so another environmental impact study could be made.

"We believe the basic environmental concerns at Beaver Creek have now been clearly answered, so another review will only serve as further confirmation of the development plan's soundness," said Richard Peterson, VA president.

And considering the mounting demand for recreational facilities, opposition to the area is fighting a losing battle, according to Parker.

THE ANSWER to the supply-demand dilemma in recreation, Parker said, is quality areas providing challenges while minimizing the pressure on the environment.

"No-growth is not the answer; it is carefully controlled growth," he said. Experience shows the challenge seeking American is more than willing to pay extra for an environmentally attractive and balanced area.

He said the costs of an environmentally sensitive area are immense and a major rason why mountains will never be overrun with ski slopes, golf courses and frustrated modern sportsmen. A further limitation, he said, is that only six sites with sufficient snowfall, slope, access to water and smiliar requisites for winter sports exist in the Rockies. He said only a handful of recreation companies, including Aspen Ski Corp., VA and Walt Disney Inc., have the financial resources to develop the sites.

"Recreation is much like oil or mining, it is extremely capital intensive," Parker said. "But it is different in that we have a totally renewable resource if we are careful."

Guides to follow for house check

by MERLE E. DOWD

Q. "I've been impressed with several old houses that were completely rehabilitated into modern homes at what I believe was less than building a new one by a substantial margin. But, I'm afraid to buy an old house that might have shaky foundations or termites. Will a thorough inspection assure a sound structure in a house?" — C.A.

A. If you are willing to tackle a rehabilitation job of that magnitude, you must be knowledgeable about house structure and systems. You could follow a checkout system detailed in a new handbook published by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, "New Life for Old Dwellings," USDA Handbook 481, available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The cost is $1.70.

If you would prefer an outside opinion, look in the classified section of your telephone directory under "Building Inspectors." Some inspectors in a few cities now offer an insured inspection service. If the inspector misses something serious in the structure that must be repaired within a set time, they will pick up the tab for correction. Other inspectors may render only an opinion.

Q. "Last year the penalty rate charged on income taxes not paid on time was increased to 9 per cent from 6 per cent. What is the rate likely to be this year?" — W.T.

A. The Internal Revenue Service began varying the rate charged on back taxes and on its own delayed refunds in 1975 according to the prime rate charged by 90 per cent of the major banks in the United States.

For years the rate was 6 per cent, but last year the rate began at 9 per cent. Starting Feb. 1, 1976, the rate was 7 per cent and will remain at that rate for the next 12 months.

Q. "Christmas left us further in debt, and now I'm worried about my wages being garnisheed. I think the stores cannot take all my money. How much can I keep if I am garnisheed?" — M.P.

A. Since 1974, only that part of your wages in excess of a minimum can be garnisheed. The federal minimum wage for 1976 increases to $2.30 an hour if you are working in a nonagricultural job. For agricultural workers, the minimum will be $2.00 for 1976.

If your take-home pay (the amount left after income and Social Security tax withholding) is $69 or less, no part of your wages can be garnished. If your wages exceed $92 per week, no more than 25 per cent of your take-home pay is subject to garnishment.

If you are paid less often than once a week, your employer or the Labor Department can convert your take-home earnings to a weekly scale. If paying your bills continues to be a problem, you should seek outside help from a local office of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, if one is available, or some similar help.

Ask your employer to recommend a counselor; usually this type of help is available without cost or for a minimum fee. Do not ask help from a commercial debt adjuster who will take 15 per cent of any money as a fee.

Q. "Cooking in an automatic slow-cooker appeals to me because I can fix dinner before I leave for work. Plus, long slow cooking tenderizes the less expensive cuts of beef that I was not able to use before. But, I'm worried about not killing all the bacteria in meat. Is the temperature in crock cookers high enough to be safe?"—B.R.

A. Most slow cookers hold foods at temperatures between 160-180 degrees F when set at low heat. Food poisoning bacteria are killed at temperatures as low as 160 degrees, according to Dr. Steve Drake, food scientist at Washington State University.

Most cookers raise the temperature to 160 degrees quickly, but check your cooker with a thermometer if you are concerned. Electrical fires from leaving the cooker plugged in without anyone around could be more of a hazard than food poisoning. Leave the cooker in a sink or other relatively safe spot and make sure the fuse or circuit breaker works.

Guides to follow for house check

by MERLE E. DOWD

Q. "I've been impressed with several old houses that were completely rehabilitated into modern homes at what I believe was less than building a new one by a substantial margin. But, I'm afraid to buy an old house that might have shaky foundations or termites. Will a thorough inspection assure a sound structure in a house?" — C.A.

A. If you are willing to tackle a rehabilitation job of that magnitude, you must be knowledgeable about house structure and systems. You could follow a checkout system detailed in a new handbook published by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture,"New Life for Old Dwellings," USDA Handbook 481, available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The cost is $1.70.

If you would prefer an outside opinion, look in the classified section of your telephone directory under "Building Inspectors." Some inspectors in a few cities now offer an insured inspection service. If the inspector misses something serious in the structure that must be repaired within a set time, they will pick up the tab for correction. Other inspectors may render only an opinion.

Q. "Last year the penalty rate charged on income taxes not paid on time was increased to 9 per cent from 6 per cent. What is the rate likely to be this year?" — W.T.

A. The Internal Revenue Service began varying the rate charged on back taxes and on its own delayed refunds in 1975 according to the prime rate charged by 90 per cent of the major banks in the United States.

For years the rate was 6 per cent, but last year the rate began at 9 per cent. Starting Feb. 1, 1976, the rate was 7 per cent and will remain at that rate for the next 12 months.

Q. "Christmas left us further in debt, and now I'm worried about my wages being garnisheed. I think the stores cannot take all my money. How much can I keep if I am garnisheed?" — M.P.

A. Since 1974, only that part of your wages in excess of a minimum can be garnisheed. The federal minimum wage for 1976 increases to $2.30 an hour if you are working in a nonagricultural job. For agricultural workers, the minimum will be $2.00 for 1976.

If your take-home pay (the amount left after income and Social Security tax withholding) is $69 or less, no part of your wages can be garnished. If your wages exceed $92 per week, no more than 25 per cent of your take-home pay is subject to garnishment.

If you are paid less often than once a week, your employer or the Labor Department can convert your take-home earnings to a weekly scale. If paying your bills continues to be a problem, you should seek outside help from a local office of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, if one is available, or some similar help.

Ask your employer to recommend a counselor; usually this type of help is available without cost or for a minimum fee. Do not ask help from a commercial debt adjuster who will take 15 per cent of any money as a fee.

Q. "Cooking in an automatic slow-cooker appeals to me because I can fix dinner before I leave for work. Plus, long slow cooking tenderizes the less expensive cuts of beef that I was not able to use before. But, I'm worried about not killing all the bacteria in meat. Is the temperature in crock cookers high enough to be safe?"—B.R.

A. Most slow cookers hold foods at temperatures between 160-180 degrees F when set at low heat. Food poisoning bacteria are killed at temperatures as low as 160 degrees, according to Dr. Steve Drake, food scientist at Washington State University.

Most cookers raise the temperature to 160 degrees quickly, but check your cooker with a thermometer if you are concerned. Electrical fires from leaving the cooker plugged in without anyone around could be more of a hazard than food poisoning. Leave the cooker in a sink or other relatively safe spot and make sure the fuse or circuit breaker works.

Energy unit urges apartment meters

Apartment dwellers whose electricity bill is included in monthly rental payments often use more than double the power consumed by tenants who pay their own utility bills.

That's the finding of a study conducted by the Midwest Research Institute for the Federal Energy Administration. The report said the potential energy savings from the elimination of master meters can amount to millions of barrels of oil each year.

Tenants who live in master-metered apartment buildings will not be affected by a switch to individual meters if the cost of conversion is great, said Marilyn McGee, director of the Baird & Warner, Inc., property management office in Arlington Heights.

SHE PREDICTED an increasing number of new apartment buildings will feature individual meters to cut utility bills.

"One reason why people choose apartments is because they can budget according to their monthly rental rate," Ms. McGee said. She added an estimated 20 per cent boost in electricity costs during 1976 and rising rates for natural gas account for the trend of higher rental rates. "It's very difficult for owners to continue to operate and manage a building where there are these increasing costs," she said.

The study by the Midwest Research Institute includes the following conclusions:

- In some cities master-metered tenants used more than double the electricity of their counterparts who paid their own electric bills, and on an average master-metered apartment dwellers used 35 to 37 per cent more electricity. Most of the waste was found in lighting and household appliance use. But the Boston Edison Co. reported an annual loss of $3.2 million from air conditioners running in empty, master-metered apartments during peak use hours.
- Roughly one-third of the apartment buildings in the United States are master metered and in 1975 they used about 26 billion kilowatt hours of electricity. Had they been on individual meters, a savings of about 7 billion kilowatt hours would have eliminated the need for one large nuclear power plant. This would be the equivalent of saving 13 million barrels of oil a year or 35,000 barrels a day.
- While less data is available for office buildings, it was estimated 5 to 10 per cent of electrical use could be saved through individual metering, or 32,000 to 64,000 barrels of oil daily.
- Rewiring all existing master-metered apartments to individual meters would cost about $1.3 billion, but could result in an energy savings by the year 1990 of 25.8 million barrels of oil a year. Banning future construction with master meters but permitting existing master meters to stay would save about half as much energy.

"IT IS CLEAR that new federal legislation requiring individual metering of electricity for all residential dwelling units has the broadest impact and yields the greatest potential savings," the study said.

It suggested the ban could be accomplished most realistically by first preventing master meters on new construction and then using economic incentives such as tax credits to encourage retrofitting of already existing master-metered apartments.

That would require action by Congress, which could take some time, the study said, but in the meantime federal agencies could, with an executive order, move immediately to require individual meters on federal program housing and retrofittings on government-owned buildings.

Good year for brokers predicted

"I expect 1976 to be the finest year I have ever seen in real estate!" said Robert L. Zaun, president of the 12 Homefinders offices in the Northwest suburbs.

"The American people are tired of being held down" is the basis for Zaun's forecast.

Specifically, Zaun points to the following positive indicators for a "super '76" in real estate:

- Interest rates have stabilized since mid-1975 and gone down steadily since October, and this has happened in the face of the greatest U. S. Treasury borrowings in history. In addition, inflation and interest rates are now well below the double-digit rates of a year ago.
- From January through June, 1975, savings and loan associations took in the greatest inflow of funds compared to any other similar period in the history of savings institutions. In fact, these six-month figures were greater than any 12 month period in history, with the exception of 1972.
- Home prices have increased 100 per cent in the last decade, but median family income has increased 110 per cent during the same period. This does not include a qualitative adjustment for appliances, air conditioning and similar costly items which were not included 10 years ago. Although the percentage of eligible home buyers has decreased in the last two years, the total market has increased approximately 40 per cent.

"Furthermore," states Zaun, "we are witnessing increased activity in the secondary mortgage markets. Investors are becoming more active and will soon outnumber available quality loan packages. So we aren't letting the 'gloom and doom' forecasters get us down!"

The contrast between the last two Christmas seasons illustrates Zaun's optimism for the current year. The 1974 holiday season saw reduced buying by the American public for the worst Christmas sales in many years. In contrast, as the economy began to improve, the American public began spending again in the last half of 1975, and as a result the holiday season was one of the finest for merchants in recent years.

"I also feel that the economy as well as the morale of the public will soar as a result of this year's Bicentennial celebrations," adds Zaun.

"The American people are tired of being held down" is the basis for Zaun's forecast.

Specifically, Zaun points to the following positive indicators for a "super '76" in real estate:

- Interest rates have stabilized since mid-1975 and gone down steadily since October, and this has happened in the face of the greatest U. S. Treasury borrowings in history. In addition, inflation and interest rates are now well below the double-digit rates of a year ago.
- From January through June, 1975, savings and loan associations took in the greatest inflow of funds compared to any other similar period in the history of savings institutions. In fact, these six-month figures were greater than any 12 month period in history, with the exception of 1972.
- Home prices have increased 100 per cent in the last decade, but median family income has increased 110 per cent during the same period. This does not include a qualitative adjustment for appliances, air conditioning and similar costly items which were not included 10 years ago. Although the percentage of eligible home buyers has decreased in the last two years, the total market has increased approximately 40 per cent.

"Furthermore," states Zaun, "we are witnessing increased activity in the secondary mortgage markets. Investors are becoming more active and will soon outnumber available quality loan packages. So we aren't letting the 'gloom and doom' forecasters get us down!"

The contrast between the last two Christmas seasons illustrates Zaun's optimism for the current year. The 1974 holiday season saw reduced buying by the American public for the worst Christmas sales in many years. In contrast, as the economy began to improve, the American public began spending again in the last half of 1975, and as a result the holiday season was one of the finest for merchants in recent years.

"I also feel that the economy as well as the morale of the public will soar as a result of this year's Bicentennial celebrations," adds Zaun.

Check moving cost

Don't let rent increases stampede you into move

If you're an apartment renter facing a rent increase this spring, don't let yourself be stampeded into a move. You might have a better deal than you realize where you are now living, and the cost of moving might wipe out any saving you expect from a less expensive apartment.

That's the advice of the man who broke the news that rents of Chicago area buildings managed by Baird & Warner, Inc. will go up an average of 7 per cent on leases taking effect May 1.

"Averages are frequently misleading," said William D. Sally, CPM, vice president and general manager of the company's property management division, which is one of the leading management companies in the area.

There are great variances from building to building, depending on operating expenses and vacancies, he said. Operating expenses, including fuel, utilities, insurance, maintenance, supplies and management services have all continued to climb, shrinking profit margins for owners and making rent increases necessary.

"Many of the specific increases are moderate, especially in the face of what is happening to operating costs. The biggest increases are occurring where expenses rose dramatically, where the tenant is having a two-year lease expire, or if last year's increase was kept substantially lower than it should have been, especially in new buildings, because of competitive pressures," Sally said. In other words, the people who are getting the biggest increases this year are those who, for the most part, got the biggest breaks last year. On a pro rata basis they are no worse off than people who got lower rent increases last year and again this year.

Sally also points out that the slump in apartment construction has narrowed the supply and there really aren't that many bargains to be found in choice locations close to work, public transportation and so on.

Finally, there is the reality of the high costs of moving.

"When you take into account all moving expenses, plus the possible added expenses of living in a new location, it could add to a hefty amount," Sally said. Here are the things you should consider:

- How much will it cost you to move? If you use a commercial moving company, figure on paying at least $50 an hour for three men and a van. Depending on whether the movers do all the packing and unpacking or you do, the move could take up to a half-day or longer. The tab: around $250 or more.
- How much will you pay to make up for damage and breakage during moving? This may be minimal if professional movers do the job, or it could be a lot if you're a do-it-yourselfer. Pictures and lamps are frequent casualties.
- How much will it cost you to refurnish? By refurnish, Sally refers to buying new carpeting and draperies to fit your new apartment, since in most cases your present carpeting and draperies won't fit. If your tastes aren't extravagant, you might get away for $800.
- What additional utilities will you be paying? Depending on the heating and electrical system, you would wind up paying more for electricity and gas. Of course, you could wind up paying less. Investigate to find out. Be sure to find out what you'll have to pay for hook-up and installation charges, plus deposits that some utilities may require.
- Will your amenities cost you more? Buildings vary in what they charge for things like using the swimming pool, saunas and tennis courts. If you use these facilities, find out what they'll cost in the place you are considering.
- Will parking cost you more? The more centrally located a building is, the more you'll pay for garage parking and the harder it will be to find street parking. Conversely, the further out you go, the cheaper parking becomes.
- Will transportation cost you more? You may be presently living in an apartment close to public transportation, such as the CTA or a commuter bus or rail line. If you move further out, your transportation costs will rise. A 25 cent per trip increase amounts to $125 more a year. Or you may have to buy a car.
- What about shopping? Check how far it is to stores from the new place you're considering. Also check the stores' prices. It costs less if you're within walking distance of a number of competitive stores.
- How much more will you have to pay for a security deposit in the new building?

"All of these elements have to be checked and balanced against what you expect to save in rent," Sally said.

Suppose you live in a $250 per month one-bedroom apartment and you get a 15 per cent increase. That's $37.50 more per month and $450 more per year. You find another one-bedroom apartment a little farther out where the rent is $260 a month. That's just a $10 increase or $120 a year. So if you move, you expect to save $330 (the difference between $450 and $120.)

"But moving expenses will wipe out more than half of the expenses, refurnishing will take care of the rest, and you may wind up in the hole when you add in the other expenses," the Baird & Warner executive said.

On top of that, a year from now you'll probably be faced with another increase as that owner tries to catch up on expenses. Many landlords are not giving leases for more than one year in most cases, to protect themselves against cost increases. So you'll be faced with the same situation all over again.

Don't forget windows when planning a home

How windows are placed, their size and the glass that is used in them are important aspects to be considered in planning a home in order to gain more livability and operating economy through energy conservation.

This attention to "window detail" can influence fuel savings in a new house, and also should be a definite consideration when designing the room additions many families are making to their present home.

To begin with, keep in mind that a southern exposure opens the house to the maximum amount of daylight and also to the greatest amount of solar heat in the winter. Therefore, the windows on the south side of a house should be large, and they should be planned in conjunction with a properly engineered roof overhang.

"It's a mistake to underrate the value of free solar heating when it comes to home design," says John Pike, manager of Libbey-Owens-Ford Company's residential market. "When a house is totally planned and built to utilize sun heat, the cost of winter fuel bills can be greatly reduced. Even a room addition with big south-facing windows can operate comfortably many days without supplementary heat."

So if you move, you expect to save $330 (the difference between $450 and $120.)

"But moving expenses will wipe out more than half of the expenses, refurnishing will take care of the rest, and you may wind up in the hole when you add in the other expenses," the Baird & Warner executive said.

On top of that, a year from now you'll probably be faced with another increase as that owner tries to catch up on expenses. Many landlords are not giving leases for more than one year in most cases, to protect themselves against cost increases. So you'll be faced with the same situation all over again.

Don't forget windows when planning a home

How windows are placed, their size and the glass that is used in them are important aspects to be considered in planning a home in order to gain more livability and operating economy through energy conservation.

This attention to "window detail" can influence fuel savings in a new house, and also should be a definite consideration when designing the room additions many families are making to their present home.

To begin with, keep in mind that a southern exposure opens the house to the maximum amount of daylight and also to the greatest amount of solar heat in the winter. Therefore, the windows on the south side of a house should be large, and they should be planned in conjunction with a properly engineered roof overhang.

"It's a mistake to underrate the value of free solar heating when it comes to home design," says John Pike, manager of Libbey-Owens-Ford Company's residential market. "When a house is totally planned and built to utilize sun heat, the cost of winter fuel bills can be greatly reduced. Even a room addition with big south-facing windows can operate comfortably many days without supplementary heat."

Buffalo Grove wins league crown

Bison defense, Allsmiller send Conant to 48-28 loss

by ART MUGALIAN

Defense was never like this, even in the old days of basketball when teams traded 30-footers and prayed for them to go in.

The defense displayed by the Buffalo Grove Bison Wednesday night in the Mid-Suburban League championship game was more formidable than anything the U.S. Army ever threw at an enemy.

It was defense like you've never seen.

The Bison defense was so impenetrable that South-division champion Conant sank just 12 of their 51 shots from the floor of the Buffalo Grove gym.

And it was good enough for Buffalo Grove to coast to a 48-28 victory over the Cougars, giving coach Paul Grady's Bison an MSL cage title in just their third year of varsity play. The north champs led all the way in posting their 19th win against just four losses.

On another night the Bison defense might not have been so awesome — it was a night to get psyched up.

But Wednesday was no different for 6-foot-8 junior Brian Allsmiller. The all-state candidate tossed in 23 points for the Bison and added 12 rebounds and six blocked shots.

While Allsmiller was cold at the start, teammates Scott Groot and Mike Ledna helped build a 10-4 first quarter lead. Groot hit a 35-footer at the gun to bring the huge crowd to its feet.

Cold streaks were the rule rather than the exception for Conant, however. After playing the first five minutes of the game without a score, Conant got a 12-foot jumper from Pete Scaffidi — and the Cougars trailed just 4-2 at that point.

But Scaffidi, a notorious outside shooter, was shut down the rest of the night and finished with only four points. Combined, Conant's 23 per cent from the field spelled doom for coach Dick Redlinger's team.

It was Buffalo Grove's shifting zone defense that kept Conant away from the hoop, quite literally forcing the Cougars to gun from the outer reaches. And the Conant shooters simply weren't finding the cords.

Another Conant dry spell allowed Buffalo Grove to build a 10-point lead midway through the second quarter, mainly on the shooting of Allsmiller. The tall Bison answered Ron Sulaski's baseline jumper with a pair of free throws for an 18-8 edge, then rejected three Cougar shots in succession to protect the margin.

Helping Allsmiller beat the Conant zone was Groot, a 5-11 junior, who had five baskets for 10 points. Junior forward Fred Heesch had just two points for the Bison, but the big 6-4 muscleman contributed nine rebounds. Tim

Champs earn another meal at Grady home

At this point, Buffalo Grove head coach Paul Grady might be better off going into the restaurant business.

Before the season started he offered up some extra incentive to his charges: A defensive yield below 45 points in any game would be worth a home cooked meal by his wife, Cherris.

And after Wednesday night it would appear steak might be on the agenda at the Grady household some time in the near future. The Bison not only held Conant below 45 points in the Mid-Suburban League title game, they held fast at the 40, 35 and 30 marks as well. In fact, the Cougars were only able to muster up a dozen field goals all night in succumbing to the Grove, 48-28.

"I may be in the poorhouse before it's all over," chuckled Grady. "Before the season we set 45 as a realistic goal, in light of our own normal game tempo. And while I'm eating crow, the team members are literally eating me out of house and home."

Old Mother Hubbard may not have been smiling, but Grady had every reason to be following the big triumph. "If Brian Allsmiller didn't play like an all-stater tonight, I don't know how it's done," the Bison coach beamed. "But he was just part of a super team effort. I couldn't have asked for a better overall performance."

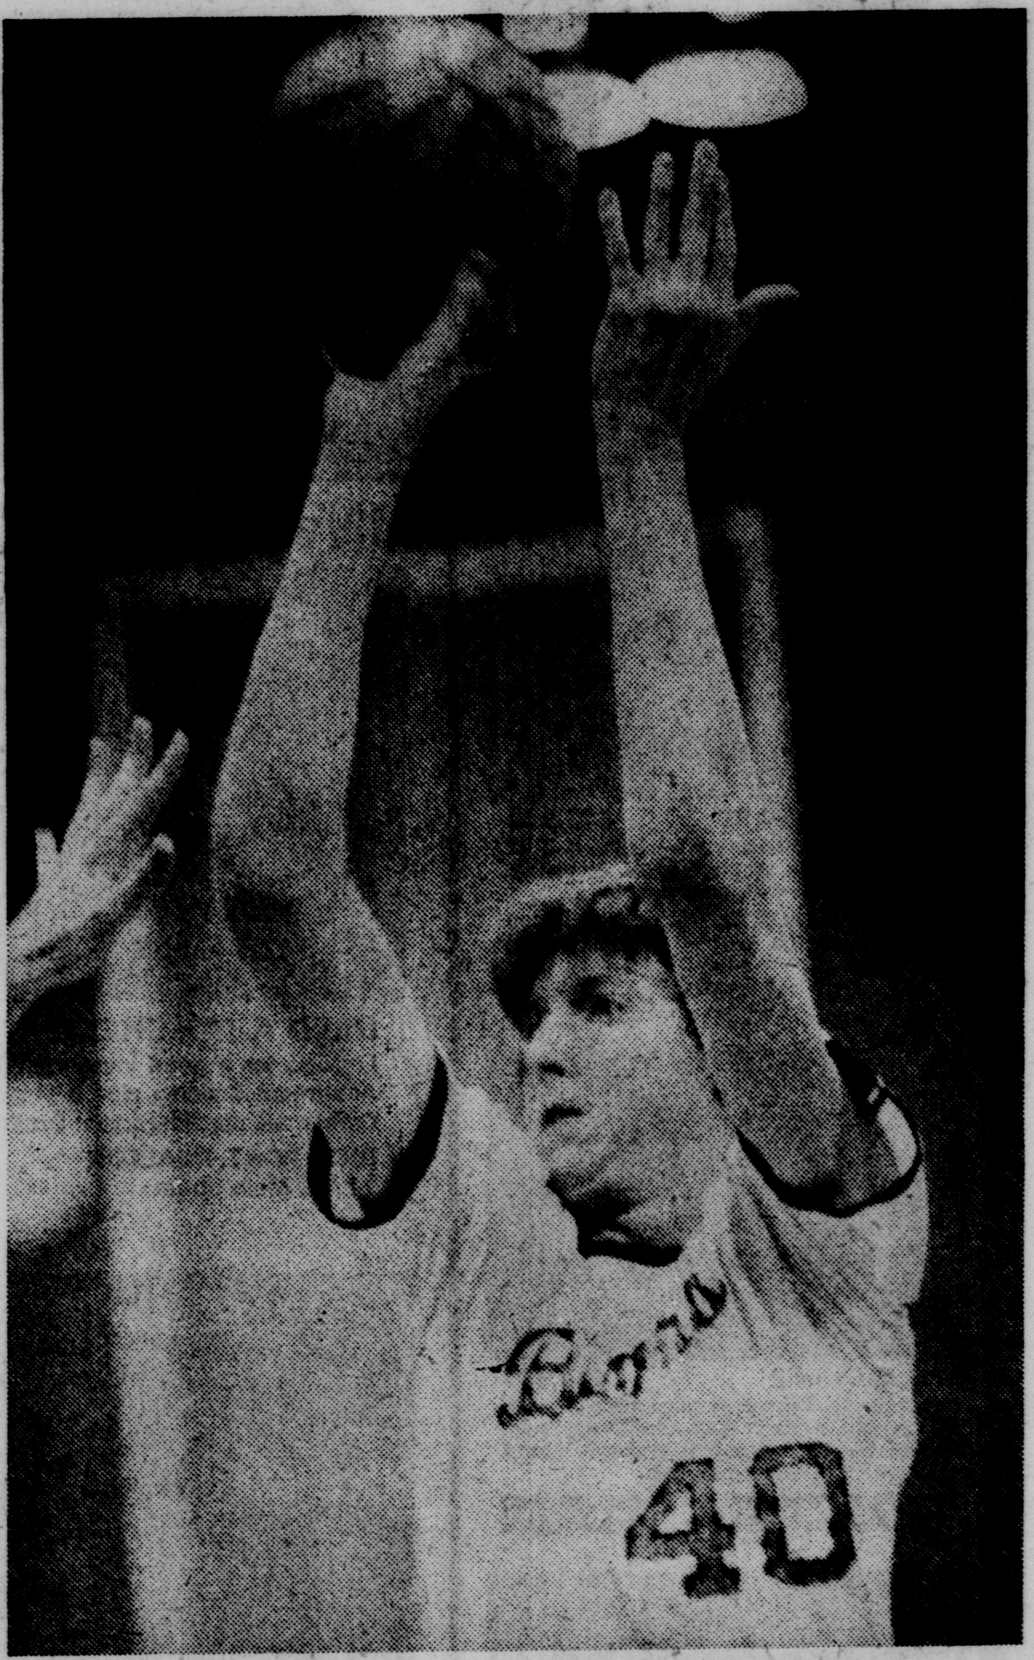
Grady showed particular pleasure over Grove's poise under pressure. "This has been important to us all season and it really showed tonight when patience was such a decisive factor. To win we felt an early lead was necessary and to preserve it required poise. Conant has come from way behind to win more than once this season."

Conant did make a mild run at the Bison midway through the third period, cutting Buffalo Grove's 10-point lead to 26-20. Outside shooting was responsible for closing the gap and after a subsequent adjustment in Grove's defense, the Cougars did not score again from the floor for a full eight minutes.

"Some people may say they just had an off night but I've never been an advocate of this theory," Grady said, "even when it's us on the losing end. When one team's offenses isn't producing, it's usually because the other team's defense is doing the job and I feel very strongly that our defense was the decisive factor in the game tonight."

Last Dec. 7, Buffalo Grove wrote a new standard into its three-years-young school record book. It was for best defensive effort in a game — 29 points — against Round Lake.

They can throw that one out now. And, at the same time, would you mind passing around the mashed potatoes and gravy again, Mrs. Grady?



THE MACHINE. Buffalo Grove's Brian Allsmiller had all eight cylinders functioning smoothly Wednesday night as he scored 23 points, blocked several shots and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Bison to a 48-28 win over Conant in the Mid-Suburban League title game.

One minute to mourn.

"We gave them one minute to celebrate after we beat Schaumburg. And we gave them one minute to celebrate after we beat Forest View to clinch the South title," Dick Redlinger said in the Conant Cougar dressing room after the South Division champions had dropped a 48-28 decision to Buffalo Grove.

"And now we're giving them one minute to mourn before we start looking to the regional."

One minute is 60 seconds too long. That the Cougars were even in the overflowing Buffalo Grove gym for the league championship was amazing.

Amazing because, individually, no Cougar would turn any heads as a basketball player. But together, as a team, they surprised everybody but themselves to win the South title and scrapped with the Bison on even terms until talent and size prevailed.

Their favorite saying is, "We're No. 6." A unifying jab at the "experts" who foresaw them finishing no higher than that in the South Division race.

"I think the kids were too tight," Redlinger said. "And I'd have to take the blame for that. We were telling them all week they'd have to play a good game. That they couldn't make mistakes.

"It looked like they were afraid to run the offense," Redlinger continued. "When we worked it inside we got some baskets but a lot of times we were open but we didn't pass."

Often, when they did get open, the shots they took came back in their faces, courtesy of Brian Allsmiller. The 6-8 junior, a franchise unto himself, blocked eight shots, hit for 23 points and snared 12 rebounds.

"He was rough," said Conant guard Pete Scaffidi. "He blocked one of my shots and then I started thinking about where he was before I shot.

"I think their size intimidated us."

Mike Frisch, Ron Sulaski and Brian O'Donnell, working with the artful feeds of Rob Totten, sucked Allsmiller into a pair of fouls in the first half. But the spectre of foul trouble got no larger for the Bison star.

"We didn't take advantage of the inside," Redlinger said. "We didn't work with what they gave us."

What the Bison didn't give them was the outside shooting that would have loosened up the inside. Scaffidi didn't get off a jumper until the second half but Totten's two buckets from the top of the key brought Conant within range at 26-20 with 3:18 left in the third quarter.

But turnovers and Allsmiller kept the Cougars off the board the rest of the quarter and deep into the fourth. By then it was over.

"We've got to put this behind us and look to the regional now," Redlinger said. "I hope to play a few more games."

The minute to mourn was over.

FREMD'S Doug Smidl took a second on the side horse at the Hersey district with a score of 7.85 and advanced to the first session of the Rolling Meadows Sectional tonight at 7:00. The second session will be Friday.

Hersey, Rolling Meadows, Prospect and Buffalo Grove. Four teams with dreams.

At least one of those Mid-Suburban League gymnastics powers, and possibly more, will load up their bus next week for the sweet trip to the state finals at Prospect.

The winner of the Rolling Meadows Sectional, which will be run in two sessions tonight and Friday at 7 p.m., will join three other district champions and the next two highest scoring teams to battle for the state title that Hinsdale Central currently holds.

Adding to the excitement is the fact that Rolling Meadows, Hersey and Buffalo Grove, district champions all, each hit their high score of the season in taking their respective crowns.

The most stunning performance was turned in by Dennis Mazur's Buffalo Grove Bison, who copped their own district crown with a best-ever 139.39 score. Mazur has set his sights on the 140 mark for the sectional.

"That was the best meet we've ever had," Mazur said. "But I don't think we'll have a chance to win the sectional. We're shooting for Prospect.

"I took the three best scores on each event from all our meets this year and added them up," Mazur continued. "And it totaled 144.64 So we are capable of hitting that.

"But with Hersey and Meadows going around 146 I think it will be between them for the sectional."

With no realistic team hopes the Bison are hoping to grab some individual glory. Fred Bista (free ex), Lee Battaglia (high bar), Dewey Deal (P-Bars) and Mark Farrington (still rings) all took district titles last week.

Deal will also get reacquainted with Mundelein's Jeff Martin in the all-around derby.

"We put in a new side horse routine for the district," Mazur said, "and Dewey wasn't used to it. So we're going back to the routine he's more comfortable with. I think if he hits it and all the other events like he has he'll beat Martin."

But the match between Deal and Martin will take a backseat to the Danny Muenz Show as the Hersey senior, with a district all-around title to his credit, rolls into the sectional

Muenz was more than a point better than the other all-arounders in the district tournament and his 8.06 average set the tone for the Huskies' high mark of the season, 146.21.

"We've got a good chance of winning the sectional," said Hersey coach Don Von Ebers. "It won't be any easier than the conference meet, though. We've got to watch out for Meadows and Prospect can get closer than they did in the district."

‘Jaws’ up close can be a ‘mindblowing’ experience

Like a living battering ram, the 25-foot great white shark bent the diving cage’s bars. Matt Hooper appeared to be its next victim.

This was one of the more chilling moments in the movie “Jaws.”

“It’s called terror,” said Richard Dreyfuss when asked this week what he thought it would really be like seeing a real white shark. As Hooper, he only faced a mechanical monster.

Dreyfuss, presently performing at the Arlington Park Theatre, said he was “supposed to go with Peter (Benchley) last October (to see a real great white), but ABC wouldn’t insure me.”

Earlier this month, four men spent over $5,000 to live such a fantasy.

“It was the biggest ‘up’ any of us ever had in the sea,” said Carl Roessler, the vice president of the San Francisco travel service which set up the Australian trip. “It was absolutely mindblowing!”

During a three-day period, they saw eight great whites. There were four around the boat on one day, including an 18-footer weighing about 3,400 pounds!

These size estimates weren’t made by rookies. Also on board were shark experts Ron and Vallerie Taylor as well as Rodney Fox, who once survived after being in the jaws of one of these sea monsters.

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

“I made up my mind that things were extremely safe,” said John Bell, a business executive and veteran diver from a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. “We had outstanding guides. They added to the safety.”

Unlike the film version, the shark cage was small — 4 foot by 2 foot by 8 foot.

Bell said he was so “engrossed with trying to get good motion pictures,” he wasn’t concerned with the sharks penetrating the half inch steel-barred cage. “There was plenty of food (20-pound chucks of horsemeat) outside the cages for the sharks to bite on.”

He experienced one thrilling, chilling moment. The 18-foot shark accidently got the cage’s rope tangled in its mouth while chewing some horsemeat. Bell became concerned when the huge man-eater dragged the cage completely under water. He was only using a snorkel because the cage was too small to use scuba gear.

After about a 25-second rocky ride, the shark broke free. “I was told later that if it made up its mind to get through the bars, it would have had no trouble getting through them,” said Bell.

If there was any danger, it was on the deck. Besides the boat’s crew and its four tourists, there was a TV film crew from a local station. With so many people taking movies and photographs, everyone had to be careful not to knock someone overboard.

Both Bell and Roessler were impressed with how cautious these sharks were. And there was something else, too, “No matter how carefully you are looking, you never see it coming. They almost always come from behind you,” added Roessler.

Dreyfuss said he would never go swimming or wading in the ocean again. “When you’re unconscious of what’s going on beneath one half of your body, I don’t like that sensation. I’ll only scuba dive so I can see what the bleep is going on.”

The movie has made many people more aware of sharks, but not only as underwater threats. They’ve become moneymakers.

Richard Dreyfuss

“Jaws mania” throughout the world has unfortunately attracted Australian fishermen. Because of the great worth for its huge teeth, the great white shark has become the hunted rather than the hunter.

No developments in baseball talks

Representatives of the major league baseball owners and players held a brief, jet-age style negotiation session here Wednesday, but failed to make any progress in the contract dispute that threatens the upcoming season.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, met for three hours with American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney, and John Gaherin, chief negotiator for the owners.

Feeney said no new proposals were discussed at the meeting and both sides would meet again in New York City Friday.

Miller said no progress was made and termed the meeting “rehash” of the owners’ position.

“We got such reactions, most of the questions were to clarify,” he said.

Asked what the reactions were, Miller replied, “That’s my definition of ‘no progress.’ ”

MacPhail and Feeney announced Monday the owners would not open spring training, scheduled to begin March 1, until a new Basic Agreement was reached with the Players Association.

Miller repeated his charge that the owners’ action was intended to mislead the public into believing the Players Association is holding up the 1976 season because of its demands on the Reserve Clause.

Marquette cagers vs. girls?

Marquette University has come up with a way to raise money for charity that seems like a cross between P.T. Barnum and Mad Magazine.

In a game the sports world may not be ready for, the No. 2 ranked Marquette Warriors next Monday will play the Marquette girls basketball team.

To try to even up the mismatch — the center for the girls team is a towering 5-foot-7 — the Warriors will have to wear boxing gloves and won’t be permitted to enter the free throw lane.

Adding to the fun, Al McGuire will coach the girls and Tat Shiely, coordinator of women’s athletics and the women’s regular coach, will direct the men’s team. The game will be played for laughs and to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund.

For an offense, McGuire said he’ll “come up with some gimmicks to get our people free in the lane” and for defense “maybe I’ll just have them flirt with the guys.”

“We hope to out-finesse them,” McGuire said. “And, hey, I won’t tolerate the hand check. The officials will hear from me if they let that happen.”

NU football gets 4 Chicagoland stars

Quarterback Kevin Strasser, who accumulated 1,221 yards in total offense last season for Elmhurst Immaculate Conception High School, Wednesday signed a national letter of intent to attend Northwestern University next fall.

Wildcats Coach John Pont also announced the signings of fullback-linebacker Tim Lawrence of Brother Rice High School, and of two tackles, Walter Versen of Loyola Academy and James Ford of St. Laurence.

Pont noted that all four “come from winning programs in a very strong football climate in Chicago.”

Strasser was all-conference in the West Suburban Catholic League for three straight years and was named to the all-area team this year. He led the Knights to league championships in 1973 and 1974 and a runnerup finish in 1975. Last season he ran or passed for 16 touchdowns.

Lawrence was selected to the New World all-America high school team this year and led his team to the 1975 city Catholic League championship, averaging more than 100 yards per game rushing. He also was named most valuable player in the post-season prep bowl.

Versen, a 6-foot-5, 245-pounder, and Ford, a 6-foot-4, 268-pounder, were both all-Catholic League picks last fall.

Court hearing in cage bribe case

Two Texas A&M freshmen and their attorneys go into a court-ordered hearing with Southwest Conference officials Thursday to rebutt charges they received bribes to play basketball for the school.

Kenneth W. Herrick, presiding officer of the SWC, said the conference could, after the hearing, disclose the evidence against the two players, Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams.

The same nine faculty representatives, who 12 days ago ruled the evidence merited suspending Godine and Williams, will then vote on whether to reimpose the suspension after the hearing.

The faculty representatives have refused to discuss the merits of the case or their Feb. 15 meeting, in which the vote was taken to suspend the two players through the 1976-77 season. Several SWC officials have said the vote was ‘decisive.”

Since then, though, Godine and Williams have sat out only one game. Three days after the SWC meeting, a federal judge in Dallas ruled the pair did not receive a chance to defend themselves against the charges and, until they did, could not be suspended.

Electrical problems cited in track fire

Electrical problems may have caused the fire that killed 68 harness-racing horses, valued at about a half million dollars, Tuesday at a Cahokia Downs Race Track barn.

William N. Buxton, a state fire marshal, said track personnel told him the complex in which the barn is located had electrical problems “for some time.” Buxton said the fire may have been caused by a faulty circuit breaker panel near the west end of the barn.

The 630-foot barn, which was destroyed by the blaze, was to be equipped with an $850,000 sprinkling system after the racing season ends April 9.

Stonerook added six points to the cause.

Conant’s zone was effective, too. But when Allsmiller found the inside bottled up, he moved outside where he drilled successfully from the 15-and 20-foot range. The big redhead was 10 for 17 for the game, including six baskets in eight attempts in the second half.

It was in the second half, however, that the Cougars made a dash for the Bison. Baskets by Scaffidi and Sulaski and a pair of 20-footers by junior guard Rob Totten closed the gap to 26-20 with 3:18 left in the third quarter.

But Heesch took a nifty pass from Ledna under the bucket for an easy two-pointer, and Allsmiller canned a couple of 18-footers from his favorite spot to the left of the free-throw circle. Suddenly the Bison were up by their biggest margin, 32-20.

Conant went more than seven minutes without a score until Totten made a free throw with four minutes left in the game. The Cougars’ record fell to 14-8 shortly thereafter, but not before the Bison built the lead to 39-20 and iced it away.

'Jaws' up close can be a 'mindblowing' experience

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

Like a living battering ram, the 25-foot great white shark bent the diving cage's bars. Matt Hooper appeared to be its next victim.

This was one of the more chilling moments in the movie "Jaws."

"It's called terror," said Richard Dreyfuss when asked this week what he thought it would really be like seeing a real white shark. As Hooper, he only faced a mechanical monster.

Dreyfuss, presently performing at the Arlington Park Theatre, said he was "supposed to go with Peter (Benchley) last October (to see a real great white), but ABC wouldn't insure me."

Earlier this month, four men spent over $5,000 to live such a fantasy.

"It was the biggest 'up' any of us ever had in the sea," said Carl Roessler, the vice president of the San Francisco travel service which set up the Australian trip. "It was absolutely mindblowing!"

During a three-day period, they saw eight great whites. There were four around the boat on one day, including an 18-footer weighing about 3,400 pounds!

These size estimates weren't made by rookies. Also on board were shark experts Ron and Vallerie Taylor as well as Rodney Fox, who once survived after being in the jaws of one of these sea monsters.

"I made up my mind that things were extremely safe," said John Bell, a business executive and veteran diver from a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. "We had outstanding guides. They added to the safety."

Unlike the film version, the shark cage was small — 4 foot by 2 foot by 8 foot.

Bell said he was so "engrossed with trying to get good motion pictures," he wasn't concerned with the sharks penetrating the half inch steel-barred cage. "There was plenty of food (20-pound chucks of horsemeat) outside the cages for the sharks to bite on."

He experienced one thrilling, chilling moment. The 18-foot shark accidently got the cage's rope tangled in its mouth while chewing some horsemeat. Bell became concerned when the huge man-eater dragged the cage completely under water. He was only using a snorkel because the cage was too small to use scuba gear.

After about a 25-second rocky ride, the shark broke free. "I was told later that if it made up its mind to get through the bars, it would have had no trouble getting through them," said Bell.

If there was any danger, it was on the deck. Besides the boat's crew and its four tourists, there was a TV film crew from a local station. With so many people taking movies and photographs, everyone had to be careful not to knock someone overboard.

Both Bell and Roessler were impressed with how cautious these sharks were. And there was something else, too, "No matter how carefully you are looking, you never see it coming. They almost always come from behind you," added Roessler.

Dreyfuss said he would never go swimming or wading in the ocean again. "When you're unconscious of what's going on beneath one half of your body, I don't like that sensation. I'll only scuba dive so I can see what the bleep is going on."

The movie has made many people more aware of sharks, but not only as underwater threats. They've become moneymakers.

Richard Dreyfuss

"Jaws mania" throughout the world has unfortunately attracted Australian fishermen. Because of the great worth for its huge teeth, the great white shark has become the hunted rather than the hunter.

No developments in baseball talks

Representatives of the major league baseball owners and players held a brief, jet-age style negotiation session here Wednesday, but failed to make any progress in the contract dispute that threatens the upcoming season.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, met for three hours with American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney, and John Gaherin, chief negotiator for the owners.

Feeney said no new proposals were discussed at the meeting and both sides would meet again in New York City Friday.

Miller said no progress was made and termed the meeting "rehash" of the owners' position.

"We got such reactions, most of the questions were to clarify," he said.

Asked what the reactions were, Miller replied, "That's my definition of 'no progress.' "

MacPhail and Feeney announced Monday the owners would not open spring training, scheduled to begin March 1, until a new Basic Agreement was reached with the Players Association.

Miller repeated his charge that the owners' action was intended to mislead the public into believing the Players Association is holding up the 1976 season because of its demands on the Reserve Clause.

Marquette cagers vs. girls?

Marquette University has come up with a way to raise money for charity that seems like a cross between P.T. Barnum and Mad Magazine.

In a game the sports world may not be ready for, the No. 2 ranked Marquette Warriors next Monday will play the Marquette girls basketball team.

To try to even up the mismatch — the center for the girls team is a towering 5-foot-7 — the Warriors will have to wear boxing gloves and won't be permitted to enter the free throw lane.

Adding to the fun, Al McGuire will coach the girls and Tat Shiely, coordinator of women's athletics and the women's regular coach, will direct the men's team. The game will be played for laughs and to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund.

For an offense, McGuire said he'll "come up with some gimmicks to get our people free in the lane" and for defense "maybe I'll just have them flirt with the guys."

"We hope to out-finesse them," McGuire said. "And, hey, I won't tolerate the hand check. The officials will hear from me if they let that happen."

NU football gets 4 Chicagoland stars

Quarterback Kevin Strasser, who accumulated 1,221 yards in total offense last season for Elmhurst Immaculate Conception High School, Wednesday signed a national letter of intent to attend Northwestern University next fall.

Wildcats Coach John Pont also announced the signings of fullback-linebacker Tim Lawrence of Brother Rice High School, and of two tackles, Walter Versen of Loyola Academy and James Ford of St. Laurence.

Pont noted that all four "come from winning programs in a very strong football climate in Chicago."

EISENHOWER WINS TITLES

Eisenhower Junior High of Hoffman Estates won two first-place trophies in basketball this season. Both the seventh and eighth grade boys were conference champions in School District 54 and established a district record by having two undefeated teams at the same school. The seventh grade team, coached by Bob Miller, was 9-0 for the season. The eighth grade team, coached by Tim Essig, was also 9-0 this season and had 18 consecutive wins over two seasons.

This past week, the eighth grade team also won the District 54 Invitational Tournament held at Addams Junior High in Schaumburg. Of the eight competing teams, Eisenhower was again victorious by defeating Lakewood Junior High, Sandburg Junior High, and hosting school, Addams Junior High in the championship game. By this tourney win, Eisenhower extended its undefeated streak to 21 games.

of the best balance the Huskies have displayed this year.

The Huskies took at least two medals in every event except still rings and picked up a trio of awards in free ex and P-Bars.

Rich Stange and Mike Caruso really took up the slack for Hersey. Stange tied Muenz for the high bar title and grabbed a third on P-Bars while Caruso grabbed the fourth place award on P-Bars.

"We made the same typical mistakes," Von Ebers said of his district title. "Our third and fourth men on each event have improved but they have to come up even further.

Rolling Meadows was a runaway winner at the Hoffman Estates district, winning individual titles on every event but P-Bars.

Head coach Vic Avigliano was happiest with his side horse team, which was lead by district champion Bob Gauger.

"Our side horse finally started to look good," Avigliano said. "We scored more than 15 points, anyway."

The other events are stocked with talent three and four men deep. Dave Bycroft (rings), Keith Liszewski (high bar), Mike Illingworth (free ex) and Glenn Johnson (trampoline) are all title contenders.

"It's very important," Avigliano said, "that (Guy) Owsiany is finally starting to come around. We need that strong all-arounder."

Prospect moved their team into the sectional with a 139.32 score in the Hersey district. The score was the highest of the runnerup teams in the three districts subsidiary to the sectional.

The team advancement procedure from the sectional to the state finals will be the four sectional champions plus the next two highest team scores.

For individuals the top three in each event plus the two best all-arounders from each sectional will automatically advance. Advancement will also be available to the next 12 rated individual event performers from the four sectionals plus the next eight rated all-arounders.

Prospect has two individuals who should march through the sectional to the state finals. Glenn Wilke has been to the state finals before and should go again after a district third place finish on the still rings.

Jim Tangney is also a threat on P-Bars.

As a team, Prospect has fought Hersey and Rolling Meadows tooth and nail all year and despite being beaten in the district they are far from out of the team sectional fight.

The at-large qualifiers to the Meadows Sectional include Arlington's Mark Titre, Rob Erickson, Tom Staley and Kyle Chamblee; Hoffman Estates' Tom Heuer and Paul Major; Doug and Dave Smidl of Fremd; Bill Schanel and Jeff Worst of Conant; Wheeling's Dale Brungraber, Tim Olsen and Jim Geske.

Tonight's session of the sectional will include free ex, side horse and high bar. The trampoline, P-Bars and still rings events will take place Friday.

'Black Saturday' results despite two swim marks

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

Rolling Meadows' swimming ace Tom Stahnke set two new records in last Saturday's Arlington District meet.

Yet he still refers to it as "black Saturday."

First off, even though he set a new record in the 50-yard freestyle with a 22,970 second clocking, a judges' decision gave the district title to Tom Cole of Prospect.

"I guess it just wasn't the Stahnke family's day," said the tall young man who's a threat in this weekend's state meet in both the 50-freestyle and the butterfly. "After losing the 50 the way I did, my father got so excited when I won the butterfly that he jumped up, slipped on a patch of water and broke his leg," Stahnke explained.

Despite the injury, Stahnke's father and mother will be poolside at Hinsdale South Friday as their son tries to get into the finals in his two events. Nothing has stopped them from seeing son Tom's meets.

Swimming competitively since he was eight years old, Stahnke said he can't remember when his parents weren't watching him compete. "No matter where in the state the meet was, they'd be there," he said.

Only a junior, Stahnke is ranked sixth statewide in the butterfly, through his district record time of 54.0 seconds set last weekend. In the 50-freestyle, his time just misses the top 18 in the state, although he has gone 22.4 in the event this year, which would put him fourth statewide.

"I haven't gone that fast in some time, though," Stahnke said, adding he thought his best chance was in the butterfly event. "But everything goes so fast in the 50, just one mistake can kill you," he said. "Last year the top seeded guy in the 50 didn't even make the finals."

This is the second trip to the state meet for Stahnke, who was sick the week before the big event and did not make the final cut last year. But the experience, Stahnke hopes, will help him be more relaxed this weekend.

Will he be out to avenge himself after Saturday's decision went against him in the district meet?

"A little, I guess," said Stahnke, who at 6-foot-3 looks down to few swimmers. "But that's the way it goes. I'm just going out there, do the best I can and let my times speak for themselves."

At any rate, Stahnke will be ready to go when the gun sounds in the prelims Friday. "I'm ready right now," he grinned. "I've been swimming each length of the pool over and over in my head so I'll know what I'm doing."

Does he ever get tired of swimming, after thousands and thousands of yards swum every day?

"Naw, I really enjoy it," he said. "Actually, it gets better — if you keep improving."

'Black Saturday' results despite two swim marks

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

Rolling Meadows' swimming ace Tom Stahnke set two new records in last Saturday's Arlington District meet.

Yet he still refers to it as "black Saturday."

First off, even though he set a new record in the 50-yard freestyle with a 22,970 second clocking, a judges' decision gave the district title to Tom Cole of Prospect.

"I guess it just wasn't the Stahnke family's day," said the tall young man who's a threat in this weekend's state meet in both the 50-freestyle and the butterfly. "After losing the 50 the way I did, my father got so excited when I won the butterfly that he jumped up, slipped on a patch of water and broke his leg," Stahnke explained.

Despite the injury, Stahnke's father and mother will be poolside at Hinsdale South Friday as their son tries to get into the finals in his two events. Nothing has stopped them from seeing son Tom's meets.

Swimming competitively since he was eight years old, Stahnke said he can't remember when his parents weren't watching him compete. "No matter where in the state the meet was, they'd be there," he said.

Only a junior, Stahnke is ranked sixth statewide in the butterfly, through his district record time of 54.0 seconds set last weekend. In the 50-freestyle, his time just misses the top 18 in the state, although he has gone 22.4 in the event this year, which would put him fourth statewide.

"I haven't gone that fast in some time, though," Stahnke said, adding he thought his best chance was in the butterfly event. "But everything goes so fast in the 50, just one mistake can kill you," he said. "Last year the top seeded guy in the 50 didn't even make the finals."

This is the second trip to the state meet for Stahnke, who was sick the week before the big event and did not make the final cut last year. But the experience, Stahnke hopes, will help him be more relaxed this weekend.

Will he be out to avenge himself after Saturday's decision went against him in the district meet?

"A little, I guess," said Stahnke, who at 6-foot-3 looks down to few swimmers. "But that's the way it goes. I'm just going out there, do the best I can and let my times speak for themselves."

At any rate, Stahnke will be ready to go when the gun sounds in the prelims Friday. "I'm ready right now," he grinned. "I've been swimming each length of the pool over and over in my head so I'll know what I'm doing."

Does he ever get tired of swimming, after thousands and thousands of yards swum every day?

"Naw, I really enjoy it," he said. "Actually, it gets better — if you keep improving."

Metro playoffs begin tonight at two arenas

Following a tremendous finish in regular season play, the Northwest Division of the Metro Hockey League starts a "new season" tonight. It's playoff time.

St. Viator will take on Maine East at 7:30 p.m. at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. Rolling Meadows will meet Hersey at 9:00.

At the Oakton Recreation Center, Maine South will face Palatine at 7:30 and Fremd will tangle with Arlington at 9:00.

St. Viator finished first in the division race with a 23-4-1 record. The tie came last Sunday against Maine East, 4-4. Meanwhile, Maine South topped Arlington 4-2 to finish an eyelash (23-5-0) behind the champs.

Other Sunday action had Fremd beating Palatine 6-5 and Rolling Meadows defeating Hersey 4-1.

Palatine finished with an 18-9-1 mark with Maine East right behind at 17-10-1. These two along with Maine South and St. Viator will fight for the right to advance in the championship bracket. They'll play a round robin that continues on Sunday and again on Thursday.

The championship and consolation playoffs on Sunday will all be held at the Randhurst arena. The matchups will have Fremd vs. Hersey at 4 p.m., St. Viator vs. Palatine at 5:30, Maine East vs. Maine South at 7:00 and Rolling Meadows vs. Arlington at 9:00.

A week from Thursday will be the final round. The championship and consolation winners advance to Glenview to take on the Northeast Division champs on March 7. March 10 will be the Metro championships at Northbrook.

Palatine entry draws second post position in Angel Derby

Marion P. Jayne with daughter Patricia Jayne Keefer, both of Palatine, has drawn second post position for takeoff in the 1976 Angel Derby.

More than 120 of the world's serious women pilots will vie in the all-woman international air race which will be flown May 27-31 over an historical route between Quebec City in Canada and Fort Lauderdale in the United States.

The winner will receive $3,000 in cash and a trophy, plus a $1,776 Bicentennial Bonus award.

This Grand Prix of cross-country air racing is one of the City of Fort Lauderdale's bicentennial celebration events.

The Angel Derby emphasizes pilot ability and not the power produced by the airplane engine. Airplanes rated from 145 to 570 horsepower are eligible to participate with the difference in horsepower compensated for through a handicap system.

A breakfast worth getting up for

Crisp mornings call for a hearty breakfast. Make it a well-balanced menu, too, with taste-tempting foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

The American Heart Association has designated February as National Heart Month — a good time to make a resolution to take care of your family as well as yourself. Coronary heart disease is a serious problem in this country, and one of the recommendations of the Heart Association is to cut down on the amount of saturated fat and cholesterol in the foods you eat and use polyunsaturated fats instead.

There are a number of appetizing foods in the grocery store today that are designed to help you do this conveniently and economically as well. They are made from textured vegetable protein which offer good nutrition with good taste — but without animal fat or cholesterol. These recipes were developed by Morningstar Farms.

Cherry Crepes

1	21 ounce can cherry pie filling
¼	teaspoon cinnamon
	Confectioners sugar
	Grated orange rind

Combine cherry filling and cinnamon; spoon 2 tablespoons filling down center of each crepe and overlap edges. Place in chafing dish or oven-proof serving dish. Heat through. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and orange rind. Makes 16 crepes.

Crepe Batter

½	cup egg substitute or eggs
1	cup skim milk
1	cup sifted flour
	Dash of salt
1	tablespoon melted margarine
	Polyunsaturated cooking oil

Combine all ingredients except oil; blend to a smooth batter the consistency of heavy cream. Strain, if necessary, to remove any lumps. For each crepe brush a heated 6½ to 7-inch non-stick skillet with oil. Quickly coat hot skillet with 2 tablespoons of batter, tipping pan in all directions. Place over medium heat until edge begins to brown. Lift edge with a spatula and flip over. Brown on second side. Batter is best prepared several hours in advance or refrigerate overnight. Makes 16 crepes.

French Toast "Logs"

1	pound loaf unsliced bread
1	cup egg substitute or 4 eggs
½	cup skim milk
1	tablespoon sugar
½	teaspoon cinnamon, if desired
1	cup finely chopped nuts
	Margarine or polyunsaturated cooking oil

Trim crust from loaf of bread. Cut into "logs" approximately 1½ by 1½ by 3 inches. Combine egg substitute, milk and cinnamon. Dip bread in mixture and then roll in chopped nuts. Brown on all sides in hot margarine or oil in skillet. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and serve hot with syrup, if desired. Makes 10 "logs."

Sauteed Fruit 'n Strips

Saute apple slices or pineapple rings in skillet with texturized protein bacon strips. Sprinkle fruit lightly with sugar and allow to glaze before serving. Serve hot for breakfast or brunch.

Breakfast Strips with Apple "Hearts"

1	package texturized protein bacon strips
	Polyunsaturated cooking oil
4	apples
¼	cup red cinnamon candies
½	cup water
½	cup sugar

Slice apples crosswise ½-inch thick. Cut with heart shaped cooky cutter. Combine cinnamon candies, water and sugar in large skillet. Bring to a boil, stirring until candies are dissolved. Add apple "hearts"; simmer until tender and glazed, about 10 to 15 minutes. Prepare texturized strips by browning in cooking oil according to package directions. Garnish with glazed apple "hearts."

Study breaks down hot dog eaters

A new survey of hot dog consumption just proves what everybody's been saying all along: the frankfurter is a universal favorite. The study for a sausage casing manufacturer shows franks are served in 95 per cent of all homes in the United States.

But even the manufacturer was surprised to find that most hot dogs are eaten as the main dish at a meal, not as a snack.

More surprises: adults eat more hot dogs than children, and women eat more hot dogs than men.

The study by Market Facts, Inc., for the Films Packaging Division of Union Carbide, described the heaviest users as child-oriented mothers representing 32 per cent of all American households. They bought 41 per cent of all the hot dogs reported in a given four-week period.

Three types of women fell into the heavy user category. The study profiles one as a young blue collar mother with a large family, a husband with income slightly below average and little interest in cooking. She's apt to serve hot dogs for dinner, on a bun or bread, with a side dish of beans, the study said. She doesn't think hot dogs are better today or nutritionally adequate, but she doesn't really care. They're a good buy in her food budget because they fit her family's life style.

Another heavy user was described as the young, fairly well-educated urban mother who shops carefully, checks prices, tries new brands and new products, reads recipes and is apt to serve hot dogs wrapped in bacon or biscuit dough as lunch for a neighbor or friend.

The third big user is the family-centered suburbanite, well-educated, with above-average income and a casual approach to life in general. She's always on the lookout for new ideas and recipes, likes to use hot dogs in casseroles and macaroni dishes and thinks they are a good buy.

The lightest users, according to the study, also fall into three classes:

- The old-fashioned homebody with little formal education and a low income whose husband is either a blue collar worker or retired. She worries about artificial ingredients and preservatives, but thinks hot dogs are purer and more nutritious than hamburgers.
- Another light user is the middle-aged wife of a low income blue collar worker. She doesn't like housekeeping, worker. She doesn'tlike housekeeping, cooking, shopping or meal planning; she relies heavily on convenience foods, often overextends her budget and doesn't think hot dogs are quick and easy to prepare.
- The study calls the third a self-satisfied traditionalist, wife of a white collar worker in a small town whose ideas, tastes and attitudes in general are conservative and formal.

Middle of the roaders were pictured as young upscale feminists, active, affluent urbanites and middle-aged homemakers living in rural areas or small towns. The latter pride themselves on their cooking and think their families think they are the world's best cooks.

Like the lightest users, the five per cent of nonusers are older persons.

Adverse publicity about additives and preservatives hasn't hurt hot dog sales, although consumers do want to know about ingredients and fat content, and they wonder about nutritional value.

For purposes of the study, a light user was a household that ate fewer than 20 hot dogs in a four-week period; a heavy user, a household that ate 20 or more during the same length of time.

HOT DOGS are eaten in nearly all American homes, according to a recent survey. Adults, mainly women, are the biggest consumers.

Herald food price survey

Consumers should be finding some good bargains in canned fruits and vegetables at supermarkets, according to a release from the Cooperative Extension Office in Rolling Meadows. A tremendous surplus in these items has been reported, reflecting good weather and crops in 1975 as well as slow consumer demand due, in part, to the increase in home gardening and food preservation.

However, a Tuesday morning price survey of five area chain supermarkets showed no significant price drops in canned items, although prices Tuesday are not necessarily the same today because of in-store sales or weekly price adjustments.

At Jewel, all surveyed canned items remained the same as last month's readings. Butter continued its downward trend from January, retailing 10 cents less than the previous quotation. Several staple items also dropped slightly from February, including flour, sugar and coffee.

Lean ground beef was 10 cents less than last month at Butera, selling for 59 cents a pound, which is the lowest reading of the five stores surveyed. Large grade A eggs were also lowest at 69 cents a dozen, 14 cents less than February. Other store prices remained relatively stable.

Beef prices are somewhat higher than last month at National, but other meat items held steady. Eggs were slightly higher, offset by decreases in fluid milk, margarine and butter. Processed fruits and vegetables were as much as nine cents higher compared to the previous survey.

Beef prices dropped about 10 cents at Treasure Island, with chicken showing expected seasonal increases. Fluid milk was about 15 cents higher, but was still the lowest quotation of the five stores surveyed. Other prices throughout the store held relatively steady.

At A&P ground beef was 10 cents higher than last month, but other meat items in the survey were stable. No price changes were noted in processed items and only slight fluctuations were noted in staple foods, compared to last month's readings.

Reliable, tasteful meals

Her cooking caters to family and boss

by LOIS SEILER

Working as a professional cook for nine years was a challenge for Mary Rogas of Mount Prospect. Without prior professional experience, Mary was hired by Arthur Rubloff, well-known Chicago commercial realtor, to cook for his private dining room.

Mary applied for the job at her husband's urging, and Larry's faith in her culinary ability was justified. The eldest of eight children, she learned to cook at an early age, and had plenty of practice over the years, preparing meals for her own family of five.

Working at a meat market while in high school familiarized Mary with all cuts of meat, yet the only cooking class she had ever attended was a course in gourmet foods at adult evening school.

However, her knack for preparing tasty meals was well-utilized when working for Rubloff. She cooked for as few as four to as many as 30 on the average of three times a week, ordering the food and preparing the entire luncheon. For large groups, Mary had extra help to assist her in serving.

A popular dish was her Chinese Pepper Steak, also a family favorite. Mary makes this with flank steak, which is marinated first for flavor and tenderization. After browning, it is cooked in the marinade with green peppers and mushrooms and served over rice.

An Oriental Salad is the perfect complement to this pepper steak. It consists of fresh spinach, thinly-sliced onion rings, bean sprouts and water chestnuts tossed with a catsup-flavored vinegar and oil dressing. Mary serves this on individual salad plates, garnishing each with finely-chopped hard boiled eggs and croutons.

Both the pepper steak and salad are exceptionally tasty and attractive, yet neither take long to prepare, which is ideal for the busy homemaker or career woman. Because vegetables are included in both the main course and salad, only hot rolls need be served as an accompaniment.

Mary mentioned that for luncheons Arthur Rubloff preferred a light dessert, such as sherbet, ice cream with cherries jubilee or a fancy gelatin with cookies. However, when Mary serves this menu for dinner at home, she likes to prepare an apple cake for dessert.

ONE OF Mary Rogas' favorite recipes as a professional cook was Oriental Salad with water chestnuts, bean sprouts and spinach. She tops individual plates of salad with seasoned croutons and a homemade dressing.

Made from an old family recipe, this cake is more torte-like in texture and appearance. Well-flavored with chopped apples and walnuts, it is served cold topped with whipped cream.

Mary now works part time at Northwest Stationers in Mount Prospect. The Rogases have a married son living in Bensenville, a married daughter in Palos Hills, two grandchildren, and a daughter, Terri, living at home.

CHINESE PEPPER STEAK

1 pound flank steak
2 green peppers, cut in squares
1 large jar mushrooms, drained, or ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ tablespoon cornstarch

Cut flank steak into strips, then into bite-size pieces. Mix together soy sauce, wine, sugar and cornstarch. Place meat into mixture and let marinate at least two to three hours.

Drain meat and brown quickly in about 2 tablespoons corn oil. Add green pepper, mushrooms, marinade and about two tablespoons water. Simmer, covered, about 15 minutes. Serve over plain rice. Serves 3 to 4.

ORIENTAL SALAD

1 10-ounce bag spinach
1 can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
¾ cup bean sprouts, drained
1 red onion, sliced in thin rings
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped fine with pastry blender
1 cup seasoned croutons

Dressing:

1 cup salad oil
¾ cup sugar
½ cup red cider vinegar
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup catsup

Mix all dressing ingredients together in a jar. Shake to blend well. Will keep two to three weeks in covered container in refrigerator.

To prepare salad, wash, drain and dry spinach. Remove stems and break into bite-size pieces. Mix together with water chestnuts, bean sprouts and onion rings. Toss with just enough dressing to coat lightly.

Divide among six salad plates. Sprinkle croutons and chopped eggs over top. Serves 6.

APPLE CAKE

¼ pound butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely-chopped apples
½ cup chopped walnuts
Whipped cream

Cream together butter and sugar. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, soda and salt and beat into creamed mixture. Fold in apples and walnuts.

Turn into a greased, 8-inch square pan and bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes. Cool and chill. Cut in squares and serve cold, topped with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Writing on cale scribbled long ago

The first writing on cakes is thought to have occurred in 1830 when Franz Sacher of Vienna created a torte for Prince von Metternich, says George Lang, who heads a food and design consulting firm in Chicago. Writing in Hospitality, a restaurant trade magazine, Lang said the sugar baker wrote the prince's name in frosting on top of the chocolate-glazed cake. From then on, Austria, Hungary and other Danube Valley countries invented cakes for celebrities and important occasions, and decorated them with the appropriate names.

Consumers prefer old range ways

Survey results from 3,399 home economists who inform and advise homemakers show that 98 per cent of the homemakers prefer ranges that let them cook with conventional flat-bottom pots and pans, said Anne Cain, home products adviser to PPG Industries in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Cain said the same women showed an overwhelming interest in new easy-cleaning, smooth-top electric ranges, some of which require special cookware. More than half of the home economists surveyed said the elimination of clean-up chores was a main advantage of smooth-top ranges.

1 cup seasoned croutons

Dressing:

1 cup salad oil
¾ cup sugar
½ cup red cider vinegar
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup catsup

Mix all dressing ingredients together in a jar. Shake to blend well. Will keep two to three weeks in covered container in refrigerator.

To prepare salad, wash, drain and dry spinach. Remove stems and break into bite-size pieces. Mix together with water chestnuts, bean sprouts and onion rings. Toss with just enough dressing to coat lightly.

Divide among six salad plates. Sprinkle croutons and chopped eggs over top. Serves 6.

APPLE CAKE

¼ pound butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely-chopped apples
½ cup chopped walnuts
Whipped cream

Cream together butter and sugar. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, soda and salt and beat into creamed mixture. Fold in apples and walnuts.

Turn into a greased, 8-inch square pan and bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes. Cool and chill. Cut in squares and serve cold, topped with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Consumers prefer old range ways

Survey results from 3,399 home economists who inform and advise homemakers show that 98 per cent of the homemakers prefer ranges that let them cook with conventional flat-bottom pots and pans, said Anne Cain, home products adviser to PPG Industries in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Cain said the same women showed an overwhelming interest in new easy-cleaning, smooth-top electric ranges, some of which require special cookware. More than half of the home economists surveyed said the elimination of clean-up chores was a main advantage of smooth-top ranges.

Writing on cale scribbled long ago

The first writing on cakes is thought to have occurred in 1830 when Franz Sacher of Vienna created a torte for Prince von Metternich, says George Lang, who heads a food and design consulting firm in Chicago. Writing in Hospitality, a restaurant trade magazine, Lang said the sugar baker wrote the prince's name in frosting on top of the chocolate-glazed cake. From then on, Austria, Hungary and other Danube Valley countries invented cakes for celebrities and important occasions, and decorated them with the appropriate names.

Flavorful variations spice dish

Do you know anyone who is not on a diet, has not been on a diet or is not talking about going on a diet? This four-letter word ranks right next to a certain three-letter word in popularity for conversations and reading. For good reasons.

Today, most doctors advise men and women over 40 to cut down on calories and on foods high in saturated fats, which contribute to a rise in the blood cholesterol level. Being overweight adds to many health problems and can shorten one's life. This is why diet and exercise programs prove so interesting to Americans of all ages.

Among the foods medical and nutrition experts suggest is fish — it's lower in saturated fat than meat, is a good source of protein and most fish is lower than meat in calories.

To encourage the eating of more fish and seafood in your home prepare it for special eye appeal as well as taste appeal. A tomato sauce is classic with fish, but try a different topping for baked fish using orange juice as they do in Spain and Andorra. Another treat is fish fillets broiled with a gremolata — a mixture of lemon rind, garlic, chopped parsley and sunflower oil margarine used instead of butter. This is a quick, tasty recipe.

FISH FILLETS WITH GREMOLATA

1 pound fish fillets, fresh or frozen
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons sunflower oil margarine
¼ cup chopped parsley
1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 clove garlic, minced

Place fish on foil-lined broiler pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with 1 tablespoon margarine. Broil 6 inches from heat for 5 minutes. In small bowl cream remaining 1 tablespoon margarine with parsley, lemon rind and garlic. Spread over fish and broil 1 minute longer, until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Makes 4 servings.

ROLLED FISH FILLETS WITH ORANGE TOMATO SAUCE

2 tablespoons sunflower oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
2 large tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf savory or thyme
1 pound flounder fillets, fresh or frozen

In a medium sauce pan melt margarine. Add onion and cook until tender. Add tomatoes; simmer 10 minutes. Add orange juice, salt and savory. Simmer 5 minutes.

Roll flounder fillets and place in a shallow baking dish. Pour orange tomato sauce over rolls. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Garnish with parsley and orange slices. Makes 4 servings.

New classes for cooks

• Interesting, imaginative, and healthful ways to prepare fish and other seafood will be taught in a two-session MONACEP class, Seafood Cookery," beginning Thursday, February 26, 7:30 p.m. at Maine East High School, Park Ridge.

Elaine Sherman, instructor, will show how to poach, saute, bake or broil fish and seafood to perfection. She will also emphasize low-calorie, low-cholesterol preparation. The class will include a clam bake and preparation of live lobster.

Tuition for the two evenings is $15.00.

• A 4-session MONACEP course, "Food Preservation," also begins tonight at 7:30. Helga Shanrahan, a Rolling Meadows home economist, will teach selection of foods, methods of canning, freezing and pickling and steps for jam and jelly preservation.

Tuition for the four evenings is $18,00.

For further information on either course, contact MONACEP at 967-5821.

Forecast adequate canning lid supply

There should be enough home canning lids in 1976, twice as many as last year when there was a shortage, says the Agriculture Department's special assistant for consumer affairs.

Nancy Steort said the increase is due because manufacturers are making more lids — and there are more manufacturers.

She estimated more than 4 billion lids will be available this year, compared to 2.1 billion last year. Mrs. Steorts said nearly 3 billion regular-size lids should be available, as well as 333 million wide-mouth lids, more than 500,000 regular lids and rings and nearly 150,000 wide mouth caps.

THERE WAS A SHORTAGE of lids last year. In 1974, consumers were faced with a shortage of both canning lids and jars. Mrs. Steorts said the Agriculture Department's "best estimate" of demand for 1976 indicates that this year's supply will be ample.

She said between 19 and 23 million consumers will be home canners this year compared with 16 to 20 million last year.

She said the lids will be distributed in the traditional pattern — first shipments to southern states, moving north as the canning season approaches.

Do-ahead recipe

Two casseroles can be prepared almost as quickly as one. Home economists at the National Macaroni Institute have this recipe for Macaroni and Cheese which is ideal for freezing.

It will keep well frozen for about a month. The recipe provides for two casseroles, one to serve immediately, and one to freeze for later use. And for the cook who likes to make the same favorite macaroni and cheese often, but likes to change it each time, several variations are suggested.

TWICE AROUND MACARONI AND CHEESE

4 cups elbow macaroni (1 pound)
2 tablespoons salt
4 to 6 quarts boiling water
½ cup chopped onion
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
6 tablespoons flour
6 cups milk
2 teaspoons salt*
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons Worchestershire
4½ cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese

Gradually add macaroni and 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, cook onion in butter over medium heat until crisp-tender. Quickly stir in flour. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly; add seasonings. Cook stirring, until sauce boils 1 minute. Stir in 4 cups of the cheese; continue stirring until cheese melts. Remove from heat; combine with macaroni.

To serve immediately: Turn one-half of the macaroni-cheese mixture into greased 1½ quart casserole. Sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese. Bake in 400 degree oven 20 minutes or until bubbling and lightly browned. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

To freeze and serve later: Cool remaining macaroni-cheese mixture quickly. Turn into 1½ quart casserole lined with heavy duty foil (allowing extra foil for fold). Seal with double fold. Freeze, then remove casserole. When ready for use, remove from foil; replace in casserole. Cover, Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour. Uncover, sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese or 2 tablespoons seasoned bread crumbs. Continue baking uncovered 30 minutes, or until bubbling hot. *Salt loses flavor on freezing; increase salt to taste for freezer casserole.

Variations:

- Add ½ cup chopped or sliced pimiento-stuffed olives to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 can (6 ounces) sliced or chopped mushrooms, drained, to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 can or jar (7 ounces) pimientos, drained and diced, to cheese sauce.
- Add 3 tablespoons caraway seeds to cheese sauce.
- Add 4 tablespoons poppy seeds to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 cup chopped green pepper to butter and cook with onion until tender.
- Top unfrozen casserole with 2 medium tomatoes, sliced, before baking. The frozen casserole may be topped with tomato slices during the last 30 minutes baking.

Egg rolls easily impress crowds

EGG ROLLS make a good party appetizer, according to Mrs. Edward Wydra, (right) a member of the Mount Prospect Women's club. She demonstrated Chinese food techniques to the club recently, here assisted by Mrs. Richard Plant, president of the organization.

When looking for an appetizer to serve large crowds, try eggs rolls, said Bernice Wydra to the Mount Prospect Women's Club recently.

"It is such a wonderful thing to have on hand," she said.

Mrs. Wydra said she has been cooking Chinese dishes for about three years, collecting recipes from favorite restaurants and adding her own touches. She has never taken any lessons on Oriental cooking, "I just picked it up," she said.

She includes peanut butter in her egg roll recipe to "hold the mixture together," she said. But she added that the peanut butter doesn't contribute noticeable flavor in the finished product. Won Ton skins can be purchased at either National or Treasure Island Food Stores.

Once the ingredients are chopped, "It only takes about 10 minutes to finish the egg rolls," she said.

Here are the recipes she demonstrated and served to the women's club:

EGG ROLLS

½ pound frozen shrimp, tiny size
1 cup cooked chicken, chopped fine, or equivalent amount of pork or veal, chopped fine
1 cup celery, chopped fine
½ cup water chestnuts, chopped fine
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon Accent seasoning
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons peanut butter
Peanut oil
Won Ton skins (egg roll wrappers)
Egg white

Combine all ingredients. Place 1 teaspoon of mixture on each wrapper, brush edges with egg white to seal. Fold into triangle, then brush edge of point and fold again. Heat peanut oil to 375 degrees and deep fry for 3 to 5 minutes, until browned. These rolls may be frozen and reheated in 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes. Serve with sweet and sour sauce or a mustard sauce. Makes 50.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted and cooled
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup light brown sugar
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
3 tablespoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
½ cup cider vinegar

Combine egg, sugar, mustard, paprika and vinegar. Add to cooled butter or margarine. Cook over low heat 4 to 5 minutes. Makes about ¾ cup.

CHINESE ALMOND COOKIES

1 cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¾ teaspoon almond extract
2¾ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
Almonds

Beat together lard (lard gives the correct texture for the cookies, as opposed to margarine or butter) and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and extract. Blend well.

Sift together flour, baking soda, salt; add to creamed mixture. Shape into large ball.

Roll to a scant ¼ inch and cut with round cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, top each cookie with an almond. Bake at 325 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until cookies are very lightly browned on the edges. Makes about 50 cookies.

Wheat won't affect bread

The Agriculture Council of America says although poor weather conditions in the Great Plains may reduce this year's winter wheat crop any crop loss shouldn't affect food prices in the near future.

"We definitely have a problem with wind and drought damaging winter crops right now," said council chairman E. L. Hatcher, "but losses could be checked somewhat if we get the moisture we need."

Hatcher, a wheat and beef producer from Lamar, Colo., said the consumer "is assured of adequate supplies regardless because total stocks will more than triple domestic requirements."

As of Feb. 1, the Agriculture Department said the winter wheat crop was below normal, but it failed to make an estimate. However, growers groups say the prospects are "well below" the last estimate of just under 1.5 billion bushels in December.

HATCHER SAID the market price for wheat has risen about 25 cents a bushel since the first of the month but still is more than $2 lower than two years ago.

"We haven't seen any drop in bread prices at the supermarket during that time," he said, "so why should prices go up now?"

Since wheat makes up only 13 per cent of the total cost of a loaf of bread, he said, a jump of as much as a dollar a bushel in the price of wheat "would only increase the price of a loaf of bread by 1.2 cents."

The Agriculture Council of America is a nonpolitical, nonprofit organization of farmers, ranchers, farm and commodity associations and agribusiness firms. Its purpose is to improve communications between farmers and consumers.

Try dry beans

Beans baked the Rocky Mountain way is a departure from the Baked Beans of tradition, mostly by way of seasonings. It is less sweet in flavor and has a bit of zip compared to beans cooked by Pilgrim mothers. Since dry beans are in plentiful supply this year, and because beans are high in protein, this recipe, in both metrics and American Standard measurements, is a goood way to stretch a budget.

Cooking with metrics

BAKED BEANS, ROCKY MOUNTAIN STYLE

.9 kilograms or 2 pounds Great Northern beans
3 liters or 12 cups water
1 medium onion stuck with 2 whole cloves
1 small bay leaf
1 large clove garlic
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, peeled, left whole
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons salt
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons dry mustard
60 milliliters or ¼ cup brown sugar
125 milliliters or ½ cup molasses, light or dark
125 milliliters or ½ cup catsup
2½ milliliters or ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
225 grams salt pork, rind on
750 milliliters or 3 cups bean liquid and water

To prepare dry white beans before baking:

Simmer soaked beans in measured amount of water with onion, bay leaf, garlic and salt, plus 30 milliliters (2 tablespoons) butter or salad oil to keep down foam. Cover tightly. Cook until nearly tender, about 1 hour. (Best test — put a few beans in a spoon. When blown upon, the skins will crack.) Time will vary according to hardness of water, altitude, and maintenance of simmering point.

Remove from heat, discard onion, garlic, bay leaf. Pour beans into colander to drain, saving liquid. Add enough water to make 750 milliliters (3 cups).

To prepare cooked beans for baking:

For the oven, use a 4-liter (about 4 quarts) heavy bean pot. Place whole onion with beans on top. Scrape, wash salt off pork. Cut pork nearly through on fatty side to about 250 millimeters (½-inch) deep and 250 millimeters apart all over surface. Push salt pork down into beans, letting only the top edge come up above them.

Mix together all other ingredients. Add bean liquid. Stir well. Pour over beans. Cover tightly with foil and lid. Bake all day or night, a minimum of 6 to 8 hours, at 120 degrees Celsius (250 degrees Fahrenheit).

For slow electric cooker, follow manufacturer's directions. At end of time, if no sauce is covering beans, gently add a bit of boiling water around the sides using a wooden spoon. Cook another ½ hour without the cover.

EGG ROLLS make a good party appetizer, according to Mrs. Edward Wydra, (right) a member of the Mount Prospect Women's club. She demonstrated Chinese food techniques to the club recently, here assisted by Mrs. Richard Plant, president of the organization.

Egg rolls easily impress crowds

When looking for an appetizer to serve large crowds, try eggs rolls, said Bernice Wydra to the Mount Prospect Women's Club recently.

"It is such a wonderful thing to have on hand," she said.

Mrs. Wydra said she has been cooking Chinese dishes for about three years, collecting recipes from favorite restaurants and adding her own touches. She has never taken any lessons on Oriental cooking, "I just picked it up," she said.

She includes peanut butter in her egg roll recipe to "hold the mixture together," she said. But she added that the peanut butter doesn't contribute noticeable flavor in the finished product. Won Ton skins can be purchased at either National or Treasure Island Food Stores.

Once the ingredients are chopped, "It only takes about 10 minutes to finish the egg rolls," she said.

Here are the recipes she demonstrated and served to the women's club:

EGG ROLLS

½ pound frozen shrimp, tiny size
1 cup cooked chicken, chopped fine, or equivalent amount of pork or veal, chopped fine
1 cup celery, chopped fine
½ cup water chestnuts, chopped fine
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon Accent seasoning
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons peanut butter
Peanut oil
Won Ton skins (egg roll wrappers)
Egg white

Combine all ingredients. Place 1 teaspoon of mixture on each wrapper, brush edges with egg white to seal. Fold into triangle, then brush edge of point and fold again. Heat peanut oil to 375 degrees and deep fry for 3 to 5 minutes, until browned. These rolls may be frozen and reheated in 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes. Serve with sweet and sour sauce or a mustard sauce. Makes 50.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted and cooled
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup light brown sugar
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
3 tablespoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
½ cup cider vinegar

Combine egg, sugar, mustard, paprika and vinegar. Add to cooled butter or margarine. Cook over low heat 4 to 5 minutes. Makes about ¾ cup.

CHINESE ALMOND COOKIES

1 cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¾ teaspoon almond extract
2¾ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
Almonds

Beat together lard (lard gives the correct texture for the cookies, as opposed to margarine or butter) and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and extract. Blend well.

Sift together flour, baking soda, salt; add to creamed mixture. Shape into large ball.

Roll to a scant ¼ inch and cut with round cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, top each cookie with an almond. Bake at 325 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until cookies are very lightly browned on the edges. Makes about 50 cookies.

Wheat won't affect bread

The Agriculture Council of America says although poor weather conditions in the Great Plains may reduce this year's winter wheat crop any crop loss shouldn't affect food prices in the near future.

"We definitely have a problem with wind and drought damaging winter crops right now," said council chairman E. L. Hatcher, "but losses could be checked somewhat if we get the moisture we need."

Hatcher, a wheat and beef producer from Lamar, Colo., said the consumer "is assured of adequate supplies regardless because total stocks will more than triple domestic requirements."

As of Feb. 1, the Agriculture Department said the winter wheat crop was below normal, but it failed to make an estimate. However, growers groups say the prospects are "well below" the last estimate of just under 1.5 billion bushels in December.

HATCHER SAID the market price for wheat has risen about 25 cents a bushel since the first of the month but still is more than $2 lower than two years ago.

"We haven't seen any drop in bread prices at the supermarket during that time," he said, "so why should prices go up now?"

Since wheat makes up only 13 per cent of the total cost of a loaf of bread, he said, a jump of as much as a dollar a bushel in the price of wheat "would only increase the price of a loaf of bread by 1.2 cents."

The Agriculture Council of America is a nonpolitical, nonprofit organization of farmers, ranchers, farm and commodity associations and agribusiness firms. Its purpose is to improve communications between farmers and consumers.

Try dry beans

Beans baked the Rocky Mountain way is a departure from the Baked Beans of tradition, mostly by way of seasonings. It is less sweet in flavor and has a bit of zip compared to beans cooked by Pilgrim mothers. Since dry beans are in plentiful supply this year, and because beans are high in protein, this recipe, in both metrics and American Standard measurements, is a goood way to stretch a budget.

Cooking with metrics

BAKED BEANS, ROCKY MOUNTAIN STYLE

.9 kilograms or 2 pounds Great Northern beans
3 liters or 12 cups water
1 medium onion stuck with 2 whole cloves
1 small bay leaf
1 large clove garlic
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, peeled, left whole
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons salt
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons dry mustard
60 milliliters or ¼ cup brown sugar
125 milliliters or ½ cup molasses, light or dark
125 milliliters or ½ cup catsup
2½ milliliters or ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
225 grams salt pork, rind on
750 milliliters or 3 cups bean liquid and water

To prepare dry white beans before baking:

Simmer soaked beans in measured amount of water with onion, bay leaf, garlic and salt, plus 30 milliliters (2 tablespoons) butter or salad oil to keep down foam. Cover tightly. Cook until nearly tender, about 1 hour. (Best test — put a few beans in a spoon. When blown upon, the skins will crack.) Time will vary according to hardness of water, altitude, and maintenance of simmering point.

Remove from heat, discard onion, garlic, bay leaf. Pour beans into colander to drain, saving liquid. Add enough water to make 750 milliliters (3 cups).

To prepare cooked beans for baking:

For the oven, use a 4-liter (about 4 quarts) heavy bean pot. Place whole onion with beans on top. Scrape, wash salt off pork. Cut pork nearly through on fatty side to about 250 millimeters (½-inch) deep and 250 millimeters apart all over surface. Push salt pork down into beans, letting only the top edge come up above them.

Mix together all other ingredients. Add bean liquid. Stir well. Pour over beans. Cover tightly with foil and lid. Bake all day or night, a minimum of 6 to 8 hours, at 120 degrees Celsius (250 degrees Fahrenheit).

For slow electric cooker, follow manufacturer's directions. At end of time, if no sauce is covering beans, gently add a bit of boiling water around the sides using a wooden spoon. Cook another ½ hour without the cover.

The ultimate goal: U. S. citizenship

by ELEANOR RIVES

(Last of four parts)

Destination U.S.A.

They come with hope, courage and strength, wave upon wave of immigrants, separating themselves from their friends, their families, their native land, hoping to find a new and better life.

"We are going to that country where everybody is welcome," solemnly declared the mother in a Yugoslavian family. Today they are happy Palatine residents — all U.S. citizens.

The United States is a nation of immigrants. Between 1820 and 1974, it welcomed 46,712,725 of them. The total of almost 400,000 people who came in 1974 is 23 per cent larger than the average of the 1960s. And, according to Tom Bethell, an editor of The Washington Monthly, writing in Newsweek last May, if the present rates of immigration continue through this decade, there will actually have been as many immigrants in the 1970s as in the 1890s — one of the peak immigration decades.

ONE CANNOT help but admire these newcomers. To assume the role of an immigrant takes much courage, for the requirements are rigid, the process sometimes tedious, and even when one has succeeded in entering the country, many problems lie ahead.

Mrs. Margot Cooper, who has taught English for New Americans in Dist. 214's adult education system for more than six years, has acquired a deep understanding and genuine fondness and respect for foreign-born people.

"The basic problem is obvious," she said. "It is language. Most other problems stem from that one.

"Can you imagine, with only a smattering of English, trying to deal with doctors, lawyers or public service people? Suppose you were involved in even a minor auto accident."

MANY OF HER students complain that Americans speak too fast, that they cut off ends of words. Consider: "I dunno," "Where ya going?," "Be seein ya." It's downright confusing. It's even more confusing over the telephone without being able to see the person speaking.

Destination U.S.A.

One of Mrs. Cooper's Japanese students tried to order a Big Mac and a 7-Up at a drive-in. He ended up with seven Big Macs. Another student, a brilliant woman, was frustrated at being considered unintelligent because of her communication difficulties.

"Because these newcomers speak imperfect English, many Americans consider them second-class citizens," said Mrs. Cooper.

BARBARA BREITLANDER agreed. Barbara has been teaching foreign-born persons for eight years now, and is in her fourth year of teaching classes at Harper Community College which help immigrants prepare to become naturalized citizens.

"A newcomer to this country needs 'survival English' as quickly as possible," she said. "How can one shop for food, go to the dentist, fill out forms for jobs and have job interviews?"

Both women pointed out that there are also cultural differences that newcomers must adapt to.

"Some nationalities are very shy," said Mrs. Cooper. "For example, Asian women find it difficult to be aggressive and ask questions — it's not their place. At one of my session-culminating international dinners, a Japanese woman, aided by a Filipino woman, opened every closet door in my house rather than ask where the bathroom was."

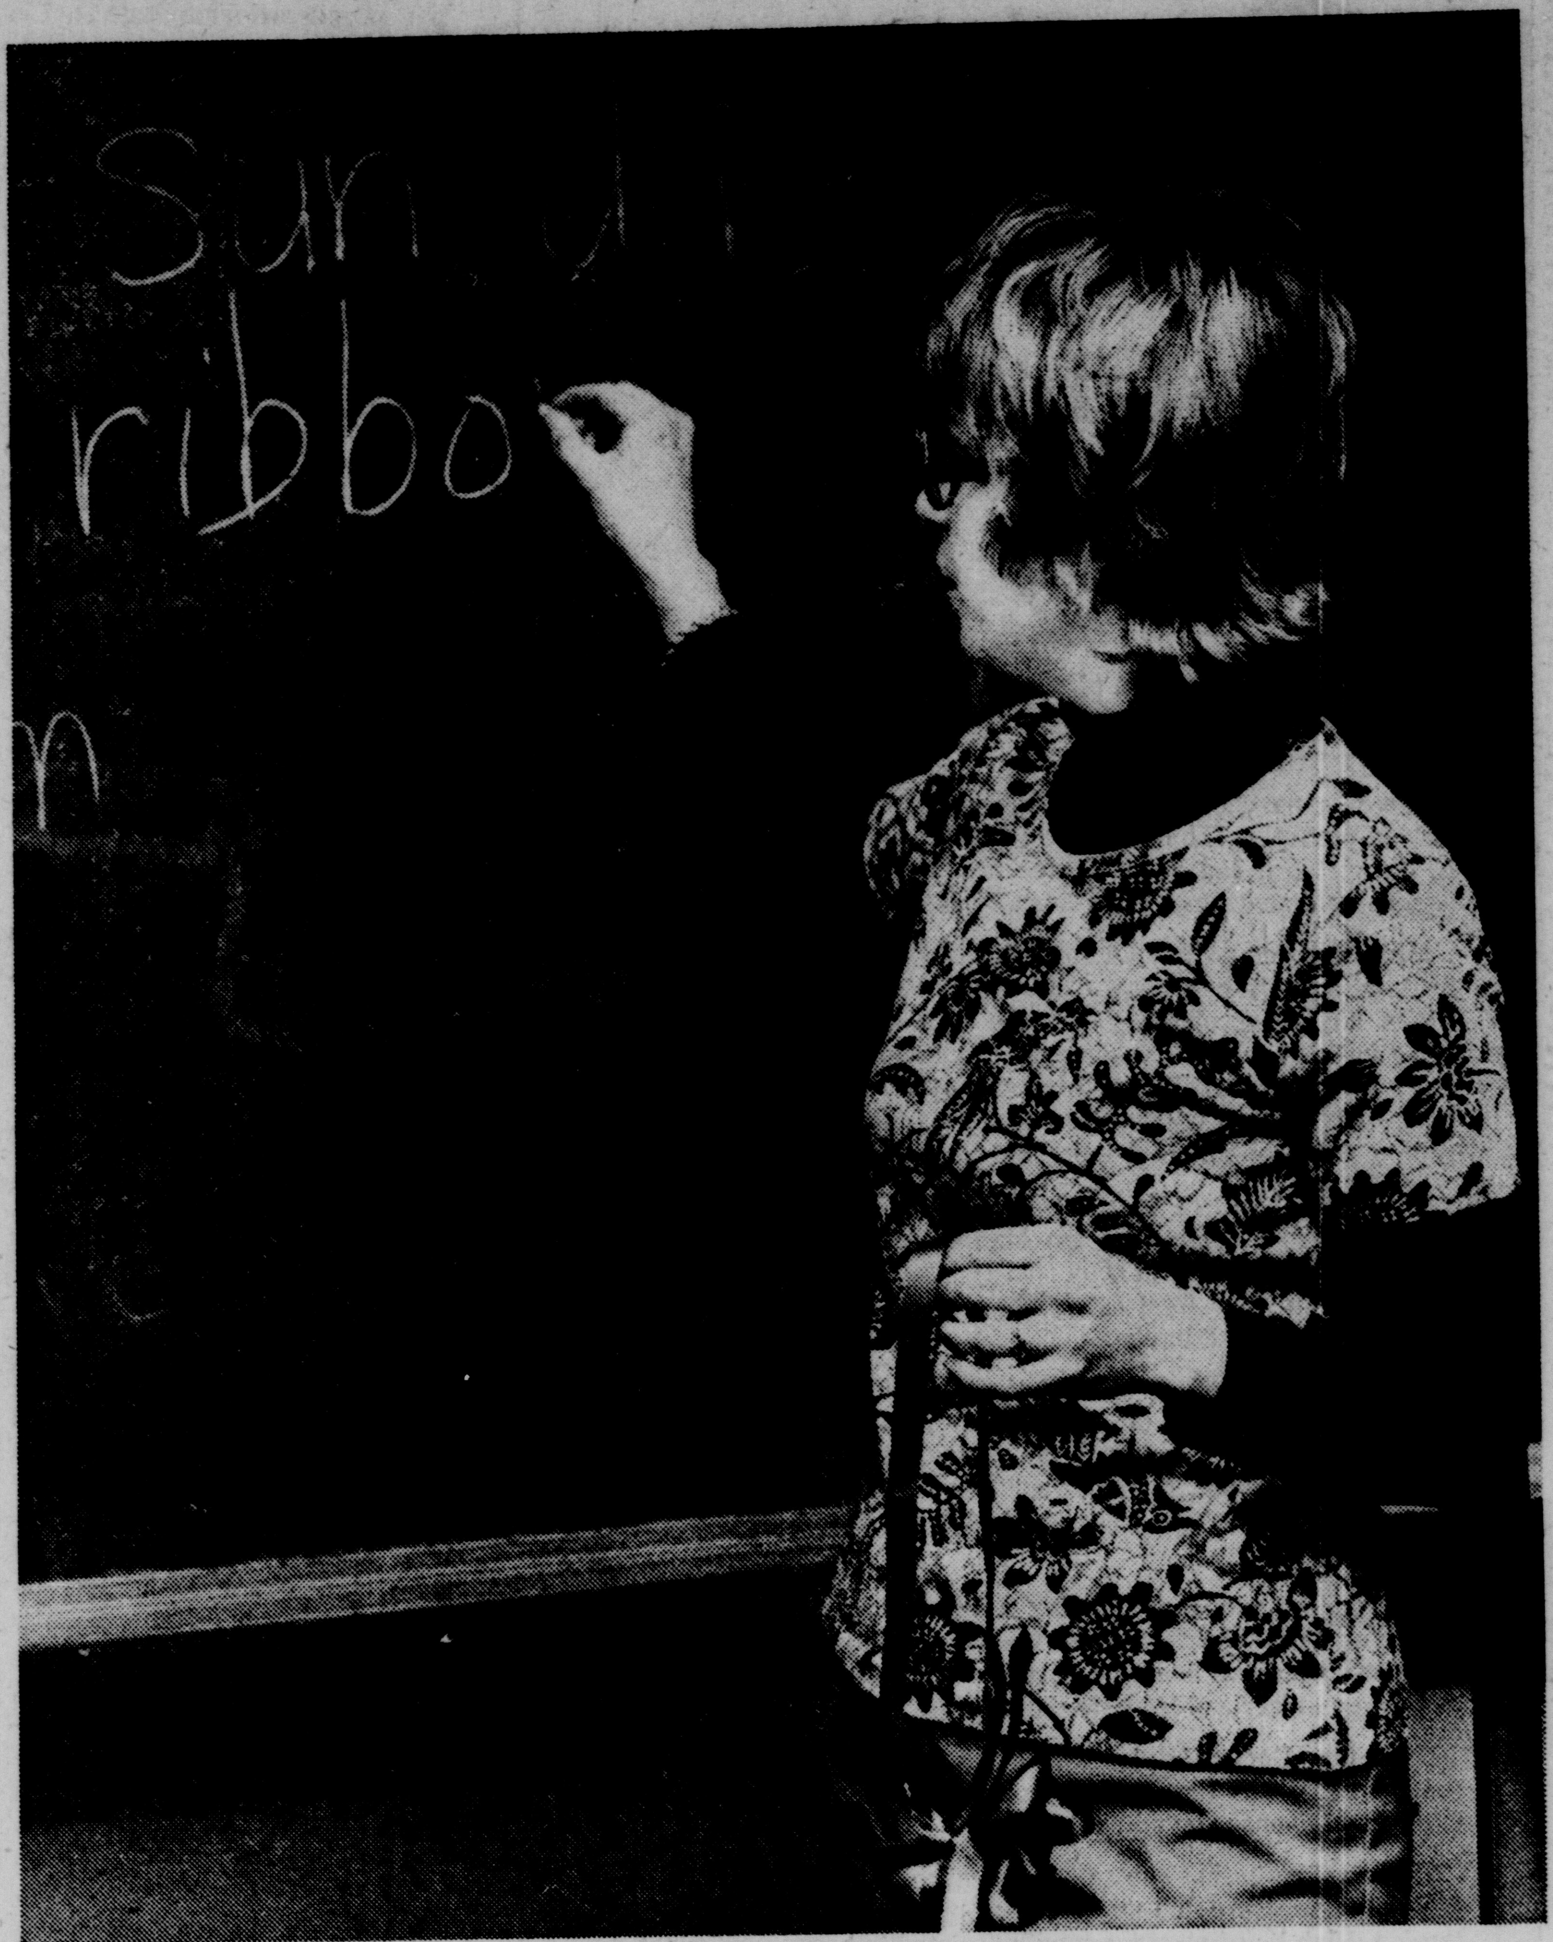
ONCE AN IMMIGRANT has a workable knowledge of English and has lived in the United States five years, he may apply to become a naturalized citizen. At that time, classes such as Ms. Breitlander's are invaluable. Students acquire a basic understanding of government and some U.S. history, at the same time enjoying an informal social experience.

One such family that attended her classes and went on to become U.S. citizens is the Wuertz family of Palatine — Franz, Theresia and daughters Elfriede and Katharina.

Born in a German section of Yugoslavia, the Wuertzes were living in Germany at the time they made the decision to become immigrants to the U.S. The dramatic, almost unbelievable chain of events in which they lost their home and their country during World War II started when they moved to Germany. A few years later, Franz was conscripted into the German army.

THERESIA AND HER baby girl, Elfriede, returned to Yugoslavia, where Katharina was born. When the Serbs took over Yugoslavia, Theresia and her two little girls and their grandmother were seized, their home and all their possessions taken from them, and they were thrown into a concentration camp.

Later they escaped by foot in the middle of the night — in two feet of snow — and managed to board a boxcar, where they hid among the baggage. Finally they reached Germany once more and were reunited with Franz when the war was over.



THE LANGUAGE BARRIER poses a basic problem for non-English speaking immigrants and most other problems stem from that. Mrs. Margot Cooper has been teaching English to new Americans for several years and understands the frustration they experience.

Times were hard in Germany then. And the Wuertzes knew they were not really welcome there. That's when they decided upon the country "where everybody is welcome."

THEY MADE THEIR first application in the late 1940s. But the Yugoslavian quota was quickly filled. They tried other years with no success.

Finally, in 1959, Elfriede wrote to the consulate in Frankfort, quickly received and returned the forms, and two weeks later, the four Wuertzes had completed their physical examinations, blood tests, x-rays — everything. Another week and approval came through.

And so, on the S.S. America heading for a new life were Franz and Theresia and their two girls, 17 and 18, both of whom had learned "British type" English in school. The 10-day voyage gave them a chance to attune their ear and modify their pronunciation.

IN 1974, THE Wuertzes made a group decision. They would apply for U.S. citizenship. But they would do so only as a family. All four must pass or none.

To prepare for this momentous occasion, they enrolled in Barbara Breitlander's class at Harper. "It helped us freshen up on history and the Constitution," said Katharina.

"Once your application and fingerprinting is in, it takes about three months before you are called in," Elfriede explained. "We were all scared. We thought the test would be hard. But we weren't alone. There were about 100 other people there of all nationalities.

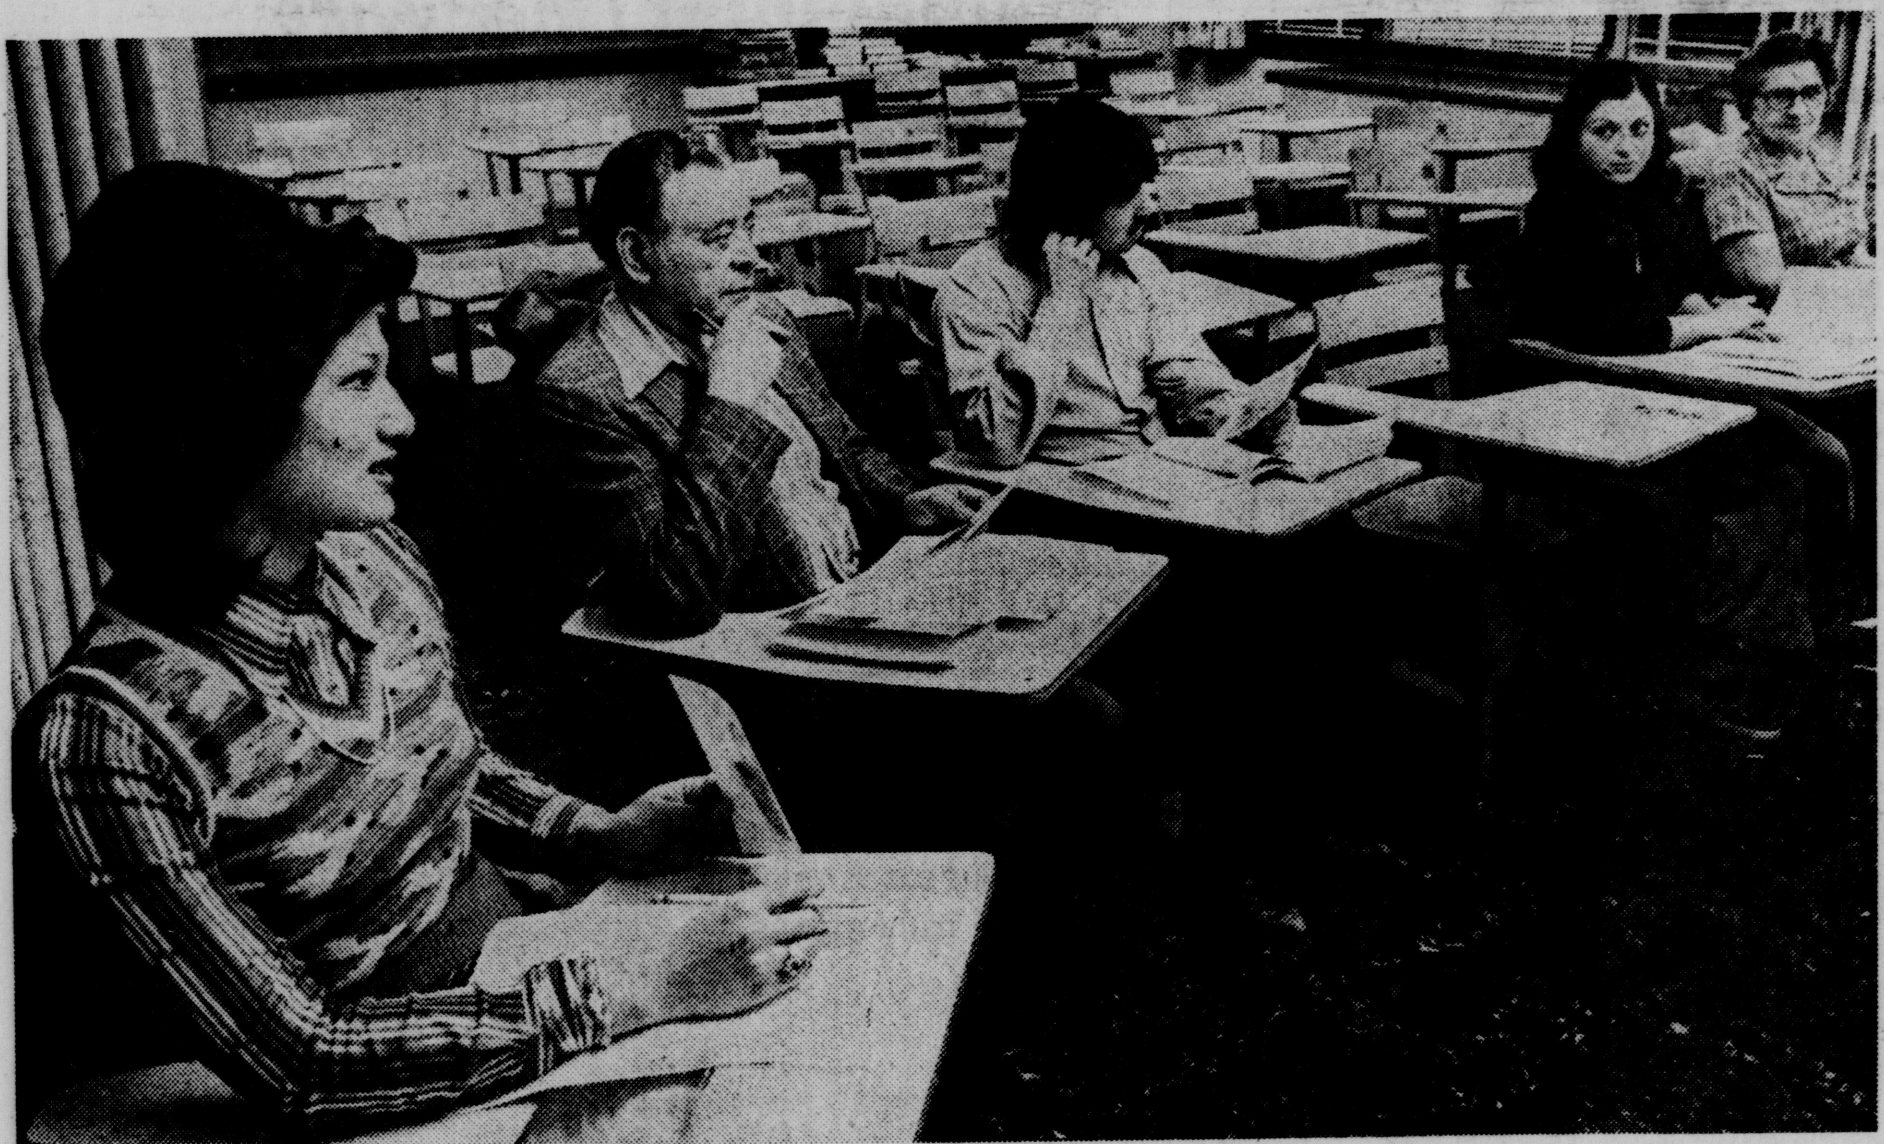
"THEY SEEMED TO go easier on the older people, and to ask more questions of the young. They really hit Katharina with a lot of questions — like 'Who was vice president to Abraham Lincoln?' But they helped her, too."

Elfriede was asked to name the last five presidents, counting backwards.

"Then before we could be sworn in, we had to prove that we could write in English. What did they ask us to write? That ever-lovin' phrase, 'I speak English well!' "

The four Wuertzes laugh over this as if enjoying an inside joke. Why not? They are obviously happy. They are U.S. citizens.

All four of them. Together.



IMMIGRANTS MUST HAVE a workable knowledge of English to become eligible for U.S. citizenship. The class in English for New Americans offered in Dist. 214 is only one of several open to foreign-born residents of the northwest suburbs.

Hushed up crime: child sex abuse

A public hearing of the Illinois Rape Study Committee this week brought into the open a serious problem long hushed up in polite society: the sexual abuse of children.

According to testimony presented,

- Sexual abuse of children most often is committed by family members in the home, not by strangers accosting children on the street.
- Sexual abuse of children is a problem that cuts across all socioeconomic lines. It occurs in middle and upper classes as well as among the poor, and it is possibly more prevalent among whites than blacks.

The Rape Study Committee is chaired by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. Rep Peter Peters, R-Chicago, is vice chairman, and Rep. Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, is secretary. The committee has successfully sponsored legislation dealing with the handling of rape cases in Illinois.

A bare minimum of 3,700 children are being sexually molested every year in Chicago, estimated Jerry Alexander, president of the Citizens Committee for Battered Children. He said Michael Reese Hospital alone treated 260 such children under 16 last year — even though the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services reported only 87 cases for the year.

THE CHICAGO POLICE Department handled 575 cases in 1975, and the commander of the department's youth division estimated actual cases are at last double that figure.

Of the sexually abused children treated at Michael Reese, Alexander said, 90 per cent were victims of family members, and only five assailants were prosecuted.

But Alexander repeatedly urged that "punitive legislation" and "vindictiveness against the abusers" is not the answer. "That won't help the child. Remedial efforts are needed to change parental (abuser) behavior."

Alexander described the effectiveness of his organization's Parental Stress Hotline, as well as such efforts in other states, in handling child abuse situations. He advocated a legislative commitment to "crisis intervention," with the state placing highly trained homemakers into the home to "put that family back together again."

"THOSE PARENTS love their children, and the child loves that parent, but the parents don't know what they're doing," Alexander said.

Alexander and other social workers testified that sexual abuse of children is a vicious, self-perpetuating cycle: such children almost inevitably grow up to be emotionally disturbed and unable to function sexually and socially in a normal manner. And a very high percentage of abusive parents, rapists, prostitutes, as well as people with sexual problems were themselves sexually abused as children, they testified.

But Rep. Geo-Karis disagreed with Alexander on the de-criminalization of sex abuse.

"You take the position the abuser shouldn't be penalized? You would leave the sex-abusing parent in the home?" Geo-Karis asked.

"What do we accomplish (by penalizing the abusing parent and/or removing him from the home)?" Alexander asked her in response. He declared the current practice of placing such children in a succession of foster homes has been a "disaster."

THOMAS HANRAHAN, director of the Child Advocate Association, also questioned punitive measures against abusers and called for more treatment facilities for both abused children and abusing adults, for better sex and parenting education in the schools, and for better coordination of police and state agencies.

But state social agencies were criticized by most witnesses as inefficient and unresponsive. Much of the blame was laid on under-staffing and lack of training, but suggestions by the legislators for increased funding or creating a new agency to handle child abuse problems were rejected by those testifying.

A group of social workers from the Southwest YMCA and Oak Lawn High School described a community program they have established to meet these needs locally.

THE SOCIAL WORKERS described several cases in which teenagers had come to them after being molested by fathers, brothers and other teenagers. They emphasized the need for sex education from grammar school through adulthood.

"In many of these cases, the incidents are denied or are considered unimportant by the parents," said one counselor.

A former assistant state's attorney, Edna Epstein, urged that the rules governing the testimony of children in court and the use of corroborating statements by adults, as well as treatment of child victims by the court system, be revised to make prosecution easier.

I was browsing through my bookshelves one evening, while my husband was doing the dishes (it had been an especially trying day at the office, else I might have given him a hand), and I ran across a real gem of a little book that I had overlooked for two years.

The book, entitled "Happy Living! A Guidebook for Brides," had been given to me by an Ohio department store bridal salon when I had "registered" (against my better judgment!).

Upon mentioning this book to a friend for reasons to be disclosed shortly, I learned that she received the book from Carson Pirie Scott when she had registered there three years ago. The same book, copyright 1970 (original edition 1965) by American Bride Publications, Los Angeles, is still being given out by Carson's.

AUTHORS EVELYN Enright and Ann Seranne open their volume with this Introduction:

"The beauty of your wedding day can last a lifetime if you are as anxious to become a good homemaker as you are to be a lovely bride."

It goes on:

The ultimate goal: U. S. citizenship

by ELEANOR RIVES

(Last of four parts)

Destination U.S.A.

They come with hope, courage and strength, wave upon wave of immigrants, separating themselves from their friends, their families, their native land, hoping to find a new and better life.

"We are going to that country where everybody is welcome," solemnly declared the mother in a Yugoslavian family. Today they are happy Palatine residents — all U.S. citizens.

The United States is a nation of immigrants. Between 1820 and 1974, it welcomed 46,712,725 of them. The total of almost 400,000 people who came in 1974 is 23 per cent larger than the average of the 1960s. And, according to Tom Bethell, an editor of The Washington Monthly, writing in Newsweek last May, if the present rates of immigration continue through this decade, there will actually have been as many immigrants in the 1970s as in the 1890s — one of the peak immigration decades.

ONE CANNOT help but admire these newcomers. To assume the role of an immigrant takes much courage, for the requirements are rigid, the process sometimes tedious, and even when one has succeeded in entering the country, many problems lie ahead.

Mrs. Margot Cooper, who has taught English for New Americans in Dist. 214's adult education system for more than six years, has acquired a deep understanding and genuine fondness and respect for foreign-born people.

"The basic problem is obvious," she said. "It is language. Most other problems stem from that one.

"Can you imagine, with only a smattering of English, trying to deal with doctors, lawyers or public service people? Suppose you were involved in even a minor auto accident."

MANY OF HER students complain that Americans speak too fast, that they cut off ends of words. Consider: "I dunno," "Where ya going?," "Be seein ya." It's downright confusing. It's even more confusing over the telephone without being able to see the person speaking.

Destination U.S.A.

One of Mrs. Cooper's Japanese students tried to order a Big Mac and a 7-Up at a drive-in. He ended up with seven Big Macs. Another student, a brilliant woman, was frustrated at being considered unintelligent because of her communication difficulties.

"Because these newcomers speak imperfect English, many Americans consider them second-class citizens," said Mrs. Cooper.

BARBARA BREITLANDER agreed. Barbara has been teaching foreign-born persons for eight years now, and is in her fourth year of teaching classes at Harper Community College which help immigrants prepare to become naturalized citizens.

"A newcomer to this country needs 'survival English' as quickly as possible," she said. "How can one shop for food, go to the dentist, fill out forms for jobs and have job interviews?"

Both women pointed out that there are also cultural differences that newcomers must adapt to.

"Some nationalities are very shy," said Mrs. Cooper. "For example, Asian women find it difficult to be aggressive and ask questions — it's not their place. At one of my session-culminating international dinners, a Japanese woman, aided by a Filipino woman, opened every closet door in my house rather than ask where the bathroom was."

ONCE AN IMMIGRANT has a workable knowledge of English and has lived in the United States five years, he may apply to become a naturalized citizen. At that time, classes such as Ms. Breitlander's are invaluable. Students acquire a basic understanding of government and some U.S. history, at the same time enjoying an informal social experience.

One such family that attended her classes and went on to become U.S. citizens is the Wuertz family of Palatine — Franz, Theresia and daughters Elfriede and Katharina.

Born in a German section of Yugoslavia, the Wuertzes were living in Germany at the time they made the decision to become immigrants to the U.S. The dramatic, almost unbelievable chain of events in which they lost their home and their country during World War II started when they moved to Germany. A few years later, Franz was conscripted into the German army.

THERESIA AND HER baby girl, Elfriede, returned to Yugoslavia, where Katharina was born. When the Serbs took over Yugoslavia, Theresia and her two little girls and their grandmother were seized, their home and all their possessions taken from them, and they were thrown into a concentration camp.

Later they escaped by foot in the middle of the night — in two feet of snow — and managed to board a boxcar, where they hid among the baggage. Finally they reached Germany once more and were reunited with Franz when the war was over.

Cholesterol absent from plant foods

Would you publish a list of foods which tend to raise cholesterol level? In other words, which foods one should avoid if the cholesterol level is on the high side.

There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin. It is only in animal products. The chief sources of large amounts of cholesterol in the diet are egg yolks, butter fat in butter, milk, cheese and some organ meats, especially liver, brains and sweetbreads.

Meat, fish and poultry all have about 70 milligrams of cholesterol in three and one-half ounces (100 grams) raw weight. You should try to limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day. By using fortified skim milk, buttermilk, uncreamed cottage cheese for dairy products, avoiding the high cholesterol foods and using vegetable margarines, you can still eat quite a bit of the meat, fish and poultry group without consuming too much cholesterol.

Unfortunately there is much more to keeping the cholesterol down than just eliminating the high cholesterol foods. You need also to eliminate or avoid body obesity by diet and exercise and you need to limit your total fat intake of any type and particularly control saturated fat intake.

For more information on the principles of diet to prevent heart disease send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. My buddies and I are having a discussion concerning ulcers, nerves and high blood pressure. Which occurs first, ulcers and then a nervous condition and high blood pressure or a nervous condition and then an ulcer and high blood pressure?

Have fun. Doctors still argue about these points, especially in specific cases and the conclusions are sometimes no more enlightened than the ones you may make.

The problem is that one can't generalize. Certainly one can have high blood pressure and not have any problems at all with nervous tension. High blood pressure may be related to being overweight, to having kidney disease or even to having certain hormonal abnormalities in the body.

Ulcers are often associated with excessive nervous tension, but again we do see them in people without any clear evidence of abnormal stress and we see a lot of people with lots of stress who have neither high blood pressure nor ulcers.

We see people with an infinite variety of stress reactions, nervous disorders and even psychosis who have neither medical problem.

We know that when people are sick from any cause, they may then become nervous, depressed or emotionally unstable. It is pretty depressing to find out you have a serious cancer or that you have a serious heart disease or have just had a stroke.

So you can't separate the physical, chemical and emotional responses of the body any more than you can decide which comes first, the chicken or the egg.

Oakum only material to caulk log cabin

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to caulk a log cabin other than using oakum? I'd like to use a material that could be sprayed into the cracks — that would set, but not so hard that it would chip or fall out. — Dorothy C. Sauer

My checks result in the answer that oakum is the only reliable product for this kind of job. When you learn that this fiber is impregnated with tar, creosote or asphalt and is used for caulking wood hulls and for packing joints in caissons, you realize it's the sturdiest of materials. Prompts the comment that, thanks to the questions that come this way, I keep adding to an unusual education.

Dear Dorothy: From an old book on spices, I learned that cloves are the most effective of all spices in preventing food spoilage. Since then I've made it a habit to drop three cloves into chicken or beef stock — or foods like boiled beans, rice, grits. Sure enough, they do keep better. It's an especially valuable tip for those who make soup stocks which spoil fast. — Lois Snyder Hennessy

General agreement yes, but I hold that soup should never be refrigerated for longer than two to three days. If it's to be kept longer, it should be frozen.

Dear Dorothy: I have some tiny crystal saltshakers that have a film in them I can't remove. Any ideas? — Drew Sheridan

Sometimes putting them in the dishwasher compartment made to hold silverware will do the trick. Another way is to fill them with full-strength household ammonia and let them stand for 24 hours. Rinsed with hot water and left to dry, they ought to sparkle.

about your ability to choose china, silver, glassware, linens and kitchen equipment." (No doubt. ANY woman would feel insecure about her ability to make such heavy decisions!)

"Then there is the even more overwhelming task of coordinating dozens of separate elements — furniture, fabrics, floor coverings and accessories — into a harmonious whole." (I've been married two years and still can't afford a "harmonious whole" for even one room!)

Of course, the book notes in a chapter titled "For Bridegrooms Only," it isn't fair for husbands "as the head of the household" to "leave all these decisions to your wife."

The book tells husbands: "You may be color blind, but it's nice to have you along when buying furniture. While women are influenced by style and color, men usually consider comfort and practicality first."

And, husbands, "Grumble all you want. It IS a man's prerogative to show disdain for shopping, even though he may secretly enjoy it."

More comfort for the bride:

"While you may be dismayed by the stores of knowledge you have yet to acquire about homemaking, remember that as a woman, you are endowed with an instinct for domesticity. There is nothing in life more gratifying than the ability to create and maintain a warm, livable home for someone you love."

Not only were you ladies born to keep house; "Happy Living" takes care of any lapses in your chromosomes by providing you a blueprint in a chapter titled "How to Keep House."

Here are some of the chores under "Daily Routine": Swab the kitchen floor with a mop, wipe range burners and refrigerator, dust and tidy rooms, vacuum, use dry mop on uncovered floors, wash the bathtub, basin and toilet, wipe the bathroom floor.

"These tasks, of course, are in addition to the essentials — dishwashing, bedmaking, marketing and cooking." (What's the matter with you women who only market once a month? Can't you get organized?)

"Once-a-week tasks": Scrub the kitchen floor, clean range thoroughly inside and out, defrost the refrigerator, wash inside and out, vacuum uphostery, draperies, blinds, window and door frames, rugs, floors and baseboards, vacuum lamp shades, swab plastic shades, clean bathroom, do the laundry and ironing, polish silver and decorative metals, swab railings and doorknobs, rub up wood furniture. (What ever happened to "spring" housecleaning?)

And now, ladies, if you have any time or energy left over after you finish your daily and weekly routines, you may ask your husbands for permission to go out to a NOW meeting.

My buddies and I are having a discussion concerning ulcers, nerves and high blood pressure. Which occurs first, ulcers and then a nervous condition and high blood pressure or a nervous condition and then an ulcer and high blood pressure?

Have fun. Doctors still argue about these points, especially in specific cases and the conclusions are sometimes no more enlightened than the ones you may make.

The problem is that one can't generalize. Certainly one can have high blood pressure and not have any problems at all with nervous tension. High blood pressure may be related to being overweight, to having kidney disease or even to having certain hormonal abnormalities in the body.

Ulcers are often associated with excessive nervous tension, but again we do see them in people without any clear evidence of abnormal stress and we see a lot of people with lots of stress who have neither high blood pressure nor ulcers.

We see people with an infinite variety of stress reactions, nervous disorders and even psychosis who have neither medical problem.

We know that when people are sick from any cause, they may then become nervous, depressed or emotionally unstable. It is pretty depressing to find out you have a serious cancer or that you have a serious heart disease or have just had a stroke.

So you can't separate the physical, chemical and emotional responses of the body any more than you can decide which comes first, the chicken or the egg.

Oakum only material to caulk log cabin

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to caulk a log cabin other than using oakum? I'd like to use a material that could be sprayed into the cracks — that would set, but not so hard that it would chip or fall out. — Dorothy C. Sauer

My checks result in the answer that oakum is the only reliable product for this kind of job. When you learn that this fiber is impregnated with tar, creosote or asphalt and is used for caulking wood hulls and for packing joints in caissons, you realize it's the sturdiest of materials. Prompts the comment that, thanks to the questions that come this way, I keep adding to an unusual education.

Dear Dorothy: From an old book on spices, I learned that cloves are the most effective of all spices in preventing food spoilage. Since then I've made it a habit to drop three cloves into chicken or beef stock — or foods like boiled beans, rice, grits. Sure enough, they do keep better. It's an especially valuable tip for those who make soup stocks which spoil fast. — Lois Snyder Hennessy

General agreement yes, but I hold that soup should never be refrigerated for longer than two to three days. If it's to be kept longer, it should be frozen.

Dear Dorothy: I have some tiny crystal saltshakers that have a film in them I can't remove. Any ideas? — Drew Sheridan

Sometimes putting them in the dishwasher compartment made to hold silverware will do the trick. Another way is to fill them with full-strength household ammonia and let them stand for 24 hours. Rinsed with hot water and left to dry, they ought to sparkle.

Keeping up

about your ability to choose china, silver, glassware, linens and kitchen equipment." (No doubt. ANY woman would feel insecure about her ability to make such heavy decisions!)

"Then there is the even more overwhelming task of coordinating dozens of separate elements — furniture, fabrics, floor coverings and accessories — into a harmonious whole." (I've been married two years and still can't afford a "harmonious whole" for even one room!)

Of course, the book notes in a chapter titled "For Bridegrooms Only," it isn't fair for husbands "as the head of the household" to "leave all these decisions to your wife."

The book tells husbands: "You may be color blind, but it's nice to have you along when buying furniture. While women are influenced by style and color, men usually consider comfort and practicality first."

And, husbands, "Grumble all you want. It IS a man's prerogative to show disdain for shopping, even though he may secretly enjoy it."

More comfort for the bride:

"While you may be dismayed by the stores of knowledge you have yet to acquire about homemaking, remember that as a woman, you are endowed with an instinct for domesticity. There is nothing in life more gratifying than the ability to create and maintain a warm, livable home for someone you love."

Not only were you ladies born to keep house; "Happy Living" takes care of any lapses in your chromosomes by providing you a blueprint in a chapter titled "How to Keep House."

Here are some of the chores under "Daily Routine": Swab the kitchen floor with a mop, wipe range burners and refrigerator, dust and tidy rooms, vacuum, use dry mop on uncovered floors, wash the bathtub, basin and toilet, wipe the bathroom floor.

"These tasks, of course, are in addition to the essentials — dishwashing, bedmaking, marketing and cooking." (What's the matter with you women who only market once a month? Can't you get organized?)

"Once-a-week tasks": Scrub the kitchen floor, clean range thoroughly inside and out, defrost the refrigerator, wash inside and out, vacuum uphostery, draperies, blinds, window and door frames, rugs, floors and baseboards, vacuum lamp shades, swab plastic shades, clean bathroom, do the laundry and ironing, polish silver and decorative metals, swab railings and doorknobs, rub up wood furniture. (What ever happened to "spring" housecleaning?)

And now, ladies, if you have any time or energy left over after you finish your daily and weekly routines, you may ask your husbands for permission to go out to a NOW meeting.

Look Younger in the Face of Winter

You can look older sooner than you think. As early as your twenties, your natural moisture and oil supply decreases, leaving your skin vulnerable. Winter, with its chill weather, harsh winds and indoor heat can quickly dry your skin, making you look older . . . no matter what your age. Take a close look in the mirror. Is that really how you want your skin to look?

Now discover the secret of a mysterious beauty fluid, a secret shared by knowledgeable women of all ages in many parts of the world, who look their youngest no matter what the season. This beauty fluid, with its wealth of pure moisture and tropical oils, is known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion.

Oil of Olay works hand-in-hand with nature to ease away the dryness that can too easily make you look older too soon. The beauty fluid penetrates your skin's surface deeply and astonishingly quickly. And there's never, ever, a greasy afterfeel. The beauty fluid works almost exactly like your own natural moisture to soothe away dryness. And it helps maintain the oil-moisture balance of your skin, essential if it's to look as young and glowing as possible.

Watch as your skin virtually drinks in Oil of Olay. Within moments your complexion grows noticeably softer and smoother, so you can look your youngest, whatever your age. Soothe on Oil of Olay every single morning. It's marvelous under makeup or, if you choose to go bare-faced, it provides a moist environment for your skin. Again every single night, to work beautifully during hours of sleep. And whenever else a feeling of dryness tells you that the moisture content of your skin should be increased.

Enjoy the winter weather . . . the skiing, sledding, all the fun the season has to offer. Just be sure to let your skin enjoy the benefits of Oil of Olay. You will find the mysterious beauty fluid at your drugstore.

Winter Beauty Secret

In this weather, your skin can scarcely get enough Oil of Olay®. Carry it with you in your purse or tote bag, so you'll never be caught without its help.

America facing female crime wave sociologist tells scientist meeting

by AL ROSSITER JR.

America is facing a "female crime wave" and there may be more behind it than just the women's liberation movement which often is cited as the cause, a New York sociologist said this week.

Dr. Florence L. Denmark said the reasons responsible for the sharp rise in female crime rates during the past decade probably go far deeper than the increasing awareness of women's options in society.

"The female offender, whether acting by herself or with others, is not typically the emancipated intellectual striving for civil liberties," Dr. Denmark told a final session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in Boston.

"Her crime is rarely an assertion of equal rights, or an unconscious attempt at achieving her own or other's rights. She may feel dominated by men or even wish to imitate men or obtain male approval for her actions."

IN A REPORT written with Dr. Ruth Rutschmann-Jaffe of Barnard College, Dr. Denmark said that although arrests of men are still far greater than women, the rate of increase in female arrests between 1960 and 1973 was three times that of males. Female arrests for violent crimes increased by 278 per cent for women compared to 88 per cent for men.

"Clearly, women are no longer limiting themselves to so-called traditionally female crimes of shoplifting and prostitution," Dr. Denmark said. "Kitchen knives have given way to pistols and sawed off shotguns.

"We seem to be witnessing a female crime wave," she told a special symposium on violence in America.

THE REASONS, she said, probably involve an interaction of psychological, social, economic, political and even religious factors.

Denmark said the rise in female crime cannot be fully separated psychologically from inner conflict and stress. And she said the fact that more women than men are reported to be suffering from some sort of mental illness suggests "a powerful link between what women are experiencing and what they are doing."

Home study fosters garden expertise

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Avid gardeners who are housebound and can't get out to an adult education class in gardening or pursue a college course may be interested in independent home gardening study.

Such a horitcultural correspondence course is offered by the University of Guelph, Guelph, Ont., Canada.

The only requirement for enrollment is an interest in horitculture. It is a one-year Home Gardener's Course, developed to increase general horticultural knowledge of the public.

Ten subjects are required to be covered over a one-year period, one month per subject with special allowances for vacation seasons, and a certificate awarded on completion.

MATERIAL COVERS such various subjects as houseplants and bulbs; vegetables and herbs; climate, soil and fertilizers; flower beds and patio containers; small fruits and trees; propagation; lawns and landscaping, and pest control. Tuition is $50 for the Home Gardener's Course and text books run $30.65 additional for five books.

Books may be mail-ordered directly from the Guelph Campus Bookstore.

Credit courses leading to an Ontario Diploma in Horticulture from the University of Guelph require 40 or more credit hours. This one is a three-year home study program. The offerings are a little more advanced: general botany, entomology, pathology, plant breeding; weed science, resource management, etc.

TUITION AND TEST fees run considerably higher for the ODH than for the Home Gardener's Course. but tuition fees are tax-deductible. scholarships and admission with advanced standing are available.

More information on this method of gaining more horticultural expertise in your own fashion at home, and at your own rate of speed, may be had by writing: Independent Study, University of Guelph, Office of Continuing Education, Guelph, Ont., Canada.

It's an interesting option for serious gardeners.

Luncheon show will feature young designers

The luncheon show, an annual benefit sponsored by the BPW, will be held Saturday, March 6, in the Round Table Room of the Arlington Park Hilton.

Attendance at the show, one of the largest in the area, is expected to top last year's 700 guests. Each guest receives a "goodie bag" of surprises and dozens of other gifts will be presented.

THE AFFAIR OPENS with cocktails at noon, followed by luncheon at 1 and then the show. Donation is $8.50 and reservations may be made with Charlotte Shaughnessy, CL 3-4755.

Proceeds from the benefit will again go toward scholarships for freshmen design students at Harper. The scholarships are awarded in May when design students stage a showing of their ensembles and for which BPW members serve as judges.

Originally planned as an informational program for club members, the Juniors felt that, due to growing concern and publicity on the subject, it should be open to all.

"Every woman should see this film and be aware of ways to protect herself," says Trooper Lawrence Ostrowski, who will speak following the film and demonstrate some of the techniques shown.

The program has been planned and coordinated by the Public Affairs Department of the club. Mrs. Beverly Rynes, chairman, may be contacted at 253-7157 for further information.

Landmark art, 'The Bather,' is 1 year old

by Jerry Thomas

One year later she sits in the pond, nude, serene, oblivious of the flurry of controversy that still surrounds her.

"The Bather," a concrete sculpture designed by the late Pablo Picasso, is a Roling Meadows landmark — like it or not.

Built in 1975 in the $30 million Gould Center at Golf Road and the Northwest Tollway, the sculpture of a nude woman bathing in a pool is in the center courtyard of the company's office-sports complex still under construction.

THE BATHER during its construction was and still is, probably the most talked-about woman to settle in the suburbs.

To some The Bather "is a touch of class," while others describe the statue as "that ugly, fat thing."

Inspirational, icky, art, neat or a waste of money? Take your pick. The words have all been used to describe The Bather.

While no one has termed the statue a raving beauty, The Bather has been noticed. In terms of her becomine a focal point of both the complex and city and attracting national attention, she has made it.

"I don't see her as a controversial piece," said Mayor Roland J. Meyer. "She is art.

"SOME LIKE classical music while others prefer pop. It's about the same in art. So, for those who are offended or don't care for The Bather, I always suggest they look the other way.

"I think the statue has been a

If expansion referendum passes

by BILL HILL

The Countryside Art Center and another village-owned house will likely be demolished this spring if a referendum to expand the Arlington Heights Memorial Library is approved Saturday.

The two village-owned buildings at 414 N. Vail Ave. and 115 W. Fremont St. would become a parking lot to serve the library, which is kitty-corner from them.

The new parking lot will be needed because the expansion of the library would eliminate the parking lot now used by the library.

THE BUILDING at 115 W. Fremont St. provides offices for the Arlington Heights Youth Counseling Center, the Civil Defense and the United Fund. Countryside Art Center is located at 414 N. Vail Ave.

All four organizations will be moved to a small brick building next door at 408 N. Vail Ave. is the two buildings are demolished, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said.

The two buildings are in deplorable condition" now, and will eventually need to be razed even if the library expansion is not approved, Hanson said.

"It's not economically feasible to continue repairing the roofs and plumbing of the two buildings to keep them operating," he said.

THE COUNTRYSIDE Art Center, a non-profit organization, is housed in a three-story building, but since last fall has been allowed to use only the first level because the top two floors do not meet fire code regulations. The organization pays the village $125 a month to rent the building.

"We feel the rent is quite fair, but the building really is horrible. It's falling down around us," said Susan Mart, president of the art group.

She said she is not sure if the building at 408 N. Vail Ave. is large enough for all four organizations to use. She also questioned whether the rooms are "structurally" large enough for the art gallery.

The move of the art center will be

Vote OK would meet library needs

Arlington Heights library officials say approval of Saturday's $2.25 million referendum will satisfy Arlington Heights' library needs for the next 10 years.

The referendum, if approved, would cost homeowners with a house assessed at $10,000 approximately $8 a year during the next 20 years.

Frank Dempsey, executive librarian, said Wednesday he is optimistic about the outcome of the referendum because, he says, there has been only minimal public opposition.

AT STAKE IS a $2.2 million bond issue to expand the library building at 500 N. Dunton St. The proposed $1.6 million expansion will extend the building across Fremont Street onto land now used as a commuter parking lot.

A $50,000 remodeling of the existing building, $55,000 expansion of parking areas, and $265,000 for new library equipment also are part of the planned expenditures.

When the library last went to the voters in April, its proposal included a tax rate increase, an auditorium, the expansion program and $720,000 in bonds for new books.

All but the book purchases went down in defeat, but a legal technical-

Prosecution hits image of Patty as 'school girl'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst smoked marijuana and pressed fiance Steven Weed to give her LSD and mescaline which she took in the year before her kidnaping, a psychiatrist told her trial jury Wednesday.

Dr. Louis J. West, a defense witness, acknowledged under probing government cross examination that both the defendant and Weed told him about using the illegal hallucinatory drugs and marijuana while they were living together.

The questions by Assistant U.S. Atty. David Bancroft brought defense lawyer F. Lee Bailey to his feet shouting objections.

"Is the government saying that anyone who smokes grass is a bank robber?" Bailey asked.

Bancroft said he was not, but that he was trying to show that before her abduction she was not a "naive school girl" as he said the psychiatrist had tried to portray her at her trial on bank robbery charges.

West, head of the psychiatry department at UCLA and an expert on brainwashing of POWs, was followed to the stand by a colleague, Dr. Martin T. Orne of Philadelphia, a research psychiatrist at the University of Pennsylvania and an expert in hypnosis.

Dr. Orne was on the stand very briefly Wednesday and was to continue his testimony Thursday.

Orne said he had come to the concluson after interviewing her extensively that Miss Hearst was not "sim-

Shape up or else, Walker tells RTA

Gov. Daniel Walker said Wednesday he will ask the Illinois Generl Assembly to "do something" about the Regional Transportation Authority if it does not improve this year. "I supported the RTA and still think it's a good idea," he told students at the College of Lake County in Grayslake. "But I am very disappointed in what has come out of it. "They have given disproportionate attention to just paying off the deficit of the Chicago Transit Authority." Walker said he also is disturbed that the RTA board has not worked out purchase-of-service agreements with most commuter railroads in the six-county Chicago area, and has done little to improve suburban bus service. "I'm willing to give them a little more time, but if they don't get on the ball and start moving, in the next session of the legislature, we've got to do something about it," he said.

Greyhound seeks stop in area

The Greyhound Bus Co. may have a passenger and package service location in Rolling Meadows by summer. The bus firm is negotiating with city officials to operate a bus stop and package delivery and pickup service at Rolling Meadows Shopping Center, Kirchoff Road and Meadows Drive. "A bus stop in the city would be good for residents and also industry, which often uses the package delivery and pickup service Greyhound provides," Jerry Metyk, owner of Meadows Drugs and president of the shopping center association which is supporting the move. A Greyhound official said the nearest Greyhound terminals to the Northwest suburban area are in Elgin and Northlake.

Teachers join bargaining unit

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 teachers have voted to join a bargaining coalition of elementary school teachers in the North and Northwest suburbs, and other area teachers' unions are expected to join soon. The North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council, representing 1,300 teachers in 10 area school districts, was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for member unions and research the financial backgrounds of each school district. A Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 teachers' union official says his union is expected to join the coalition within the next month and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 union leaders may consider joining later this year.

Oakton work on schedule

Construction plans for Oakton Community College's permanent campus are back on schedule, but college officials are still under orders to trim $1.7 million from its $12.7 million building budget. The Illinois Capital Development Board, which must approve all construction budgets for state schools and has ordered the budget cutback, told architects to continue designing the campus as planned. The architects have previously said they would not continue working on designs until the budget issue was resolved. College officials had feared that a delay in designing the campus would affect the scheduled fall 1978 opening.

Ford looks ahead to string of victories

From Herald news services

President Ford, who defeated Ronald Reagan by about 1,300 votes in the cliffhanger New Hampshire primary Wednesday, said his victory will propel him to a string of victories over Reagan and first ballot nomination at the GOP national convention.

Democrat Jimmy Carter, meanwhile, bouyed by an unexpectedly solid win over four liberal Democrats said he doesn't have "any fear" of the other candidates and predicted a first ballot victory at the Democratic convention.

With virtually all ballots counted, Ford had 54,824 votes, or 51 per cent; Reagan 53,507, or 49 per cent. Ford also won 17 of the 21 delegates to the GOP national convention.

In the Democratic race, with the vote also nearly complete, Carter polled 22,895 votes (30 per cent); Rep. Morris Udall, 18,594 (24 per cent); Sen. Birch Bayh, 12,557 (16 per cent); former Sen. Fred Harris, 8,824 (11 per cent); Sargent Shriver, 6,649 (9 per cent). Carter won 13 convention delegates and Udall the other 4.

Campaigning in Illinois, Reagan said he "couldn't be more pleased" with his showing but it would be "very difficult" to win in Illinois in three weeks.

Reagan told reporters "It's an extremely uphill fight here. We know that the state organization has been well put together in regard to the President. We'll take our own case to the grassroots and see at least how much of the vote we can get."

He said it will be "an accomplishment" if he gets 40 per cent of the Illinois vote.

In Washington, Ford scoffed at Reagan for finding satisfaction with second place.

"I never knew of a political campaign where finishing second was any good," he said.

In reaction from Illinois, meantime, there is no indications that Carter, despite his victory, will have support from Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization in the March 16 presidential popularity contest.

Carter, Shriver, Harris and Alabama Gov. George Wallace are the only Democrats entered in the Illinois primary, and so far the Daley organization hasn't come out for anyone.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, Daley's choice for secretary of state, called Carter "a favorite in a field of non-favorites," and said he thinks it is unlikely the Daley organization would support him in the state's primary or on the first ballot at the convention.

Secretary of State Michael J. Howlett, Daley's choice for governor, said Carter's showing "will make him a better candidate in Illinois," but declined to predict organization backing.

Meantime, Morris Udall, who finished second in the primary, said he must lead the liberal pack in the Massachusetts primary or his candidacy is "in real trouble."

Udall said the big difference between the Massachusetts and New Hampshire primaries is "we are playing with a full deck. All the candidates are in the race."

Udall said if all the candidates, including Wallace and Sen. Henry Jackson had run in the New Hampshire primary, he would have won.

Reacting to the primary, Senate GOP leader Robert Griffin said if Ford captures the Florida primary, Reagan "will be out of the race."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., the 1972 Democratic presidential nominee said Udall "clearly won" the battle among "more progressive" candidates bidding for the nomination. He said: "If we are heading toward a race between Udall and Carter, Udall is clearly the better man — in his record, his consistency of principle, and his vision of the country."

Senate votes daylight time extension

The Senate voted Wednesday to put the nation on daylight saving time for seven months a year instead of six, accepting arguments this would save energy and reduce traffic accidents and street crime. The legislation passed 70 to 23 and was sent to the House — which appears unlikely to act on it before the implementation date. As finally approved, the bill calls for starting daylight time on March 14 and terminating it in mid-October. Daylight saving time now runs from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

Schorr, of leak fame, cites 'pendulum'

Suspended CBS reporter Daniel Schorr, under congressional investigation for releasing a secret House intelligence report, said Wednesday he was hit by a "pendulum" swinging from public interest in spy agencies to concern about security. Schorr told a news conference he did the right thing in making the House intelligence committee report available for newspaper publication, but disclosed no details of where he got it or how he channeled it to the Village Voice, a New York weekly newspaper. "There have always been in our country two great urges — one towards security, one towards liberty," he said. "The pendulum constantly swings between them . . ."

Union farm workers get boost from court

The Supreme Court Wednesday gave a boost to unionized California farm workers who are trying to keep cheap Mexican labor out of the state's vineyards and lettuce fields. In an 8-0 decision, the court held that a California law punishing those who knowingly employe illegal aliens does not necessarily impinge on Congress' control over immigration, under either statutes or the Constitution. Nevertheless the court sent the case back to the 2nd District California Court of Appeals, which had ruled the statute unconstitutional on its face, for closer examination as to whether it conflicts with federal law.

Country can't export revolution: Castro

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro declared Wednesday it was impossible for his country or any country to "export" revolution through war but warned no one can prevent a nation from having a revolution. Castro spoke before 5,000 applauding delegates at the 25th Communist party congress in the Kremlin in an apparent reply to a warning from U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Cuba against armed intervention. "No one can export revolution or impose revolution by means of war," the bearded Cuban leader said.

Civilian role pact delayed in Portugal

Last-minute complaints by political parties to the Portugal military's refusal to give up certain decision making powers Wednesday delayed the formal signing of an agreement giving civilians a bigger role in government. The centrist Popular Democrats and the conservatives in the Center Democratic Social party refused to sign the pact. The Socialists voiced objections. The crux of the controversy was a new preamble to the agreement under which the military would retain decision making powers they had earlier agreed to surrender to elected officials.

Palestinians free 2 kidnaped Americans

Palestinian guerrillas Wednesday night freed two kidnaped American diplomats after four months of captivity and the U.S. embassy said they were in good health. Charles Gallagher, 44, and William Dykes Jr., 55, both officials of the United States Information Agency, were released shortly after 7 p.m. at the home of Lebanese Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt. A U.S. embassy spokesman said Gallagher and Dykes would be flown to the United States "almost immediately."

Police fire on Spanish strikers, 1 killed

Police fired into a crowd of strikers in the southeastern town of Elda, Spain during a demonstration, killing one person in the first fatality of a wave of post-Franco strikes and street protests, the government announced Wednesday. A statement issued by governor of Alicante province said police were forced to fire into a crowd of protesters after shots were allegedly fired from their direction. The governor said the death of 20-year-old office clerk Teofilo del Valle Perez was the culmination to a series of street protests in the traditionally leftist region.

Nixon told China wants to improve U.S. relations

PEKING (UPI) — Acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng toasted the health of President Ford for the first time Wednesday and told former President Richard M. Nixon that China wanted to "further the improvement of Sino-U.S. relations."

Nixon, in a farewell toast to his Chinese hosts, said the United States and China must work together in "building a new world . . . building a bridge of understanding that reached from the Golden Gate of California to the Golden Gate of Heavenly Peace in Peking."

Nixon, the first private individual allowed the use of the Great Hall of People, threw a party there for his hosts on his last night in Peking and said the bridge he started building with his first visit to China four years ago was still not completed.

"We have begun to build a great bridge," Nixon said. "And as we build that bridge we will remember that it will be a bridge of understanding, a bridge of future respect and a bridge of lasting friendship between two great people — the Chinese people and the great American people."

Hua and Nixon held talks totaling more than 10 hours during the former president's stay in Peking. Very few visitors to China, no matter what their ranks, ever spend as much time talking with top Chinese leaders.

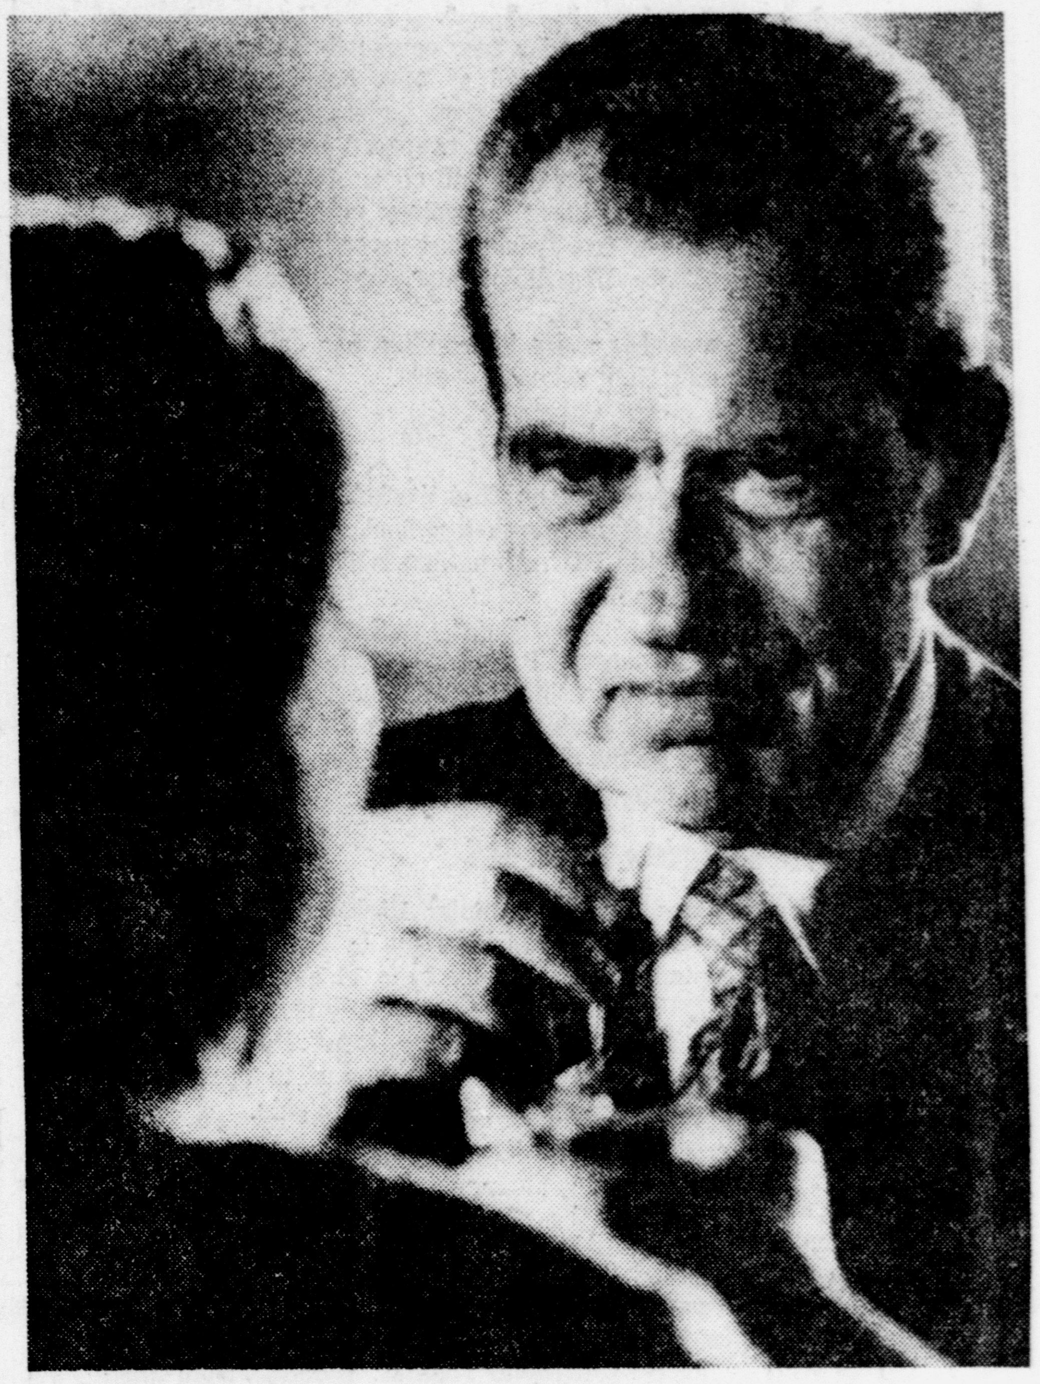
Nixon and his party next go to Kweilin, a scenic city 1,100 miles southeast of Peking in Kwangsi Province on the second leg of his three-city, eight-day visit to China.

In related developments:

- Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., charged Nixon was "violating the law" by discussing foreign policy in China and if the former president wanted to do the United States a favor "he might stay over there."

Goldwater said ". . . The Logan Act says no one but the President and the secretary of state can discuss foreign policy . . . and he made a tremendous mistake in doing what he did at the time he did it."

- Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Nixon will be questioned on his return about his talks with Chinese leaders. Kissinger said the administration is always interested in what Chinese leaders say, although he would have "chosen a different forum."



FORMER U.S. President Richard Nixon toasts farewell to Peking with acting Premier Hua Kuo-feng at banquet Wednesday hosted by Nixon in the Great Hall of the People. Nixon next visits Kweilin and Canton before returning to the U.S. on Sunday.

Patty wasn't naive: prosecution

ulating" her story of taking part in the Hibernia bank robbery out of dread terror of her SLA captives.

"She didn't lie," he said.

That statement in turn brought a hail of objections from the prosecution and an admonition from the judge to the jury that it was up to them to decide whether the 22-year-old heiress had told the truth on the witness stand.

"No psychiatrist, no judge, no lawyer or anyone else can invade your province of deciding that," he said.

Orne amended his statement to say that he didn't mean to state flatly that she did not lie. He said he meant that when he asked questions intended to sway her into answers that would have been favorable to her defense she did not take the opportunity to do so.

"Much to my surprise, she wouldn't pick up on the clues," he said.

Earlier, West had a sharp retort to Bancroft's suggestion that smoking marijuana and taking drugs proved that she was not as naive as the psychiatrist had suggested.

West said he had testified that she was naive in a political sense.

"Mr. Bancroft, if you would like to debate the matter of high school and even junior high school students who enter into experiments with hallucinogenic drugs, I would be glad to discuss it with you," West said sarcastically.

The doctor said Weed was conducting an experiment with marijuana and "growing grass on the back porch," and that he introduced Miss Hearst "to the substance and she smoked it on several occasions."

West said Miss Hearst also told him she took LSD and mescaline.

"Wasn't it she who was consistently after LSD instead of the other way around?" Bancroft asked.

The psychiatrist said Weed told him that Miss Hearst wanted to try it out and he finally gave her some.

Under further questioning, West said that Weed told him that Miss Hearst's "capacity for sarcasm is unparalleled."

Bailey again objected.

"She is not on trial for sarcasm," he said.

U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter overruled the objection.

Bancroft also brought out from West that Miss Hearst "almost got kicked out of the Sacred Heart Academy for telling a nun to go to hell." She also was described by some of her teachers as "detached, disdainful and self centered."

Weed also told the psychiatrist that Miss Hearst was "scathing about her parents," but that he believed she really loved them, particularly her father. He said she felt she could not meet her mother's high standards.

Weed said she told him she was going to change her name because "being a Hearst was so hard."

Bancroft then posed a lengthy question about Miss Hearst's apparent transformation in character after her kidnaping by the SLA in which she joined a bank robbery, shot up a store and made tapes spouting revolutionary slogans and disowning her parents and the establishment.

The lawyer asked if such behavior could not be in part the result of having been a sarcastic young woman who had negative feelings about her parents, felt depressed and trapped in her way of life and then had the opportunity to express her hostilities.

West said he did not believe that had in any way been the case with Miss Hearst.

Near midair crash is linked to controllers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safety investigators Wednesday blamed lax performance by two Federal Aviation Administration radar controllers for the near midair collision of two high-flying jumbo jets last November near Carleton, Mich.

The National Transportation Safety Board said the two planes, carrying a total of 306 persons, came within 100 feet or less of each other at a combined speed of 978 miles per hour. It indicated little more than pure luck kept the planes from ramming together.

One of the controllers noticed at the last minute that the American Airlines DC10 and the Trans World Airlines L1011 were three or four miles apart on a collision course and ordered the American pilot to descend immediately, the board said.

A total 24 persons aboard the craft were injured, three seriously, when the sudden evasive maneuver hurled flight attendants serving dinner and one passenger adjusting her seatbelt to the cabin ceiling and then to the floor.

The safety board said that incident was but one of 21 reported near midair collisions and 278 air traffic control system failures recorded by the FAA during the first 11 months of 1975.

It urged the FAA to have all traffic controllers study the report of the Michigan incident, warning: "The circumstances of this accident indicate that automation technology can lead to complacency when it takes the controller 'out of the loop' by reducing the need for his interaction with a flight crew and deemphasizing the cooperative aspects of the air traffic control system."

The board said the planes were so close the second controller, looking at his radar screen, "saw the targets merge and then separate."

The American pilot, who saw the TWA craft just as the controller orderd him to dive to avoid it, estimated the two planes were 100 feet apart.

The 11 crewmembers aboard the TWA plane, Flight 37 carrying 103 passengers from Philadelphia to Los Angeles, were not told of their close brush with disaster until they reached their destination.

The American craft, Flight 182 bound with 179 passengers and 13 crewmembers from Chicago to Newark, N.J., made an emergency landing at Detroit so the injured could be taken to a hospital.

Needs would be covered by library vote: officials

ity prevents the board from buying the approved books until there is space for them.

Beside the multi-faceted library proposal on last year's ballot, there also was a hotly-contested village board and presidency race, and a park board election.

WITHOUT THE PARK or village elections and elimination of the tax hike and auditorium, library officials think they have a winning proposition.

Dempsey said telephone surveys of residents is getting "a really good response."

He said a proreferendum group is finding "overwhelming positive response" this time around.

Frisbie said he has taken a slide show, "To Thine Own Shelf Be True," to community organizations and civic clubs throughout the village.

"Where the last time we had time for just a show before a half-dozen candidates took over, now we are getting 5 to 10 minutes to answer questions that come up," Frisbie said.

"We haven't found really anybody who's against it. There are always some individuals, but we've followed up those negative feelings with a letter," he said.

"We aren't finding opposition. If we need space for books, we need space for books. We can't stack them up in the parking lot," Frisbie said.

its third in five years.

"Our members are getting a little tired of moving from location to location; we are looking for another place to go. If the village can't find a suitable location for us, we may leave the area," Mrs. Mart said.

THE ART CENTER always has been in Arlington Heights because about half of the members live in the village, she said.

One possibility that will be explored if the library is expanded is the renting of space in the library, said Jackie Rapp, a member of the art center.

There will not be "a big rush" to relocate the art center, Civil Defense, United Fund and the counseling center if the library referendum is approved, Frank Charlton, assistant village manager, said. "It will depend on the problems of moving the tenants," he said.

Board races in Dist. 21, 25 to offer competition

The race for school board positions in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will be contested this year.

Wednesday was the first day for filing nominating petitions for school board candidates. Petitions may be filed until March 19. Elections will be April 10.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, four candidates have filed for three 3-year terms on the board.

INCUMBENTS Edith Jolly, 1310 N. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, and Donald Gibbons, 33, of 507 W. Cedar St., Arlington Heights, filed petitions Wednesday along with newcomer Sharon Wanner, 41, of 404 Larkdale Ln., Mount Prospect. All three have been endorsed by the Dist. 25 Nominating Committee.

Douglas Chidley, 29, of 211 N. Lincoln Ln., Arlington Heights, also filed Wednesday. He was not endorsed by the committee.

James Foster, 37, of 1416 N. Walnut, Arlington Heights, has a nominating petition but has not filed his candidacy. Foster also sought committee endorsement but was defeated.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 school board race began Wednesday with five candidates filing petitions for three seats.

INCUMBENTS Barbara Farr, Steven Greenberg and Kenneth Rodeck will seek reelection to three-year terms on the board. Joining the race as of Wednesday are newcomers Barbara Floyd and Linda Sprechman.

Mrs. Farr, 48, of 60 E. Jeffery Ave., Wheeling, has served on the board six months since her appointment to the vacancy created by Edwin Smith's resignation. She has been endorsed by the Dist. 21 General Caucus.

Greenberg, 35, of 3138 Wilshire Ln., Arlington Heights, and Rodeck, 36, of 1117 Sarasota Dr., Wheeling, are both seeking second terms. Greenberg did not receive caucus endorsement, while Rodeck, the current board president, did not request endorsement.

Mrs Floyd, 36, of 923 Greenridge Rd., Buffalo Grove and Mrs. Sprechman, 30, of 318 Hackberry Ln., Arlington Heights, did not receive caucus endorsement and will run as independents.

Two candidates who received caucus endorsement, Elaine Bond and Fred Harms, had not filed.

ONE CANDIDATE filed Wednesday for the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Gayatri P. Tewari, 925 Spruance Pl., Des Plaines, filed a nominating petition for one of the three 3-year terms on the board. Tewari is a member of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district study committee.

Elk Grove Village resident Marilyn M. Quinn has picked up a nominating petition but has not filed. Petitions also have been sent to the three members of the board who are up for reelection. Donald Hoeck, 611 W. Berkley, Arlington Heights, John M. Costello, 301 N. Dale, Mount Prospect, and Warren C. Schabinger, 1812 Laurel Dr., Mount Prospect. They have not yet filed nominating petitions.

Two candidates filed petitions Wednesday for the school board race in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Incumbents Judith Zanca, 81 Roxbury Ln., Des Plaines, and Emil E. Bahn maier, 1822 Pheasant Tr., Mount Prospect, will seek reelection to three-year terms. Mrs. Zanca, current board president, will run for a third 3-year term, and Bahnmaier will seek his second term.

THREE SEATS on the school board will be on the ballot. Two other petitions for candidacy were picked up but have not been returned.

In Prospect Heights Dist. 23, where two 3-year terms are open, incumbent Sallyann Okuno, 35, of 2 Garden Ct., Prospect Heights, filed Wednesday for a second term on the board.

Supt. Edward Grodsky said a petition has also been taken out by incumbent Alan Krinsky, 38, of 2027 Rosehill, Arlington Heights, but has not been filed Krinsky recently said he was undecided whether to run for a third board term.

Shirley Munson, Harper College board president, filed the only petition for candidacy for the college board Wednesday.

Mrs. Munson, 46, of 639 N. Benton St., Palatine, will seek a second term.

TWO 3-YEAR TERMS will be available in the April election. Incumbent Trustee Jessalyn Nicklas, 60, of 450 N. Ayrshire Ln., Inverness, has not filed for reelection.

One other petition has been picked up but has not been returned.

School board candidates must be at least 18, residents of their district for one year and registered voters.

Meets with suburb committeemen

'Suburbs, city 1 unit,' says Daley

by WANDALYN RICE

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley continued wooing the suburbs Wednesday at a meeting in Chicago of township committmen and precinct captains from the 30 suburban townships.

The meeting, the last in a series held for regular Democratic Organization precinct workers in preparation for the March 16 primary, featured appearances by party-endorsed candidates ranging from Secretary of State Michael Howlett to candidates for the Metropolitan Sanitary District board.

During the speechmaking, Daley referred to his campaign trip last weekend to north suburban Kenilworth: "I was out in the suburbs last week, and I really enjoyed it," Daley said to the cheers of the suburban Democrats.

DALEY SAID, "We know that the suburbs and the city are one unit — we realize you don't have a suburb until you have a city. We're one in the Democratic Party and I'm thankful for you people in the suburbs because you are organized as a party."

Daley also defended the party organization, saying independent Democratic candidates such as those running with Gov. Daniel Walker, "can't be independents and be a member of our party. You have to be a Democrat."

He said critics charge the party engages in patronage, but "I don't talk about patronage. I call it friendship. What's wrong with doing a favor for a man or a woman? People criticize us because we help people."

The party's candidates confined most of their speeches to attacks on Walker and Walker candidates.

State Treasurer Alan Dixon, who is running for secretary of state, attacked the "scurrilous things" and "vituperative epithets" used by Walker candidates. The attacks, he said, are an effort to divert attention from Walker's record as governor.

DIXON SAID, "Any man who's been governor of one of the biggest states of the union for four years and doesn't have the guts to run on his record and nothing else, doesn't have the right to be dogcatcher of the smallest hamlet in Illinois."

Dixon also defended Howlett for holding a $15,000 a year consulting job with Sun Steel Co. while a state official. "Mike Howlett is a decent citizen who has worked hard all his life. He has educated his family. There is nothing wrong with honorably earning a salary," Dixon said.

Michael Bakalis, candidate for comptroller, said the Walker administration is "amoral" and attacked Walker's deputy governor and campaign manager Victor DeGrazia.

"When I was a child I used to enjoy Edgar Bergan and Charlie McCarthy (a radio and television ventriloquist act)," Bakalis said. "With Edgar Bergan and Charlie McCarthy, I could always tell who the ventriloquist was and who was the dummy. I can't tell with Dan Walker and Vic DeGrazia."

Dem women's club in township?

Jane Byrne, Cook County Democratic committeewoman, wants to start a Democratic women's club in Elk Grove Township, William Rose, Elk Grove Township committeeman, said Wednesday.

Rose, who talked to Mrs. Byrne before a meeting for suburban Democratic workers held by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, said she does not plan to set up an organization to rival the present township party organization he heads.

Mrs. Byrne was quoted earlier this week as saying Elk Grove Township was one of the townships where she wants to set up a Democratic club. There are similar clubs in Palatine and New Trier townships where the township's regular committeemen have shown independence of the county organization.

The clubs in Palatine and New Trier both act as rival organizations to the regular township party groups. The New Trier Township club, which had its headquarters dedicated by Daley last weekend, began as a women's club organized by Mrs. Byrne.

Before talking to Mrs. Byrne Wednesday, Rose said he was concerned that a rival club might be set up in the township. "I think the Elk Grove Township Democratic Organization has done a creditable job. I see no need for other groups," he said.

The organization has no separate women's organization because Rose has said he thinks women should be active in regular party affairs.

by JUDY JOBBITT

Two Northwest suburban teachers' unions have voted to join a bargaining coalition of elementary school teachers from the North and Northwest suburban area and other local unions are planning to join soon.

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and Mount Prospect Dist. 57 teachers voted to join the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council, which represents about 1,300 teachers from 10 school districts in neighboring suburbs. The bargaining council, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assn., was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research the financial backgrounds of school districts.

Ed Searing, Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 union president, said he expects his union to vote on joining the coalition within the next month. James Modec, Arlington Heights Dist. 25 union president, said his teachers might consider joining later this year.

OTHER TEACHERS' unions in the area also have discussed asking their members to join the group but do not have definite plans.

Toni Kane, Dist. 59 union official, said, "We voted overwhelmingly last week to join NSUBC. We saw the group was effective in bargaining last year and decided to join."

Camille Oldenburg, Dist. 57 union president, said the teachers decided to join the coalition because "we have similar communities and goals as the other members. The biggest thing right now is sharing information and research for negotiations purposes."

Last year the bargaining coalition set negotiation goals that included pay equal to high school teachers' and guidelines for cutting tenured teaching staffs.

The coalition also confronted the Cook County assessor's office with figures showing 18 commercial sites in the North and Northwest suburban area are being underassessed by $50.29 million, costing school districts more than $4 million in lost taxes.

Included in the properties charged as underassessed were Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect, $5.87 million, and Golf Mill Shopping Center, Niles, $4.27 million.

Garden plot signup to begin Monday

Registration for the Arlington Heights Park District's garden plots will begin Monday at Camelot, Frontier and Pioneer parks' fieldhouses.

The fee for the 25-by 30-foot plots is $5, and will be assigned on a one-per-family, first-come first-served basis. There is no charge for senior citizens in the Gold Key Club.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. at the fieldhouses. For more information, call 253-0621.

2 unhurt in crash of plane in Colorado

An Arlington Heights coupled escaped injury when their light plane crashed while landing at an airport in Breckenridge, Colo., shortly before noon Wednesday.

William and Joyce Enxing, 608 S. Bristol Ave., who were on vacation, were in the plane when it struck a patch of ice, plowed into a snowbank and overturned.

Girl Scout drive goal set at $40,000

The Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County is trying to raise $40,000 this week for Scouting programs.

Volunteers will call on parents of Girl Scouts and ask them to contribute to the council's Sustaining Membership Enrollment Drive. They hope to reach the 13,000 Northwest Cook County's Girl Scout families by March 1.

The money is used in Northwest Cook County for Girl Scout programs including camping, training of leaders and other volunteers, service to communities and institutions.

The Sustaining Membership Enrollment Drive provides 6 per cent of the council budget. The rest of the money comes from cookie sales and contributions from the United Fund.

Chairmen of the drive are Donald Boos, Arlington Heights; Pam Goss, Buffalo Grove; Sandy Johnson, Des Plaines; Don Birgerson and Gale Hartman, Elk Grove Village; Henry Graef, Mount Prospect; Marilyn Choisser, Palatine; Clayton Garet, Rolling Meadows; Michael Madden, Schaumburg; and Carol Tomsick, Wheeling.

Snowmobile class slated this weekend

A two-day snowmobile safety program will be held Saturday and Sunday in Wheeling.

The program will be from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Rd., and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday at Heritage Park, 222 W. Wolf Rd. The program includes eight hours of classroom work and will qualify participants for a snowmobile license.

To register, call 537-2222. A $3 fee is payable at the class.

Debts the logical deficit solution? Don't bet on it

Education today

by Dorothy Oliver

Roger Bardwell is a man who strongly believes in borrowing money to operate a school district.

And his deficit financing beliefs have brought no end of criticism from the press, the people and his peers.

Bardwell is superintendent of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, a school district that has been borrowing money to meet its budget for about 14 years.

The district is projecting a $500,000 to $2.3 million deficit in the 1976-77 school year if current programs are maintained. The figure is variable because it depends on inflation, teacher salary increases and the amount of money the district will receive in state aid.

The Dist. 59 board earlier this year decided to give a balanced budget a whirl and is studying what type of impact it would have on programs and staff.

THIS WEEK, board members sat through several hours of grim financial projections that point to multimillion dollar deficits down the road.

Bardwell admits the district is "not in as good shape as our neighbors," but defends operating at a deficit — a practice the neighbors are trying to avoid.

He pointed out this week that other districts have managed to save money during the years and built up a surplus of cash that they now are dipping into to prevent deficit spending.

"They can use their savings accounts to buy some time, but when you borrow from a cash surplus you can only do it once," he said.

Borrowing from the surplus "builds up on you so quickly" that before you know it you're in a deficit, he said. He added that while these other frugal districts are stashing the cash they are taking more money than they need to from the taxpayer — and taxpayers have a more immediate need for money than school districts.

ON THE OTHER hand, Dist. 59 doesn't have to worry about going into a deficit because it is already there. "We've got all of our cards on the table," Bardwell said. "We have nothing to back into, nothing to bank on. We know how much we can borrow and it's there every year."

What Bardwell seems to miss with his logic is that all of these districts with dwindling cash surpluses are taking steps now to prevent deficits. Practically without exception, Northwest suburban districts are mapping out long-range plans, finding ways to pare down their budgets, cutting staff, examining programs and making sure future ends meet.

Bardwell is absolutely right when he says that school districts can borrow money more cheaply than your average taxpayer. But for every dollar a school district borrows it must pay interest — and that means taxpayers dollars going to banks rather than educational programs.

Eventually, borrowing catches up with you. Dist. 59 resorted to borrowing $1.75 million in teachers orders this year to bring enough money into the district to keep it going for a year. Teachers were paid in script earlier this year and the district sold bonds to put real money behind the script.

Who is paying for the bonds? The taxpayer. Dist. 59 tax bills will automatically go up during the next four years to pay back the debt. And residents never approved this tax increase in a referendum.

There may be outstanding reasons to borrow money to operate a school district. But I haven't heard one yet.

Reform of workers' benefit bill urged

Reform of Illinois' workmen's compensation legislation is needed "if great damage to the state's economy is to be avoided," said an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce spokesman Wednesday.

Leonard Day, labor relations manager for the organization, testified at a Springfield hearing of the Illinois Insurance Laws Study Commission. The 1975 compensation law is a "bad scene" for business in the state, he said.

"The detrimental effects of S.B. 234 and 235 on the Illinois business community are, after eight months, even worse, even more costly than we'd feared," Day said. "Establishing benefit levels far beyond the National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws recommended maximums; drastically easing eligibility requirements; introducing many employer roadblocks to fair, effective administration; imposing a host of pen alties on those who pay for the entire program — all this is heading the state's W. C. law toward total disaster."

Inefficiency, infighting cited

'Truth squad' supports Howlett over Walker

Gov. Daniel Walker should be replaced by Sec. of State Michael Howlett because the Walker administration doesn't issue unemployment checks on time, spends money faster than it comes in and fights with Democrats instead of the GOP, the "truth squad" said Wednesday.

The "truth squad" — state Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale and state Reps. Gerald Bradley of Bloomington and E. J. "Zeke" Giorgi of Rockford, all Democrats — made a four-city flying tour to denounce Walker. They scheduled stops in Alton, Springfield, Chicago and the Quad Cities.

Illinois briefs

Reagan worth $1.5 million

Ronald Reagan said in Matoon, Wednesday his net worth is nearly $1.5 million, but he still owes $451,000 on his ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Reagan's total adjusted gross income from 1970 to 1974 was $520,518, including non-taxable income, the statement said. For those years he paid a total of $135,380 in federal and state income taxes and sales, property and miscellaneous taxes.

However, the statement said his 1974 estimated income totaled $282,253, on which he paid a total of $119,332. The statement did not itemize the sources of his 1975 income.

Bias charged by NOW

The Chicago chapter of the National Organization for Women Wednesday charged Standard Oil Co. of Indiana with discrimination against women.

The group filed a complaint with the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and distributed leaflets in front of the Standard Oil Building.

The class-action complaint charged Standard Oil with discriminating in hiring, promotions, assignments, salaries and benefits. It also charged Standard's subsidiaries, including the Amoco Motor club, with employment discrimination against women.

Judge McLaren, 57, dies

U.S. District Court Judge Richard McLaren died Wednesday in Northwest Memorial Hospital, Chicago. He was 57.

McLaren was admitted to the hospital two weeks ago with a heart problem. He also suffered from a crippling blood disease and had been ill for several months.

McLaren had been on the U.S. District Court bench since February, 1972, replacing Judge Julius J. Hoffman, who became a senior judge with a lighter workload.

He previously served as chief of the U.S. Justice Dept.'s antitrust division, and before that was a member of a Chicago law firm.

Cut farm output: union

Harold Dodd, president of the Illinois Farmers Union, Wednesday urged farmers to "think twice before planting their farm from fence to fence" this spring.

"We farmers," Dodd said in a statement, "are saddled with administrative decisions which clearly put a ceiling on our prices by virtue of controling our foreign sales, but on the other hand are not willing to give us any realistic support on the bottom in case we produce too much."

The IFU urged farmers early last year to restrict planting to 90 per cent of their available acreage. The organization held meetings in many parts of the state and obtained signed pledges from many farmers to limit production. The IFU later abandoned the plan, however.

Jack Ford to stump for Dad at Harper March 5

Although President Ford has not made a primary campaign appearance in Illinois, his son, Jack, will come to Illinois next week for several days.

The younger Ford is scheduled to make an appearance at Harper College March 5. A tentative schedule indicates Ford will make a number of other appearances on college campuses earlier in the week.

Some campaign officials indicate this is one of the first campaign swings any of the President's children have made in the current election campaign.

Ford is expected to come to Illinois twice before Illinois' March 16 primary. The Herald has learned Ford may appear at a high school rally in the Northwest suburbs on March 13. Full details and the location of the appearance are being withheld at this time.

'Walker carpetbags'

Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett continued his attack on his Democratic gubernatorial opponent, Gov. Daniel Walker, Wednesday with charges the governor has neglected talented Illinois residents and gone outside the state to hire his aides.

Howlett cited a number of cabinet level appointments made by the Walker administration from outside the state.

Howlett made his comment in a prepared statement, but repeated it later at a meeting of the Cook County Democratic Central Committee.

He predicted the state will see one of the "greatest airlifts of all time" after the election when the Walker appointees go back to where they came from.

College 'frills' defended

Gov. Daniel Walker's criticism of the community college system drew more heated reaction Wednesday from another candidate.

Republican Joan Anderson, a candidate for lieutenant governor, charged Walker's statement distorts the facts and is damaging to community college students and faculties.

Mrs. Anderson, who is a Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee, was a member of the College of DuPage board of trustees from 1971 to 1974.

Walker, in an exclusive interview with The Herald, said community colleges have to "cut out its frills courses."

Mrs. Anderson said the courses called frills by Walker are actually "self-supporting, enrichment courses which enrich the whole community."

She also disputed Walker's statement theat college enrollments are dropping. She said community college enrollment is up about 25 per cent over last year.

GOP seeks members

The Elk Grove Township Republican Organization has begun a new membership drive for the year.

Mrs. Spruill Beckstrom is leading the effort to increase the number of members in the GOP group. She said persons interested in joining the organization can obtain more information by calling 392-2580 or 255-9105.

Political briefs

Carter supporters meet

Democratic National Convention delegate candidates backing Jimmy Carter will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. Friday in Des Plaines.

The sessions will be held at the South Park Field House, Howard and White streets.

Delegate candidates from the 10th Congressional District will be on hand to discuss Carter's candidacy. The delegate candidates are Joseph Possberber Jr., Ruth Sorenson Singer, Stanton Brody, Elaine Lisberg, William Murphy, James Epstein and Rodney Merwin; the alternate delegate candidates are Robert Gordon, Judith Kitzes and Donald Kron.

'Hales strength is growing'

Supporters of Daniel B. Hales, a candidate for the Republican nomination in the 10th Congressional District, said the growing strength of their campaign was the main factor in blocking Samuel H. Young from getting the Evanston Township Republican Organization endorsement.

The North Shore group failed to give a 60 per cent vote to any of three candidates — State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, Hales or Young — at a weekend endorsement session.

Hales credited a "growing army of volunteers" with blocking the endorsement of Young. The former congressman fell two votes short of getting the organization's endorsement. Hales finished second in the balloting, and Nimrod finished third.

Hales claimed the Evanston results showed the people of the 10th Congressional District prefer citizen politics rather than professional politics.

The way we see it

Garbage is a public matter

The question of who should collect a community's garbage has been raised again, this time in Des Plaines, where the city is losing money on its municipal service. It lost $400,000 in 1974 and $360,000 in 1975. More losses are predicted this year.

Some officials are suggesting that private firms should be allowed to collect garbage, thus removing the cost burden entirely from the city.

Others, especially members of the public employes' union, say private scavenger services won't save Des Plaines residents any money. The way to reduce costs, they argue, is to reduce the number of supervisors in the department.

City officials are studying the cost problem. They've talked about hiring a private firm to collect garbage in a portion of Des Plaines on a trial basis.

We believe there's an overriding reason to maintain the present system. Garbage collection, like water service, must be supplied to everyone within a community. It seems to us to be a basic government service.

If Des Plaines wants to continue to provide its fine garbage collecting service, it obviously is going to have to control costs. It should also look to the experience of neighboring communities before it either partly or completely does away with an inexpensive system that has served its residents well.

Give Prospect Heights a chance to develop

Before the new City of Prospect Heights can learn to walk, some local residents are trying to cut off its legs.

A group of apartment and business owners in the month-old city are considering filing in court for disconnection from the city.

They feel that the combination of increased taxes and limited services are reason enough to pull out of the fledgling community.

But Prospect Heights hasn't had the chance yet to prove itself. Residents have a year until the filing period for disconnection ends; the least they can do is give the community's government a chance to take shape before they attack it.

At this moment, Prospect Heights needs all the support it can get. Later, residents will have a more legitimate reason to criticize its achievements and failures.

Villages should meet, act upon fire service

Wheeling's move to form a municipal fire department and to withdraw from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection district has forced Buffalo Grove officials into a decision-making posture they aren't prepared to face.

They must decide whether Buffalo Grove, too, should form a municipal department to offset the impact of the Wheeling withdrawal from the rural district. Right now, a municipal department appears financially unfeasible.

If Buffalo Grove were to form a municipal department, it would have to assume the cost of equipment, stations and manpower from the Buffalo Grove Fire Department Inc., which is part of the Wheeling rural district. The village also would have to plan for a new station in the Lake County section of the village in order to protect the area now covered by the Long Grove and Vernon Township fire districts.

In order to make a solid, intelligent and long-lasting decision, the Buffalo Grove Village Board should take the lead in getting all parties involved in this important matter together.

Several alternatives should be developed, and the people of Buffalo Grove should then vote for the type service they wish to receive since their tax bills will support the changes.

Whatever changes are made in Buffalo Grove, the type of service offered should be no less than that offered by the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. Inc.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, Feb. 26, the 57th day of 1976 with 309 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born this day are under the sign of Pisces.

American frontiersman William "Buffalo Bill" Cody was born Feb. 26, 1846.

On this day in history:

- In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte and 1,200 men left the Isle of Elba to start his 100-day conquest of France.
- In 1919, Congress established Grand Canyon Park in Arizona.
- In 1935, Germany began operation of its Air Force — the Luftwaffe — under Reichmarshal Hermann Goering.
- In 1972, a flash flood in West Virginia killed 118 persons.

A thought for the day: American poet Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

Day-care controversy coverage hit

I am a resident of Arlington Heights and I subscribe to the Arlington Heights Herald. I have been aware for quite some time that there is a need for better news coverage between neighboring suburbs.

Paddock deems it necessary to devote plenty of space for international and national news. If I want to read about international and national news, I will buy a Chicago paper, or I can, at almost half-hour intervals, dial any radio or television station. I subscribe to The Herald because it is supposed to be a community-oriented newspaper. I want to read about my community and those in which I shop, work and have friends. You do have a lovely paper, so please consider my suggestion.

My appeal is stemmed from the controversy over Baby Town in Des Plaines. I am extremely interested in the outcome of this issue and nothing has been printed in the Arlington Heights Herald. This issue is the second and most important part of my letter.

Baby Town in Des Plaines is the only facility in this area that provides care for infants as well as pre-school children. There is a desperate need for day care centers such as this in our community. Our economic situation makes it necessary for more and more families to have both parents working. Then we must consider the single parent, who has only one income. Statistics prove that there are not nearly enough day care facilities to accommodate the children whose parents work. We need the new day care center Baby Town is proposing to build.

How many of you have ever been in this situation? If you have, you know the difficult task of finding suitable care for your child. All day care centers are not staffed with top personnel, they do not have a program of quality education, give the child a home-like atmosphere. Please, if you know these difficulties or even if you just feel that the building of this new center is the step Des Plaines needs to take, please write to your alderman, to the mayor of Des Plaines and/or the city council. Let them know you care about children and that they should, too.

I would be very proud to live in a community that knew the needs of their residents. Fostering and helping this new Baby Town might open the eyes of surrounding communities.

Paddock should print a story, a good story, about Baby Town and the management of the school. Let all the papers print it, let the communities know that there is a center that cares.

My closing comment will be a challenge to Paddock Publications to both print my letter and to print a story about Baby Town as told by Mrs. Lorraine Angel.

Reader concerned about rock concert

As a resident of Mount Prospect, I become very concerned about the leadership and direction of our board members and the mayor when I read articles in the paper regarding rock concerts at Randhurst.

Could these officials tell the community please:

- Why do we need these rock concerts?
- What do we as a community gain from these type of activities?
- What percentage of the 3,400 people who attended this last concert were residents of Mount Prospect?
- Is this activity and the publicity we received from it in the newspaper and TV good for our town?

I thought the picture in the paper of one of our trustees watching while people were being searched was particularly interesting. I can't ever think of a function I have ever attended where I was searched, alcohol was permitted around teenagers and marijuana was being smoked!

At the next concert, will our senior citizens or Boy Scouts be interested in attending? I'm sure they wouldn't be opposed to attending something where they have to be frisked first!

My personal belief is that when items such as rock concerts are presented for approval to our board, one of the most important factors to consider is, are these concerts or any other items requested for approval in the best interest of the total community? Are these concerts something that would appeal to a majority or a cross-section of a local population?

Before approving such items, do a little research. Are you aware that rock concerts are not allowed in the local high schools because of the problems they cause and everywhere that these concerts have been held, there have been numerous problems.

Come on, village board, get your heads screwed on straight! What have we to gain by these rock concerts that appeal to a minority and a minority also is making a lot of money!

He applauds Moynihan's U. N. record

Your column, "Moynihan Makes a Timely Exit," as written by NEA/London Economist News Service, apparently was prepared by someone too long under the influence of British philosophy and too little under the influence of U.S. history. Professor Moynihan represents the true nature of the U.S.: strength, forthrightness and honesty, being only three of our attributes not found in this combination in any other national makeup.

The few countries like England that we call friends may have grown upset with Professor Moynihan and will feel relieved to see him leave their "diplomatic clique"; but let us face facts. We will never have any real friends as long as our allies continue to look at our strength from a position of envy.

Throughout our history, we have earned respect by meaning what we say. Professor Moynihan was exemplary in this regard. If we speak in the weak tones pleasing to the ears of our allies, we are not speaking the language understood by our enemies, but only by the western minority in the U.N. The next U.N. Ambassador from the U.S. may appease our allies, but he will more than please the Russian bloc who take advantage of our every weakness. The world respects us for what we are, not for what our allies say we should or should not say.

Paramedics boosted

I would like with all my heart to thank the Wheeling police and Wheeling paramedics for literally saving my life on Jan. 7.

They were at my home in minutes and began to work on me and got me to the hospital in time. I will never forget them.

Thank God they are there. How wonderful to know when they are needed they are there within minutes.

You will always have my gratitude.

Vacant store?

Dist. 54 administration has gone to great lengths to express the need for a tax increase to continue program and to build an administration center. Why not show the taxpayer their willingness to economize by considering the use of one of several empty buildings in the area? I am thinking specifically of the vacant store on Golf Rd. recently occupied by Skorberg Furniture. It is a large building, adequate parking, centrally located, and would lend itself to remodeling.

We are an important school district, nationally as well as locally. Let us present ourselves as an example in wisdom, not in wealth.

'Fantastic publicity' appreciated

On behalf of the Palatine Jaycees, I wish to express our sincere thanks to Paddock Publications and to Luisa Ginnetti for the fantastic publicity for this year's Distinguished Service Awards for the Palatine community.

From publicity on the nominees to coverage of the banquet, you did a super job. I am sure the parents, friends and associates of all the nominees share in our appreciation.

She seeks adult 'control'

I am writing regarding your article on "Trustees go to rock concert, a first-hand view" in your Feb. 14 issue of the Mount Prospect Herald. I'm not writing in complaint or to say your article was false.

As the rock concert is a big thing to the teens, adults also have their events — such as the Bicentennial Ball (also held at Randhurst). Will there be proper crowd and alcohol control at this event? There should be some teens going to the ball to see how adults act after they have had a few drinks.

There is very limited entertainment for teens in our community and like most of the the time you just hear about the bad things a few kids did. Why spoil everyone else's fun because of what you heard about a few people.

Art work, 'The Bather,' 1 year old cultural advancement for the city," he said.

"Whether I personally care for that type of art is not important. People should be able to make their own decision," he said.

"The Gould people are sincerely interested in bringing art to the suburbs as shown by the statue and their extensive collection of art works within the building. I say good for them and the community," Meyer said.

The Bather "is neat," says one Rolling Meadows resident. "It's a touch of class. It doesn't offend me in the least," she said.

To another woman, an employe of Gould, the statue is an "inspiration" of a special sort.

"EVERYTIME I come to work and look at that — the shape she is in — I'm inspired to lose weight," she said.

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case is indifferent. "I have no feeling at all about her. The statue has not created a personal nor a police problem and has not influenced me as a resident. Maybe I'm not a connoisseur of that type of art," he said.

Gertrude Pfingsten of Arlington Heights said she would not go out of her way to see the statue but agreed with those who defend it as art.

"I don't particularly like the ugly, fat thing, because I'm a realist and don't see eye to eye with that expression of art," she said.

An employe of Gould who declined to identify himself "because my wife would kill me" said he has "grown very fond of the lady."

"SHE WAVES HI to me when I drive up to work in the morning, waves good-bye again when I leave and has never turned her back on me yet," he said with a grin.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke, 5th, of Rolling Meadows, takes out-of-town visitors to see the statue.

"It's the first thing people ask to see. But, once they see her most of them have the same reaction I do. They just grin," he said.

"I think they (Gould) could have spent the money a better way. They got sold a bill of goods," he said.

Retzke described the statue as a great advertising idea.

"The company got more free advertising for it than they paid for the statue," he said.

Gould officials agree that The Bather has brought the firm publicity. They also maintain the work has earned a generally favorable response from visitors to the complex.

IT HAS WON acclaim in The Art Gallery and other art magazines.

"I'm for the lady," said Harry O'Brien, executive director of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce. "Even those who may not like the statue have at least been prompted to think about art. We (the suburbs) have been criticized as the great cultural void.

"It took a corporate name to bring a Picasso to the suburbs," he said.

Ask Andy

Homely devilfish aren't demonic

WHAT IS A DEVILFISH?

This question gave Andy quite a bad time when he sat down to answer it. Not because he didn't know the answer — quite the opposite. This time Andy knew a bit too much. He knew that there are two animals living in the ocean commonly called a devilfish. And exactly which devilfish to write about was the problem.

When men first began studying animals in a scientific way, one of the first things they considered was placing them in some sort of order. A bat, for example, flies through the air with the greatest of ease — but this doesn't necessarily make him a bird. And the intelligent dolphin lives in the ocean and can swim with speed and grace, but that still doesn't make him a fish.

As the early naturalists collected data about nature's creatures, they observed similarities as well as differences. Gradually they began to place them in orderly groups. They made a few mistakes at first, but that's easy to understand when you think of the multitudes of creatures that fly, swim, crawl, walk or hop.

Our classification system is made up of seven basic groups: kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, genus and species. The kingdom is the largest group, and the species is the smallest. Since both of our devilfish belong to the animal kingdom, we can move down to the phylum.

The animal kingdom is separated into 20 or more phyla. One of these is the phylum Chordata, or the animals with a backbone. In further divisions of this phylum we meet our first devilfish — the manta ray. He's a large flattish fellow, as much as 22 feet across and weighing up to 3,500 pounds. He seems to fly through the ocean on huge, winglike fins. Although he might give you quite a start if you were to meet him face to face, he is really a rather gentle giant. And since he only eats small marine animals, you wouldn't be on his menu.

Our second devilfish, the octopus, belongs to the Mollusk phylum. This large group includes the snails, slugs, clams, oysters and the octopus. It's no wonder the octopus is called a devilfish — he really looks the part. With eight long arms and two eyes bulging out from atop his head, he looks much fiercer than he really is.

Although both the manta ray and the octopus are called devilfish, it is a name that neither of them deserves. For the most part they are gentle creatures and seldom bother man unless they are bothered first.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Deneen Haynie, 8, of Decatur, Ga., for her question:

HOW DOES A QUEEN BEE BECOME A QUEEN?

A colony of busy buzzing bees can have as many as 60,000 members, but it will have only one queen. She is larger and more specially equipped than the workers and drones, and her very important job is to lay the eggs for the entire hive. In one day she may lay up to a thousand eggs, and during her five-year life span she might produce a whopping 2 million.

Our royal queen secretes a substance that reassures the workers of her presence. The absence of this secretion tells the workers they must prepare special cells in the comb for a new queen. The workers tirelessly nourish the larva of the growing queen with extra-nutritious food and secretions. When she is ready, the brand-new queen cuts her way out of her cell and begins her reign. If by chance another queen has appeared at the same time, one must kill the other before harmony in the hive is restored.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to ASK ANDY in care of The Herald, P. O. 680, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries open to girls and boys 7 to 17.

TV primary coverage—giant yawn

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — There were almost enough television network employes in New Hampshire Tuesday night to have swung the vote in the Republican primary, and some of them had been there almost long enough to qualify for a ballot.

From a television point of view, the time and labor, the expensive personnel and equipment, all ended up producing a giant yawn.

The results in the Democratic primary, with Jimmy Carter, Morris Udall and Birch Bayh in one-two-three order, was predicted and therefore without excitement.

ON THE REPUBLICAN side, the contest remained too close for the networks to call by midnight, so all but night owls and the politically pious went to bed unsatisfied.

The trouble might lie in frustrated expectations. Back in 1952, when New Hampshire's primary began, the state had its lake country as a summer attraction, the falling leaves in autumn, winter skiing and, as a harbinger of spring, the first preference primary of the presidential election year.

By 1976, it had ballooned into an affair covered over a period of months by the three television networks and the pencil press.

It took a combined staff of almost 400 people to let the nation know that immediately past midnight in the morning of Feb. 24, the 25 voters of Dixville Notch, N.H., cast their ballots — Gerald Ford 11, Ronald Reagan 4, on the Republican side, with the town's 10 Democrats giving Jimmy Carter 6 votes, and 1 each to 4 other contenders.

WHEN IT CAME TO calling the state-wide results, ABC called the Democratic contest for Carter at 7:50 p.m. Eastern time on its radio network, even though all the polls didn't close until 8 p.m. It couldn't do the same on television at that hour because network time doesn't begin until 8 p.m., with affiliates on local access until then. ABC called Carter on television at 8:05 p.m., Eastern time.

Apparently the conventional wisdom was that the Democrats had just begun to fight — among themselves, anyway — and the focus of interest lay with the Republicans, whose contest was too tight to predict.

Misbid blocks spade slam

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Back in the early '30s the late Lewis Osborne ran an April Fool one session duplicate. He made up all the hands himself and it was understood that the players had to play what they were dealt and that anything went.

The hand in the box was one of the simplest he produced. At every table but one, West played and made seven spades. It didn't matter how he bid it, but no one ever doubled him. At the table where South managed to play seven hearts, the bidding went as shown in the box except that East decided to be brilliant first and made an insufficient bid of three diamonds before bidding seven diamonds. This barred his partner and South got to play his heart suit.

Incidentally if you want to produce four 13-card suits just take a new deck. Give it exactly two perfect shuffles, cut and deal. If your shuffles were perfect you will have this ultimate freak hand.

Suburban open space gets last chance

by LEA TONKIN

The last chance for open space has come to the Northwest suburbs.

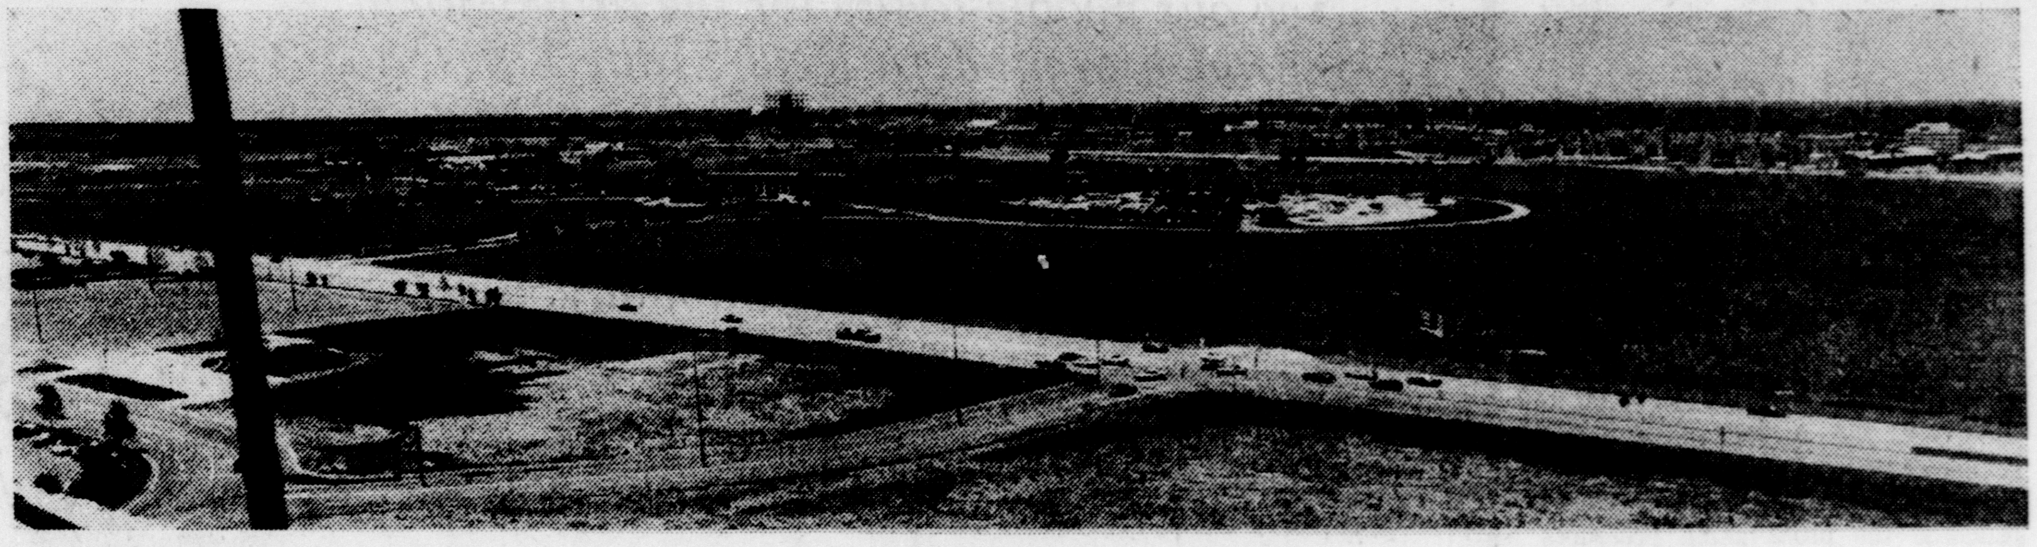
As the land is turned to new housing and business development, opportunities to set aside undeveloped acreage disappear, said Tom Hamilton, a director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. Hamilton will join a panel of land-use experts in a discussion of open space issues at the district's annual meeting tonight in Schaumburg.

The public meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. in the Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Interested residents are invited but attendance is limited to 100 persons. The district offices in Lake Zurich can provide reservations information.

The conference is planned as a meeting place for area residents interested in open space opportunities, Hamilton said.

"We've got to be able to work together and find out how we can help each other," he said.

Tom Hamilton



LAND DEVELOPMENT in the Northwest suburbs should leave room for open space, said Tom Hamilton of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District. The district is among the sponsors of tonight's open space seminar slated in Schaumburg.

"OUR HIGHEST priority should be to preserve natural areas not really suited for development, such as bogs and forests — now being converted to commercial development," he said. "Land is a commodity. Use the land according to its capabilities. If you do that, you'll come up with open space."

The rapid development which characterized the suburbs during the past decade often failed to include open space planning, Hamilton said. "What we lack is space for passive recreation," he said. He envisions the preservation of small land parcels for close-to-home recreation.

"Put into perspective, it's not open space for itself. It's for people," Hamilton said. Pockets of land should be preserved for their importance as recreational, geological, historical and environmental areas, he said.

A good example of lands which should be set aside for common sense reasons is flood plain property, Hamilton said. A newly enforced state regulation requires application for a permit to develop lands within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries.

"NO ONE CAN build on the flood plain without permission from the state," Hamilton said. He serves as chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee. "What this law is saying is that you can't go against the laws of nature," he said. Although the new regulation will mean "some pain" for land owners and developers who planned construction projects in the flood plain area, it will prevent flooding problems encountered by owners of flood plain buildings, he added.

When it comes time to plan development of the remaining open areas in the suburbs, Hamilton said, an enlightened public can work together to preserve open space, "the kind that heals the soul."

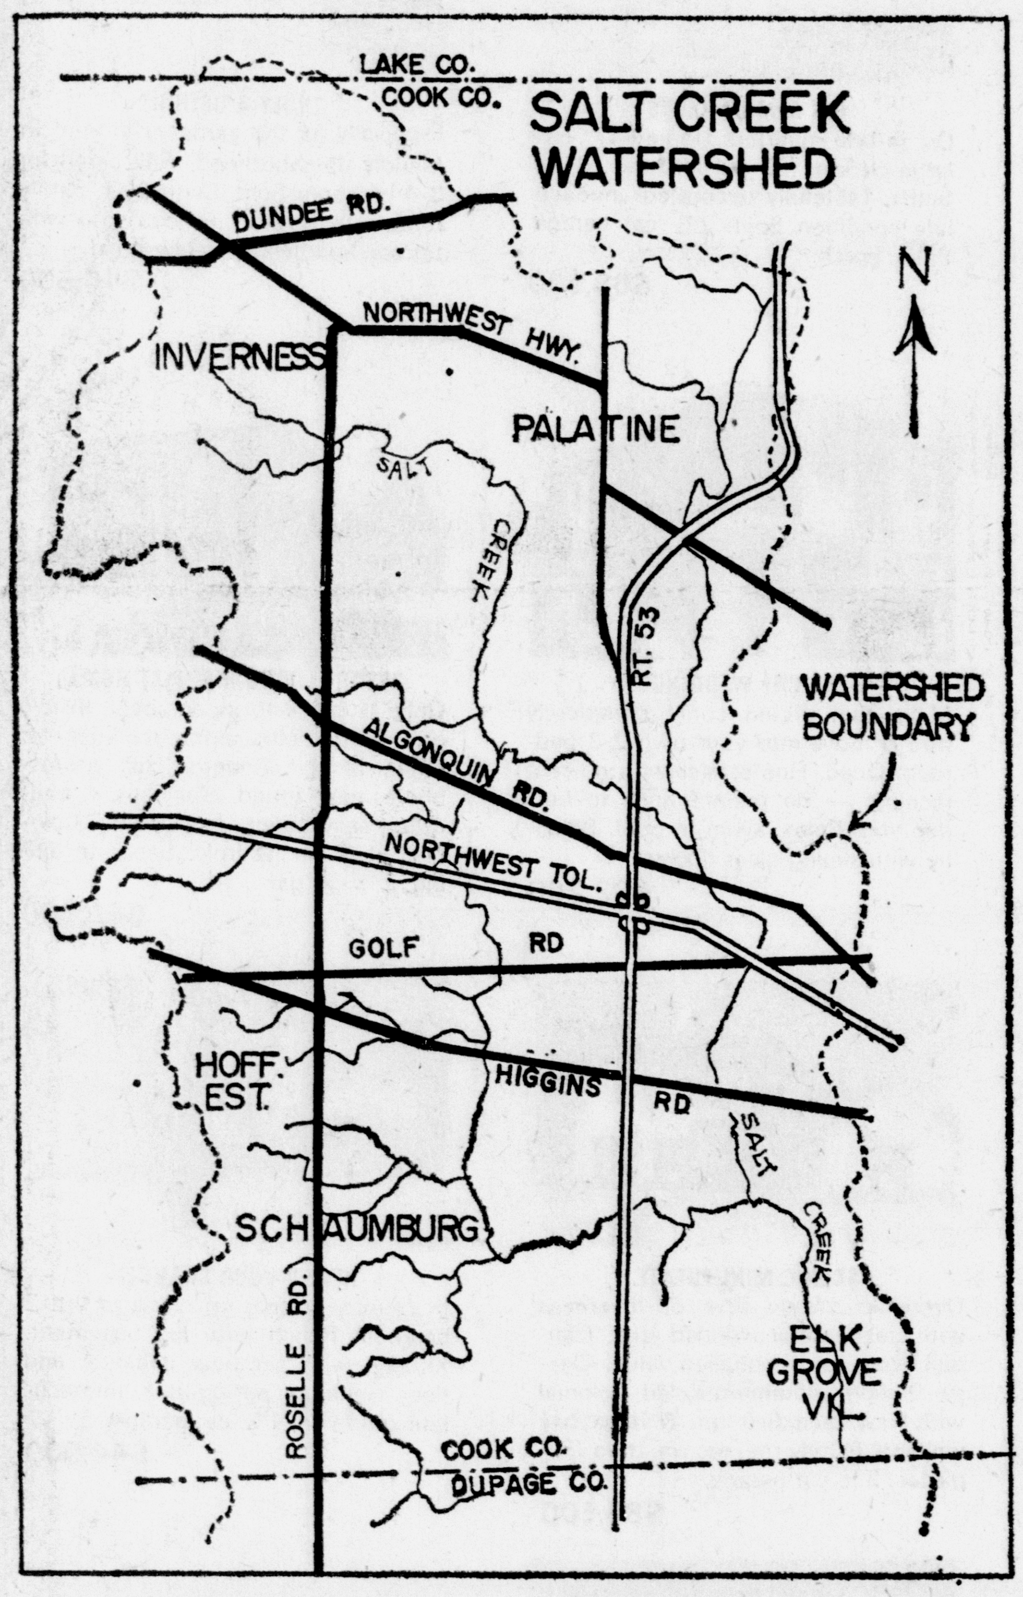
Participants in the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District meeting will include:

- April Young, teacher and planner at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and director of the Open Lands Project. The project develops policy statements on land use issues, coordinating citizen efforts to reserve or acquire land.
- Nil Gaston, an attorney and director of the Nature Conservancy. The conservancy promotes the acquisition of Illinois natural areas for scientific, educational and aesthetic reasons.
- Joe Nevius, assistant landscape architect for the Cook County Forest Preserve. He has worked on district property development.
- Mike Ives, a land planner with the Michael Ives & Associates firm, who will discuss human engineering and how to use open space in development.
- Don Klein, executive director of the Barrington Area Council of Governments. The agency has developed ordinances to insure orderly growth in the Barrington area.
- Ellsworth Meineke, director of conservation for Spring Valley Nature Center in Schaumburg and associate director of the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation district.

The meeting is sponsored by the Spring Valley Nature Club, the Des Plaines chapter of the Sierra Club, The Prairie Woods chapter of the National Audubon Society and the conservation district.

In Upper Salt Creek area

Flood plain permits now required



NEW FLOOD plain development controls are enforced in the Upper Salt Creek watershed area. A state permit is required for construction.

Developers must apply for a state permit to build within the flood plain of the Upper Salt Creek and its tributaries under regulations effective Feb. 1.

Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships are affected by the new standards. According to Tom Hamilton, chairman of the Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee, the area is one of two in Illinois where the strict controls are enforced. The North branch of the Chicago River is the second location.

The flood plain zoning is designed to prevent loss and destruction due to flooding, Hamilton said. The state authority for flood plain management is in the 1971 amendment to the Rivers and Lakes Act. It calls for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation to define flood plains and set up a permit procedure to regulate construction on the flood plain.

THE DEPARTMENT'S division of water resources will administer the permit program in the Upper Salt Creek region and other flood plains. The regulations will not eliminate development. Construction will be permitted in areas designated as the "flood fringe" if it will not cause an increase in flooding problems. Permits must be obtained from the Dept. of Transportation. In areas designated as "floodway," permits for construction will not be granted.

If a homeowner plans a major addition, and the property is located within the flood plain, a permit from the state will be required. Although "flood-proofing" development is encouraged, other improvements must meet state standards.

Homeowners may decide to take the risk of development in the flood plain. But the state Dept. of Transportation must first consider the possible flood-causing impact of the project.

In the long run, the state agency said, the flood plain regulations will decrease the total cost of owning or using a structure. The cost of precautionary measures is minimal compared to the cost of repairing or replacing a building with extensive flood damage, the agency said.

More minorities move to suburbs

Quality education for children, easy access to jobs and comfortable living environments attract an increasing number of minority families to suburban apartments, said Paul Epstein, executive director of the Fair Housing Center in Chicago.

The nonprofit agency offers counseling to minority families moving to suburban communities.

"The Northwest suburbs is a great area of interest because of the number and variety of apartments available," Epstein said. Amenities such as pools and saunas, and nearby employment centers prompt city dwellers to choose suburban apartment living, he said.

Epstein noted an increased interest in apartment rentals as compared to home buyer inquiries.

"Fully half our suburban inquiries during the last year have been about apartment rentals instead of home purchases," he said. "It's simply because of the increased cost."

The Fair Housing Center has a free booklet that explains its services. Entitled, "It's Your Choice," the booklet can be obtained from the center, 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

Stocks flirt with Dow's 1,000 mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices closed mixed in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday as the Dow Jones industrial average, fighting profit takers, flirted unsuccessfully with the 1,000 barrier in reaching another three-year high.

A late rally lifted the Dow average 1.02 points to 994.57, the highest level since it finished at 996.76 on Feb. 13, 1973. It was ahead three at the outset and off as much as five during the afternoon before rallying in the last hour.

But other averages skidded. Standard & Poor's lost 0.34 to 101.69, the NYSE common stock index 0.16 to 54.46, and the average price of an NYSE by 10 cents.

THE MARKET'S breadth figures reflected the profit-taking pressures and some investor uncertainty. Of the 1,909 issues crossing the tape, 867 declined, 678 advanced and 364 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 34,680,000 shares, slightly better than the 34,380,000 traded Tuesday.

Most Wall Street analysts said the significance of the Dow's breaking through the 1,000 level would be that stock prices are approaching their highest level ever and have a chance to move even higher.

The last time the blue-chip average of 30 industrials closed over 1,000 was Jan. 26, 1973, when it finished at 1,003.54. The Dow reached its all-time high of 1,051.70 on Jan. 11 that year.

Analysts said Wall Street was almost unanimous in expecting the blue-chip Dow average to crack 1,000. But it failed Wednesday because of preplanned selling by traders in advance of its reaching that level.

"THIS DEFINITELY was a factor in the Dow failing to move any more than it did," said Monte Gordon, vice president of Dreyfus Corp. "What was more significant, however, is that the market quickly absorbed the profit taking."

Chrysler, a 1 1/8-point gainer in Tuesday's rally, led the Big Board actives, gaining 2 1/8 to 18½ on 664,600 shares. The company said it expects to report profits in each quarter of 1976. Were it not for its Airtemp division, which it sold, Chrysler would have had a $34 million profit in the fourth quarter of 1975.

Other auto stocks also advanced, helped by a stronger-than-expected 21 per cent overall jump in mid-February sales. American Motors was the second most active issue, up 7/8 to 7¼ on 476,100 shares. General Motors rose 1 3/8 to 66 1/8 and Ford ¾ to 52 1/8.

Prices closed mixed in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by one cent. Volume totaled 5,720,000 shares, compared with 6,360,000 traded Tuesday.

ONE CALL DOES IT ALL

Firms buy homes to aid transferees

Some type of employer-funded purchase of the equity in a transferred employe's former home is the most popular means of helping solve transfer-related estate problems among companies that offer any kind of assistance.

This was reported recently by Robert W. Starck, president of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect, in summarizing results of a recent survey among members of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. Robert W. Starck & Co. is one of more than 850 RELO members, whose offices market homes in more than 8,000 cities and towns throughout the United States and Canada and in several nations overseas.

A cross-section of RELO's membership was asked to list the kinds of programs offered by employers in their communities to ease an employe's potential money problems encountered in selling one home and buying another because of a transfer to another company location.

"OF THE MEMBERS who reported one or more types of aid that are included in local companies' transfer programs, 80 per cent listed an employer-funded purchase of equities in the homes transferees must leave in order to accept new positions," Starck said.

Some companies purchase transferred employes' former homes with corporate funds. Others contract with outside firms that specialize in buying, then reselling transferees' properties.

"The newest such equity-purchase program, Trans/Action, has been offered to local employers by Robert W. Starck & Co. and other RELO brokers since the first of the year," Starck said. "Under it, an employer contracts to pay a modest per cent of each transferee home's selling price — which includes real estate brokerage commission and other costs of selling.

"In return, Trans/Action offers the transferee a guaranteed price for his equity, based on independent appraisal of the home's market value. If the transferee gets an outside offer that is higher than the Trans/Action figure, he receives the additional money."

Other types of company help were reported in the RELO survey. Forty-five per cent of responding brokers said firms in their areas offer transferred employes short-term, interest-free loans with which to make down payments on homes in their new locations. Forty-two per cent reported employers in their localities provide low-interest interim financing for purchase of homes by transferees.

S&L offers plants as deposit premiums

Palatine Savings & Loan Association is filled with tropical decorator plants — Schefflera, Marginata Dracaena, rubber plants and other exotic greenery fill the lobby — 8-inch pots sell for $5 plus tax and the 10-inch pots are $10 plus tax. These plants are being sold with a deposit of $50 to a savings account. The last day is Feb. 28. Proceeds of all plants sold will be donated to the Northwest Suburban Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Carsons, Amlings set salute to U.S. plants

Long before the United States was celebrating its red-white-and-blue birthdays, this land was giving birth to a thriving life of a different color — Green. In all shapes and sizes, from every kind of soil and climate, the flora of this country is as diverse as its people.

Carson Pirie Scott & Co. salutes this diversity by presenting under its State Street roof a unique garden show entitled "Flora Americana" March 1 through March 20.

The "gardening" of Carsons is the production of Amling's Flowerland, headquartered in Melrose Park. The installation, is a round-the-clock session utilizing Carsons' display department as well as a 45-man team from Amling's.

Amling's indoor landscape division will be on hand throughout the three-week show to ensure the necessary atmospheric conditions and maintain freshness.

Two horticultural experts from Amling's Flowerland are on hand daily to answer questions and conduct tours through "Flora Americana." The tours provide information on the geography and range of climates that produce the various flora regions as well as on the specific plants found in them.

Market dominated by used houses

Thorough check the key to purchasing old home

Chances are the new house you plan to buy this year will be a pre-owned house.

A big reason for this probability is that the homebuilding industry has been operating at a very low level for the last two years. Even though industry problems are beginning to ebb, a big recovery is not expected quickly. Axiomatically, the decline in new home construction has fueled a tremendous spurt in used home sales, both locally and nationally, and more of the same is expected in 1976.

But the prospect of buying a house that has been occupied by other families should not disappoint you.

"After all, thousands of families, including people who have lived in new houses and those who have only lived in used homes, make it a special point only to buy used homes," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"Older homes may have many features that newer homes can't duplicate at today's prices," said Walters, who is general manager of Baird & Warner's residential sales division. "Multiple wood-burning fireplaces, abundant wood paneling and trim, large high-ceilinged rooms, bedroom suites and full separate dining rooms are some of them."

Since older homes are in established neighborhoods, you can know who the people are, how good the school system is and be comforted by the knowledge that taxes won't go up as fast as they will in a newly developing area.

All of these factors can make an older home a top value. But there's no denying that an older home, no matter how well built, may have some problems associated with age. For that reason, realtors advise sellers to put their house in first-class condition before putting it on the market.

"The buyer of such a house stands a better chance of getting a sound older home if he buys with a realtor's aid," advises Walters.

Over the years as the Chicago area's largest seller of residential properties, Baird & Warner has developed a checklist to guide prospective buyers of older homes. The list also points to things a seller should attend to. Here's what the company suggests:

- Carefully examine the exterior of any house you're thinking of buying. If the house is of frame construction, is the paint in good condition? If brick, is the tuck pointing in good condition?

Peeling paint and crumbling mortar may be signs of more serious deterioration.

- Check for leaky faucets, cracked walls and woodwork, loose doors, knobs, sticky windows and warped doors. All of these defects will have to be repaired once the prospect purchases the house. If these defects are present, they should affect the purchase price.
- Is the heating plant in good condition or will it have to be replaced? Will it accommodate air-conditioning?
- Is the water heater adequate for your needs? A couple with several growing children will need a larger water heater than an older couple living alone.
- Is there a complete set of screens for doors and windows? Storm doors and windows?
- If the house has a basement, is there any evidence of water seepage?
- Are there connections for an automatic washing machine and dryer?
- The kitchen today has become one of the most important rooms in the house. Check to see if it is well laid out and convenient to work in. Are the counter tops and floors in good condition? Will they have to be replaced? Is the cabinet space adequate? For casual meals, is there room for a dining table and chairs?
- Equally important are the bathrooms. Home buyers should check the condition of the tiling around the tub and shower areas as well as around the vanity. If the grouting is not in good condition, it may indicate water leakage that could lead to damaged walls and ceilings.
- Is there adequate closet space in each bedroom? This is especially important to a growing family.
- Is there a separate linen closet centrally located to bedrooms and bathrooms or will linens have to share space with clothes in one of the bedroom closets?
- Is the wiring adequate? Frequently in older homes, unless the wiring has been completely replaced, the electrical system cannot accommodate the myriad of appliances in daily use in contemporary living.
- Are the gutters and downspouts in good condition?
- Are lawns and landscaping in good condition? Overgrown shrubs, dead or dying trees, and scrubby-looking grass may mean extra work or money paid to a landscaper to fix up.

"All in all, an older home can be a tremendous value, provided you shop carefully and choose well," Walters concluded.

Gudgeon appointed realty estate rep

D. F. Gudgeon & Assoc. Realty, Inc., 133 W. Main St., Lake Zurich, has been appointed exclusive representative for the Lake County Board of Realtors by Trans-American Real Estate Exchange (TAREX), a national real estate referral service organization with headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah.

"Nearly 15 million people transfer across state and county lines yearly," said Dan Gudgeon, president of D. F. Gudgeon & Assoc. "Our appointment by TAREX will give us advance information about families moving into the Northwest suburbs of Chicago and provide professional assistance to families transferring to other areas of the United States.

"We will be working with a select nationwide network of brokers to provide 'no cost' assistance for relocating families. We can now save them time and money at both ends of their move," said Gudgeon.

Trade magazine features Plaza in cover story

Plaza Verde, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, Buffalo Grove, was the featured cover story in the December 1975 edition of "Modern Stores and Offices," an electrical publication.

The center was cited for its landscaping, natural light skylights and artifically-illuminated skylights which "give a feeling of open spaciousness," according to the magazine.

Marvin C. Hymen, developer of Plaza Verde, said, "We are not simply 'another shopping center.' The entire concept of Plaza Verde has been carefully planned to benefit our tenants, their customers and the village as a whole.

"For example, Buffalo Grove is one of the few villages with an appearance commission. The community leaders are interested in presenting an image of planned growth and good taste. We worked very closely with the commission, and our architecture and over-all appearance have been designed to complement the neighborhood for many years to come."

Plaza Verde currently houses more than 25 retail stores and 4 restaurants.

Rubloff announces $1,900,000 sale

Chicago-based Arthur Rubloff & Co. disclosed a recent sales transaction in Schaumburg.

Industrial properties specialist William A. Lederer represented all parties in the $1.9 million sale of an industrial complex of three multi-tenant buildings on approximately five acres at 1200 Remington Rd. in Schaumburg. Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States acquired the property as a real estate investment. Arthur Rubloff & Co. will remain as the leasing agent for the recently completed development containing 83,000 square feet of space, including offices and truck level loading docks. Approximately 75 per cent of the space has been leased The seller was Main Bank of Chicago, as trustee. Legal counsels for the seller were Bernard Sang and Vincent Carney of Sturman, Sang, Carney. Counsel for the buyer was Malcom McCartney of Ross, Hardies, O'Keefe, Babcock and Parsons.

LET'S TALK IT OVER
JERRY BOUSCHARD

Some homeowners, who do not understand all the facts about real estate transactions, are reluctant to give a Realtor an "exclusive right to sell." However, when they are serious about wanting to sell, within a reasonable time and at a reasonable price, they can usually understand that an "exclusive" listing is actually best for them.

When a Realtor has an "exclusive," he is not afraid to invest in advertising. He will see that other qualified brokers know about the property. If another broker makes the sale, the single commission is shared so that each receives fair payment for their contribution to the sale.

Planning to sell? Let us explain why an exclusive listing is better for you. Phone or drop in to see me.

Love a consideration in property sale

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

In order to have a valid agreement, there must be a consideration or a price must be paid for the property. If the money does not pass, then the deal is not valid. However, there is an exception to this rule. "Love and affection" can be just as valuable a consideration as cold cash.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have a real problem! I may not be the owner of the house we now live in.

The story begins with a gift from my father. Four years ago, his health started to fail. At that time he decided to give away most of his property. To me he gave a beautiful nine-room house worth about $60,000. My father passed away two years later.

The second part of the story begins with my husband. This year he decided to get into real estate. He is going to school.

One of his assignments was to prepare a deed. He used our house as an example. This is when he discovered that the consideration in the deed was $100. Worse yet, there is no evidence that the $100 was paid. In fact, there was good reason to believe it wasn't. Now for the problem.

My husband points out that a contract without consideration is not valid. Since the price was set at $100, and that was never paid, the whole transaction, he thinks, is void. He tells me that, in his opinion, my house will now become part of my father's estate. My two brothers and sister would love to get their hands on this house.

Now what do I do? — SCARED.

Tell your husband to go back for more schooling. He has frightened you because he is only giving you half an answer.

It is true that in an ordinary arm's-length transaction there must be consideration, and the money must pass. But this is not the case for a gift — especially one between father and daughter.

In such cases, the consideration can be "love and affection." The fact that the $100 did not change hands does not, in any manner, invalidate the deed. Your father's love for you was more than ample consideration. No money was required.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My builder wants to start the house in the middle of winter. He says freezing weather doesn't bother his method of construction. He uses a special chemical called calcium chloride. He compares this chemical to anti-freeze in a car. In that way, he says, he can pour the footings and foundation even if the temperature is zero.

Shall I allow him to start?—WANT A GOOD JOB

Don't! Your house will be in trouble from the start if you do. Calcium chloride cannot be compared with anti-freeze. To appreciably lower the freezing point of concrete would require so much calcium chloride that the concrete would be ruined.

Concrete should never be poured on frozen ground. Once poured, it must be kept at 70 degrees for two or three days — or at 50 degrees for three to five days.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Our son is in trouble. He is four months behind in his mortgage payments, his wife has left him, he owes the finance company $1,800 and there are half a dozen other bills he can't pay. I need not tell you that he is about to lose his house.

Also, he is getting ready to leave town to escape his problems. Before he goes, he wants to turn the house over to us, his parents. The house is in his name, so he won't have any trouble giving us the deed. He says that in the way we will be the owners of the property — and the creditors will not be able to do anything because they will be unable to catch up with him.

Can my son do that he says?—AN ESCAPE PLAN

Your son can give you a deed, but it will not mean anything. In fact, all you'll get from it is grief and harassment.

To start with, the wife not signing off messes up the title. The bank still has the right to foreclose, but now, in addition to your son, they will join you in the action. Also, all the creditors probably have liens against the property by now.

You are getting a true trojan horse as a gift. Don't accept it!

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The electric company has just ruined my yard. They have mutilated four beautiful oak trees I planted 25 years ago.

Through the years, my plantings have grown tall and straight — while I have grown bent and stooped. In summer, the shade they cast makes the yard a delight. All this has now changed.

Last week, when I was out shopping, a crew from the electric company arrived and mutilated them. They cut down the branches to half their size. Of course, I screamed! They tell me they had the right to do this because the tree branches were interfering with the electric wires.

Who gave them that right? I never did — and I have owned the house since it was built.—MY TREES ARE NAKED.

You didn't, but the builder of your house did. Way back, while your house was being built, he gave the electric company an easement so that they could put up the poles and string the wires.

Included in the easement was the right to cut down and trim all trees and shrubbery that might in any way interfere with service.

Several significant factors are responsible for the consistent sales volume increase of the MAP Mutliple Listing Real Estate Service and these factors were outlined at the recent MAP directors meeting where the January sales report was released.

The most significant factor is the real estate market in general and the greater Northwest suburban area in particular. "The general real estate market remains healthy," says Stan Lieberman, president of MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service, "and of course, the Northwest Chicago suburbs continues to be a most desirable living area; consequently, we do enjoy a better than average flow of home buyers who know the value of dealing with a professional real estate broker to assure quick, trouble-free service satisfaction."

Another contributing factor in the MAP sales increases is reflected in a recent report by the National Association of Realtors which shows that during 1975 new single family home sales lagged behind the existing home market. Price, supply and cost and availability of financing for homes resulted in a greater recovery in existing single family home sales in 1975 as compared with sales of new single family homes.

"Probably the most important reason for the strong performance of the resale market was the cost and availability of financing. Existing homes which had an assumable low interest rate have a competitive edge over new structures requiring new mortgage financing," stated Lieberman.

The MAP Multiple Listing Service reported 632 transactions during January, 1976, resulting in over $29 million in real estate sales, an increase of almost 50 per cent over the same period in 1975, and an increase of over 34 per cent over the preceeding month. As previously reported, the MAP organization established an all time high sales volume in 1975 of $343,537,409.

"We are noticeably proud of our 1975 sales record," says Lieberman, "and we have every reason to believe that 1976 will continue to reflect buyer confidence in the economy recovery and in the real estate market."

Big profits found in firewood sales, service

Happiness a warm hearth for young businessmen

ATLANTA (UPI)—George Hart, a 34-year-old Harvard Business School graduate, makes house calls at all hours of the night to show people how to build fires in their fireplaces.

Bob Wardle, 29, a Georgia Tech graduate in industrial management, makes similar house calls. He also spends hours at an old warehouse in downtown Atlanta splitting oak and hickory.

They are business partners in a venture called "Firewood Co." which sells firewood, then calls on its customers if the wood doesn't burn properly.

ALSO WORKING IN the new company are Norbert Ecker, 25, and Walt Stone, 27. Ecker is a graduate engineer taking chemistry so he can enter Johns Hopkins University next fall. Stone is studying for his Ph.D in chemistry.

Hart and Wardle believe they may be getting in on the ground floor of a potentially booming business. What they're selling that's different, in addition to their house calls, is "processed firewood" bundled neatly with plastic bands, consisting only of hard wood and measured precisely as to firewood cord, half a cord or bundle. It is clean and stacks neatly.

Each firewood cord consists of one-third dry or cured wood, one-third seasoned wood that's mostly dry, and green wood.

A cord costs $70 at the warehouse or $80 delivered.

The company "office" is the middle of the warehouse floor. A wood-burning stove warms visitors. On all sides are racks of pungent oak and hickory. Baskets of "fat light-ard" sit on a table. "Fat light-ard" is a type of pine wood, heavy with resin and readily ignited.

WHEN HART OR Wardle make a house call, they take along a little brown box equipped with a meter and a two-pronged skwer-like instrument. It operates electrically and gives an exact reading on the moisture content of the wood. With the box, Hart can readily tell a customer if his dying fire is caused by burning wood that's too green.

Hart was out until 9 o'clock one night recently, showing a young couple how to start a fire in their fireplace.

"He was gone so long," said his blonde wife, Penny, 33, "that I started to call the police."

"Hart said he spent so much time on thecall "because I love wood . . . not just the selling of it but the enjoying of it."

Hart's boyhood home near Gray, Ga., had nine fireplaces. "Some of my fondest memories of childhood revolve around the hearth," he said.

"Most young people love a wood-burning fireplace and get a real feeling of accomplishment from building a fire," he added, "but many of them don't know how to start a fire."

HART, youngish-looking and with a preference for bluejeans, owns the old warehouse that headquarters his Firewood Co. He sells commercial real estate and is on the board of directors of several small businesses. But he spends 90 per cent of his time selling firewood and drinking coffee around the stove with customers and visitors.

The business has been in operation about three months. In that time it has picked up 510 customers and sold 150 cords of wood for $23,000 dollars. Hart says it is the first small enterprise he has ever been associated with that's been so sucessful from the start. A market study, he says, indicates that his firm can do $500,000 worth of firewood business annually in the Atlanta area in years to come.

"Our only limitation right now is what we can get out the door," Hart said, adding that when summer comes he plans to warehouse all the firewood he can get and let it dry out. "We found out," he said, "that people want seasoned firewood."

He believes the energy crisis is going to get worse and that this country, which stopped using wood as a fuel years ago, will return to this renewable resource.

"Wood is going to come back to life," Hart said. He tells his customers, "We will be happy to discuss any of your firebuilding problems in general. In fact, if you'd like to come down and have a cup of coffee with us around our pot-bellied stove — we'd love to see you."

New ski area near Vail built with nature in mind

AVON, Colo. (UPI) — Willis Nottingham regarded his 2,200 acres of Aspen-lined meadow in the Colorado Rockies as a fine cattle ranch. Vail Associates envisioned the tract as the most environmentally sound ski area in the nation.

Nottingham refused VA's first purchase offer in the early 1960s. However, he gave in three years ago to an offer of better property in northwestern Colorado plus a substantial amount of cash.

Christened for the Eagle River tributary running through the area, Beaver Creek has been designed as a 10-12 chairlift ski area which harmonizes with rather than destroys its surroundings.

LOCATED 10 MILES west of President Ford's favorite ski slopes at Vail, Beaver Creek has been planned with an internal mass transit system, a water purification plant and stiff building regulations to minimize environmental effects. Vail Associates even has made plans to ban traditional fireplaces if smoke emission threatens air quality.

Offering summer sports as well as winter, Beaver Creek has a projected population of 12,000 by its 1990 completion date at a total cost of $20 million. VA hopes the first skiers will take to the slopes by 1979.

Bob Barker, senior vice president of VA, envisions the area as a model for all future environmentally sound recreation projects, and a necessary one.

"If recreation has a future in this country, it has to be along environmentally sensitive lines," he said. "It is not possible in this day and age for an environmentally unsound area to make it. People are now buving the environment as part of their experience."

BOUNDED ON all four sides by National Forest lands to halt further growth, Beaver Creek, for all its environmental considerations, has drawn considerable criticism.

Although VA has completed several impact and pollution studies, state government officials and conservationists have opposed the area since its inception. Gov. Richard Lamm joined the battle this year and won a year's delay in construction so another environmental impact study could be made.

"We believe the basic environmental concerns at Beaver Creek have now been clearly answered, so another review will only serve as further confirmation of the development plan's soundness," said Richard Peterson, VA president.

And considering the mounting demand for recreational facilities, opposition to the area is fighting a losing battle, according to Parker.

THE ANSWER to the supply-demand dilemma in recreation, Parker said, is quality areas providing challenges while minimizing the pressure on the environment.

"No-growth is not the answer; it is carefully controlled growth," he said. Experience shows the challenge seeking American is more than willing to pay extra for an environmentally attractive and balanced area.

He said the costs of an environmentally sensitive area are immense and a major rason why mountains will never be overrun with ski slopes, golf courses and frustrated modern sportsmen. A further limitation, he said, is that only six sites with sufficient snowfall, slope, access to water and smiliar requisites for winter sports exist in the Rockies. He said only a handful of recreation companies, including Aspen Ski Corp., VA and Walt Disney Inc., have the financial resources to develop the sites.

"Recreation is much like oil or mining, it is extremely capital intensive," Parker said. "But it is different in that we have a totally renewable resource if we are careful."

Guides to follow for house check

by MERLE E. DOWD

Q. "I've been impressed with several old houses that were completely rehabilitated into modern homes at what I believe was less than building a new one by a substantial margin. But, I'm afraid to buy an old house that might have shaky foundations or termites. Will a thorough inspection assure a sound structure in a house?" — C.A.

A. If you are willing to tackle a rehabilitation job of that magnitude, you must be knowledgeable about house structure and systems. You could follow a checkout system detailed in a new handbook published by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture,"New Life for Old Dwellings," USDA Handbook 481, available from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The cost is $1.70.

If you would prefer an outside opinion, look in the classified section of your telephone directory under "Building Inspectors." Some inspectors in a few cities now offer an insured inspection service. If the inspector misses something serious in the structure that must be repaired within a set time, they will pick up the tab for correction. Other inspectors may render only an opinion.

Q. "Last year the penalty rate charged on income taxes not paid on time was increased to 9 per cent from 6 per cent. What is the rate likely to be this year?" — W.T.

A. The Internal Revenue Service began varying the rate charged on back taxes and on its own delayed refunds in 1975 according to the prime rate charged by 90 per cent of the major banks in the United States.

For years the rate was 6 per cent, but last year the rate began at 9 per cent. Starting Feb. 1, 1976, the rate was 7 per cent and will remain at that rate for the next 12 months.

Q. "Christmas left us further in debt, and now I'm worried about my wages being garnisheed. I think the stores cannot take all my money. How much can I keep if I am garnisheed?" — M.P.

A. Since 1974, only that part of your wages in excess of a minimum can be garnisheed. The federal minimum wage for 1976 increases to $2.30 an hour if you are working in a nonagricultural job. For agricultural workers, the minimum will be $2.00 for 1976.

If your take-home pay (the amount left after income and Social Security tax withholding) is $69 or less, no part of your wages can be garnished. If your wages exceed $92 per week, no more than 25 per cent of your take-home pay is subject to garnishment.

If you are paid less often than once a week, your employer or the Labor Department can convert your take-home earnings to a weekly scale. If paying your bills continues to be a problem, you should seek outside help from a local office of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service, if one is available, or some similar help.

Ask your employer to recommend a counselor; usually this type of help is available without cost or for a minimum fee. Do not ask help from a commercial debt adjuster who will take 15 per cent of any money as a fee.

Q. "Cooking in an automatic slow-cooker appeals to me because I can fix dinner before I leave for work. Plus, long slow cooking tenderizes the less expensive cuts of beef that I was not able to use before. But, I'm worried about not killing all the bacteria in meat. Is the temperature in crock cookers high enough to be safe?"—B.R.

A. Most slow cookers hold foods at temperatures between 160-180 degrees F when set at low heat. Food poisoning bacteria are killed at temperatures as low as 160 degrees, according to Dr. Steve Drake, food scientist at Washington State University.

Most cookers raise the temperature to 160 degrees quickly, but check your cooker with a thermometer if you are concerned. Electrical fires from leaving the cooker plugged in without anyone around could be more of a hazard than food poisoning. Leave the cooker in a sink or other relatively safe spot and make sure the fuse or circuit breaker works.

Energy unit urges apartment meters

Apartment dwellers whose electricity bill is included in monthly rental payments often use more than double the power consumed by tenants who pay their own utility bills.

That's the finding of a study conducted by the Midwest Research Institute for the Federal Energy Administration. The report said the potential energy savings from the elimination of master meters can amount to millions of barrels of oil each year.

Tenants who live in master-metered apartment buildings will not be affected by a switch to individual meters if the cost of conversion is great, said Marilyn McGee, director of the Baird & Warner, Inc., property management office in Arlington Heights.

SHE PREDICTED an increasing number of new apartment buildings will feature individual meters to cut utility bills.

"One reason why people choose apartments is because they can budget according to their monthly rental rate," Ms. McGee said. She added an estimated 20 per cent boost in electricity costs during 1976 and rising rates for natural gas account for the trend of higher rental rates. "It's very difficult for owners to continue to operate and manage a building where there are these increasing costs," she said.

The study by the Midwest Research Institute includes the following conclusions:

- In some cities master-metered tenants used more than double the electricity of their counterparts who paid their own electric bills, and on an average master-metered apartment dwellers used 35 to 37 per cent more electricity. Most of the waste was found in lighting and household appliance use. But the Boston Edison Co. reported an annual loss of $3.2 million from air conditioners running in empty, master-metered apartments during peak use hours.
- Roughly one-third of the apartment buildings in the United States are master metered and in 1975 they used about 26 billion kilowatt hours of electricity. Had they been on individual meters, a savings of about 7 billion kilowatt hours would have eliminated the need for one large nuclear power plant. This would be the equivalent of saving 13 million barrels of oil a year or 35,000 barrels a day.
- While less data is available for office buildings, it was estimated 5 to 10 per cent of electrical use could be saved through individual metering, or 32,000 to 64,000 barrels of oil daily.
- Rewiring all existing master-metered apartments to individual meters would cost about $1.3 billion, but could result in an energy savings by the year 1990 of 25.8 million barrels of oil a year. Banning future construction with master meters but permitting existing master meters to stay would save about half as much energy.

"IT IS CLEAR that new federal legislation requiring individual metering of electricity for all residential dwelling units has the broadest impact and yields the greatest potential savings," the study said.

It suggested the ban could be accomplished most realistically by first preventing master meters on new construction and then using economic incentives such as tax credits to encourage retrofitting of already existing master-metered apartments.

That would require action by Congress, which could take some time, the study said, but in the meantime federal agencies could, with an executive order, move immediately to require individual meters on federal program housing and retrofittings on government-owned buildings.

Good year for brokers predicted

"I expect 1976 to be the finest year I have ever seen in real estate!" said Robert L. Zaun, president of the 12 Homefinders offices in the Northwest suburbs.

"The American people are tired of being held down" is the basis for Zaun's forecast.

Specifically, Zaun points to the following positive indicators for a "super '76" in real estate:

- Interest rates have stabilized since mid-1975 and gone down steadily since October, and this has happened in the face of the greatest U. S. Treasury borrowings in history. In addition, inflation and interest rates are now well below the double-digit rates of a year ago.
- From January through June, 1975, savings and loan associations took in the greatest inflow of funds compared to any other similar period in the history of savings institutions. In fact, these six-month figures were greater than any 12 month period in history, with the exception of 1972.
- Home prices have increased 100 per cent in the last decade, but median family income has increased 110 per cent during the same period. This does not include a qualitative adjustment for appliances, air conditioning and similar costly items which were not included 10 years ago. Although the percentage of eligible home buyers has decreased in the last two years, the total market has increased approximately 40 per cent.

"Furthermore," states Zaun, "we are witnessing increased activity in the secondary mortgage markets. Investors are becoming more active and will soon outnumber available quality loan packages. So we aren't letting the 'gloom and doom' forecasters get us down!"

The contrast between the last two Christmas seasons illustrates Zaun's optimism for the current year. The 1974 holiday season saw reduced buying by the American public for the worst Christmas sales in many years. In contrast, as the economy began to improve, the American public began spending again in the last half of 1975, and as a result the holiday season was one of the finest for merchants in recent years.

"I also feel that the economy as well as the morale of the public will soar as a result of this year's Bicentennial celebrations," adds Zaun.

Check moving cost

Don't let rent increases stampede you into move

If you're an apartment renter facing a rent increase this spring, don't let yourself be stampeded into a move. You might have a better deal than you realize where you are now living, and the cost of moving might wipe out any saving you expect from a less expensive apartment.

That's the advice of the man who broke the news that rents of Chicago area buildings managed by Baird & Warner, Inc. will go up an average of 7 per cent on leases taking effect May 1.

"Averages are frequently misleading," said William D. Sally, CPM, vice president and general manager of the company's property management division, which is one of the leading management companies in the area.

There are great variances from building to building, depending on operating expenses and vacancies, he said. Operating expenses, including fuel, utilities, insurance, maintenance, supplies and management services have all continued to climb, shrinking profit margins for owners and making rent increases necessary.

"Many of the specific increases are moderate, especially in the face of what is happening to operating costs. The biggest increases are occurring where expenses rose dramatically, where the tenant is having a two-year lease expire, or if last year's increase was kept substantially lower than it should have been, especially in new buildings, because of competitive pressures," Sally said. In other words, the people who are getting the biggest increases this year are those who, for the most part, got the biggest breaks last year. On a pro rata basis they are no worse off than people who got lower rent increases last year and again this year.

Sally also points out that the slump in apartment construction has narrowed the supply and there really aren't that many bargains to be found in choice locations close to work, public transportation and so on.

Finally, there is the reality of the high costs of moving.

"When you take into account all moving expenses, plus the possible added expenses of living in a new location, it could add to a hefty amount," Sally said. Here are the things you should consider:

- How much will it cost you to move? If you use a commercial moving company, figure on paying at least $50 an hour for three men and a van. Depending on whether the movers do all the packing and unpacking or you do, the move could take up to a half-day or longer. The tab: around $250 or more.
- How much will you pay to make up for damage and breakage during moving? This may be minimal if professional movers do the job, or it could be a lot if you're a do-it-yourselfer. Pictures and lamps are frequent casualties.
- How much will it cost you to refurnish? By refurnish, Sally refers to buying new carpeting and draperies to fit your new apartment, since in most cases your present carpeting and draperies won't fit. If your tastes aren't extravagant, you might get away for $800.
- What additional utilities will you be paying? Depending on the heating and electrical system, you would wind up paying more for electricity and gas. Of course, you could wind up paying less. Investigate to find out. Be sure to find out what you'll have to pay for hook-up and installation charges, plus deposits that some utilities may require.
- Will your amenities cost you more? Buildings vary in what they charge for things like using the swimming pool, saunas and tennis courts. If you use these facilities, find out what they'll cost in the place you are considering.
- Will parking cost you more? The more centrally located a building is, the more you'll pay for garage parking and the harder it will be to find street parking. Conversely, the further out you go, the cheaper parking becomes.
- Will transportation cost you more? You may be presently living in an apartment close to public transportation, such as the CTA or a commuter bus or rail line. If you move further out, your transportation costs will rise. A 25 cent per trip increase amounts to $125 more a year. Or you may have to buy a car.
- What about shopping? Check how far it is to stores from the new place you're considering. Also check the stores' prices. It costs less if you're within walking distance of a number of competitive stores.
- How much more will you have to pay for a security deposit in the new building?

"All of these elements have to be checked and balanced against what you expect to save in rent," Sally said.

Suppose you live in a $250 per month one-bedroom apartment and you get a 15 per cent increase. That's $37.50 more per month and $450 more per year. You find another one-bedroom apartment a little farther out where the rent is $260 a month. That's just a $10 increase or $120 a year. So if you move, you expect to save $330 (the difference between $450 and $120.)

"But moving expenses will wipe out more than half of the expenses, refurnishing will take care of the rest, and you may wind up in the hole when you add in the other expenses," the Baird & Warner executive said.

On top of that, a year from now you'll probably be faced with another increase as that owner tries to catch up on expenses. Many landlords are not giving leases for more than one year in most cases, to protect themselves against cost increases. So you'll be faced with the same situation all over again.

Don't forget windows when planning a home

How windows are placed, their size and the glass that is used in them are important aspects to be considered in planning a home in order to gain more livability and operating economy through energy conservation.

This attention to "window detail" can influence fuel savings in a new house, and also should be a definite consideration when designing the room additions many families are making to their present home.

To begin with, keep in mind that a southern exposure opens the house to the maximum amount of daylight and also to the greatest amount of solar heat in the winter. Therefore, the windows on the south side of a house should be large, and they should be planned in conjunction with a properly engineered roof overhang.

"It's a mistake to underrate the value of free solar heating when it comes to home design," says John Pike, manager of Libbey-Owens-Ford Company's residential market. "When a house is totally planned and built to utilize sun heat, the cost of winter fuel bills can be greatly reduced. Even a room addition with big south-facing windows can operate comfortably many days without supplementary heat."

Buffalo Grove wins league crown

by ART MUGALIAN

Defense was never like this, even in the old days of basketball when teams traded 30-footers and prayed for them to go in.

The defense displayed by the Buffalo Grove Bison Wednesday night in the Mid-Suburban League championship game was more formidable than anything the U.S. Army ever threw at an enemy.

It was defense like you've never seen.

The Bison defense was so impenetrable that South-division champion Conant sank just 12 of their 51 shots from the floor of the Buffalo Grove gym.

And it was good enough for Buffalo Grove to coast to a 48-28 victory over the Cougars, giving coach Paul Grady's Bison an MSL cage title in just their third year of varsity play. The north champs led all the way in posting their 19th win against just four losses.

On another night the Bison defense might not have been so awesome — it was a night to get psyched up.

But Wednesday was no different for 6-foot-8 junior Brian Allsmiller. The all-state candidate tossed in 23 points for the Bison and added 12 rebounds and six blocked shots.

While Allsmiller was cold at the start, teammates Scott Groot and Mike Ledna helped build a 10-4 first quarter lead. Groot hit a 35-footer at the gun to bring the huge crowd to its feet.

Cold streaks were the rule rather than the exception for Conant, however. After playing the first five minutes of the game without a score, Conant got a 12-foot jumper from Pete Scaffidi — and the Cougars trailed just 4-2 at that point.

But Scaffidi, a notorious outside shooter, was shut down the rest of the night and finished with only four points. Combined, Conant's 23 per cent from the field spelled doom for coach Dick Redlinger's team.

It was Buffalo Grove's shifting zone defense that kept Conant away from the hoop, quite literally forcing the Cougars to gun from the outer reaches. And the Conant shooters simply weren't finding the cords.

Another Conant dry spell allowed Buffalo Grove to build a 10-point lead midway through the second quarter, mainly on the shooting of Allsmiller. The tall Bison answered Ron Sulaski's baseline jumper with a pair of free throws for an 18-8 edge, then rejected three Cougar shots in succession to protect the margin.

Helping Allsmiller beat the Conant zone was Groot, a 5-11 junior, who had five baskets for 10 points. Junior forward Fred Heesch had just two points for the Bison, but the big 6-4 muscleman contributed nine rebounds. Tim

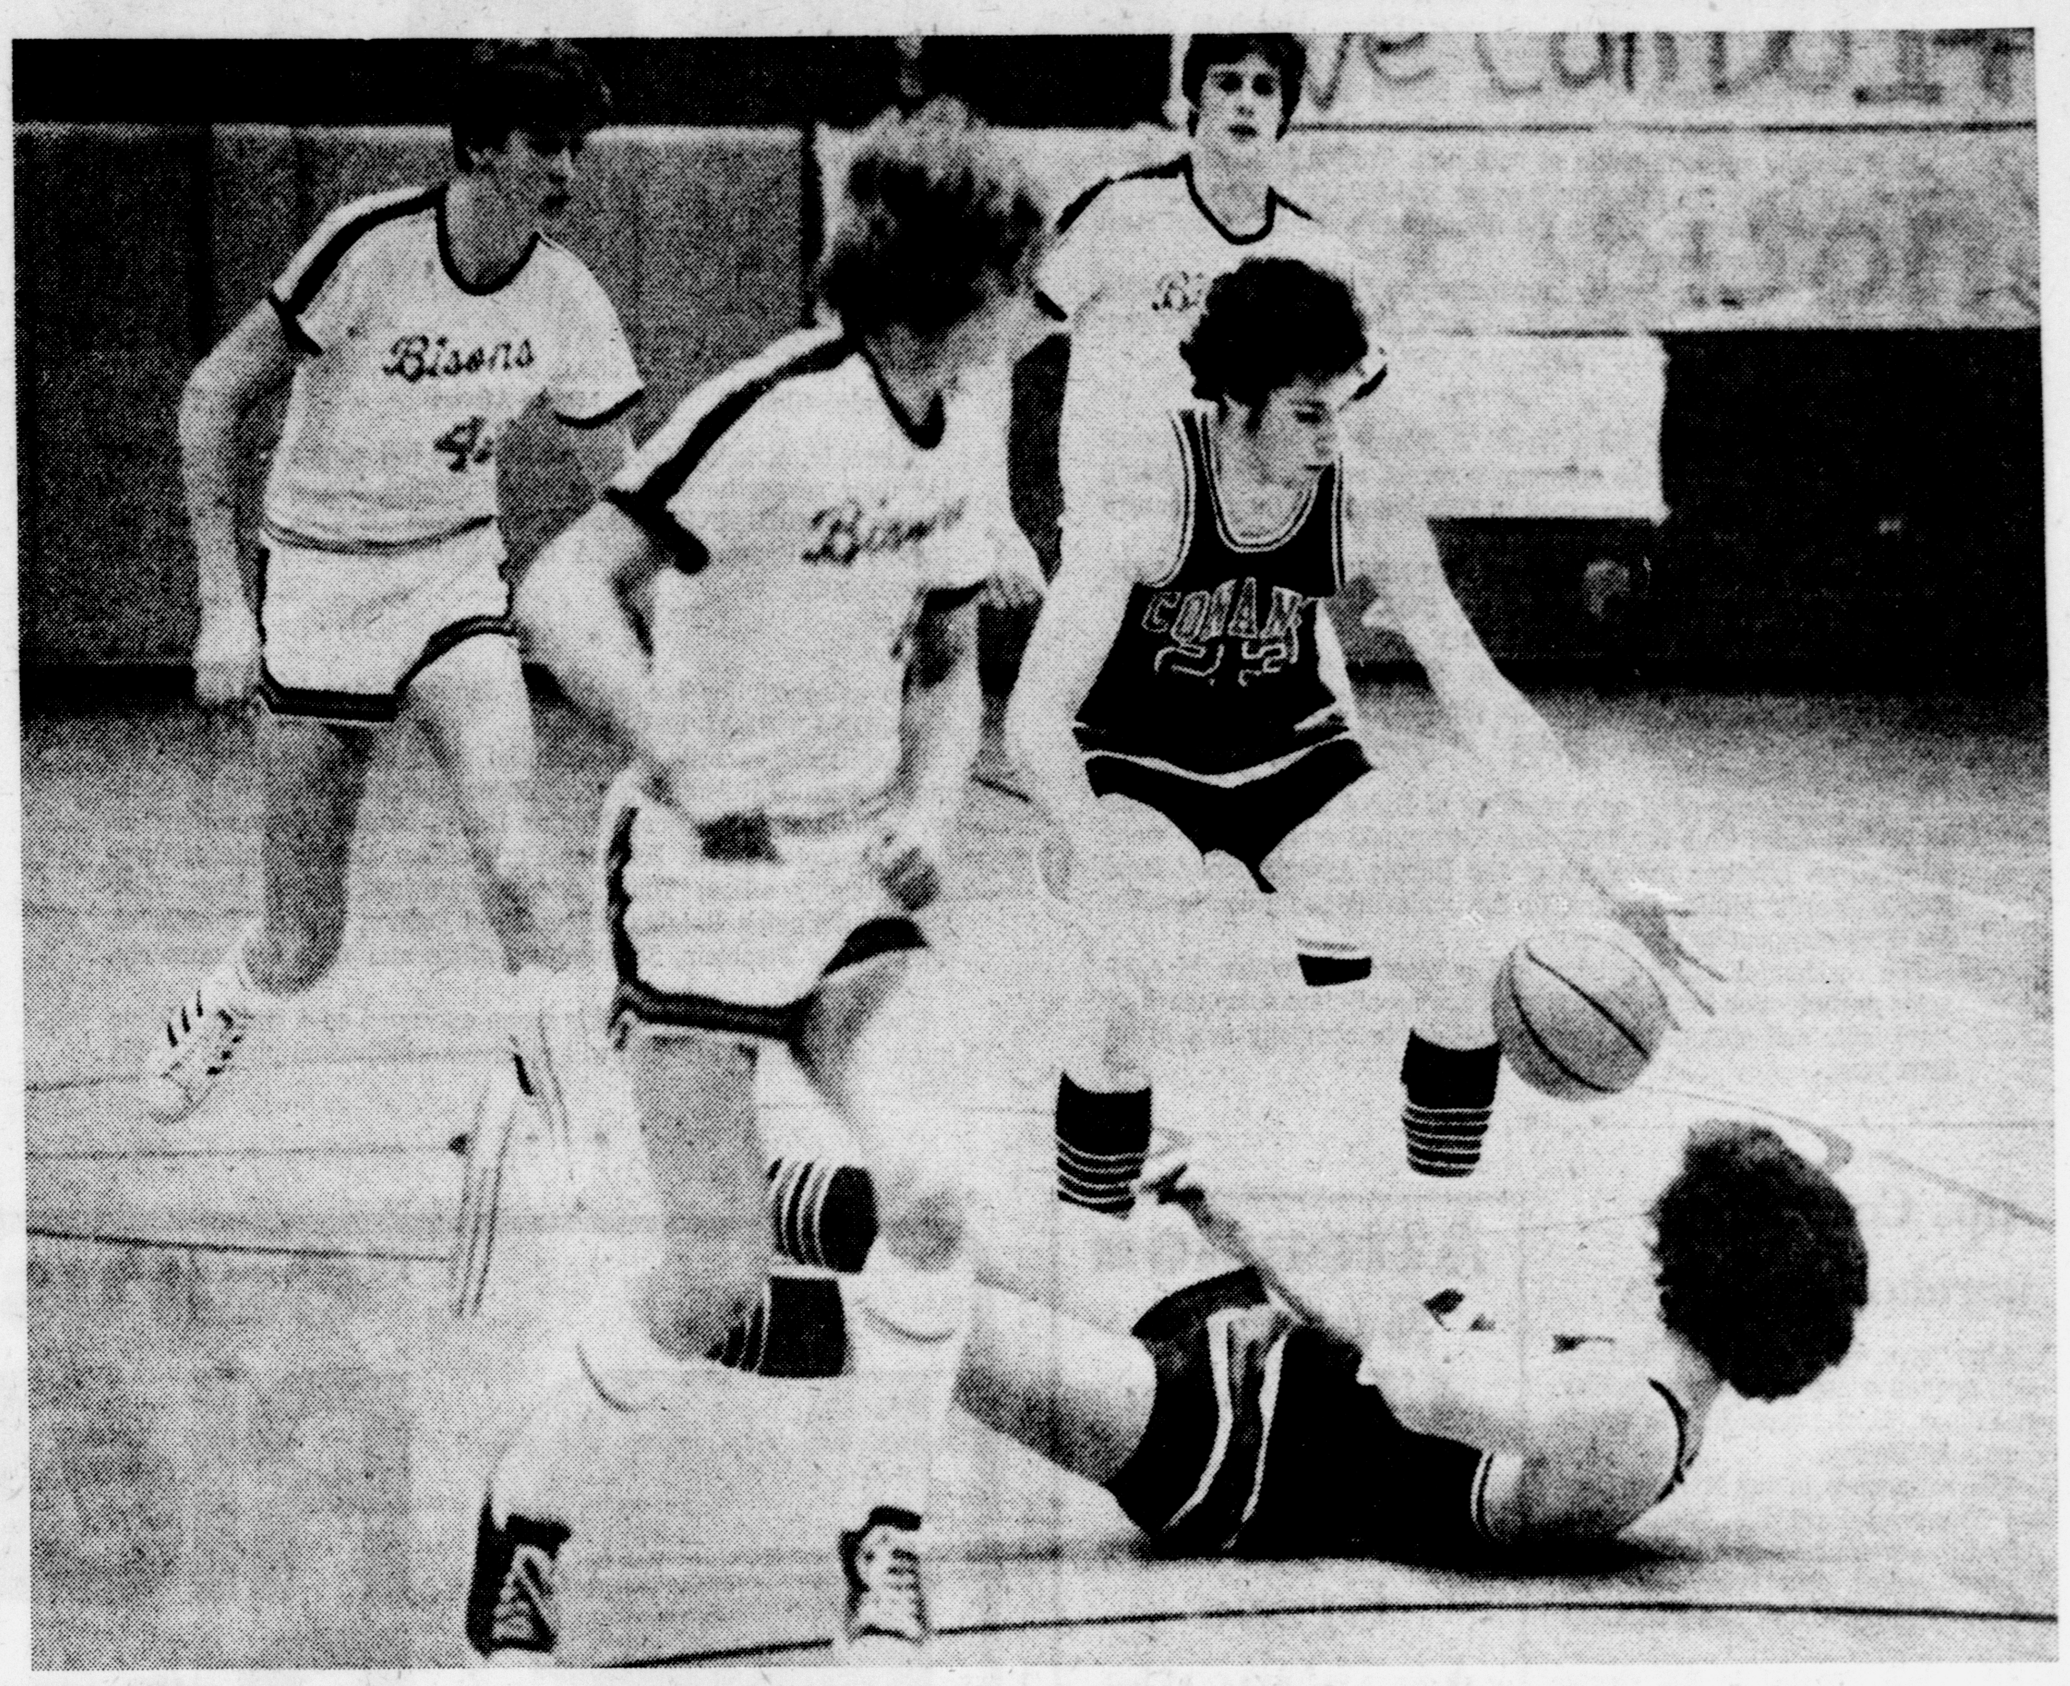
SCORE BY QUARTERS

Buffalo Grove	10	10	12	16—48
Conant	4	8	6	8—28



CONANT'S Pete Scaffidi scoops up a loose ball as Buffalo Grove's Brian Allsmiller, Mike Ledna and Tim Stonerook close in and Cougar guard Rob Totten goes for a slide during the MSL title game Wednesday night. The Bison swarmed to a 48-28 win over the South Division champion Cougars.

Champs earn another meal at Grady home

by KEITH REINHARD

At this point, Buffalo Grove head coach Paul Grady might be better off going into the restaurant business.

Before the season started he offered up some extra incentive to his charges: A defensive yield below 45 points in any game would be worth a home cooked meal by his wife, Cherris.

And after Wednesday night it would appear steak might be on the agenda at the Grady household some time in the near future. The Bison not only held Conant below 45 points in the Mid-Suburban League title game, they held fast at the 40, 35 and 30 marks as well. In fact, the Cougars were only able to muster up a dozen field goals all night in succumbing to the Grove, 48-28.

"I may be in the poorhouse before it's all over," chuckled Grady. "Before the season we set 45 as a realistic goal, in light of our own normal game tempo. And while I'm eating crow, the team members are literally eating me out of house and home."

Old Mother Hubbard may not have been smiling, but Grady had every reason to be following the big triumph. "If Brian Allsmiller didn't play like an all-stater tonight, I don't know how it's done," the Bison coach beamed. "But he was just part of a super team effort. I couldn't have asked for a better overall performance."

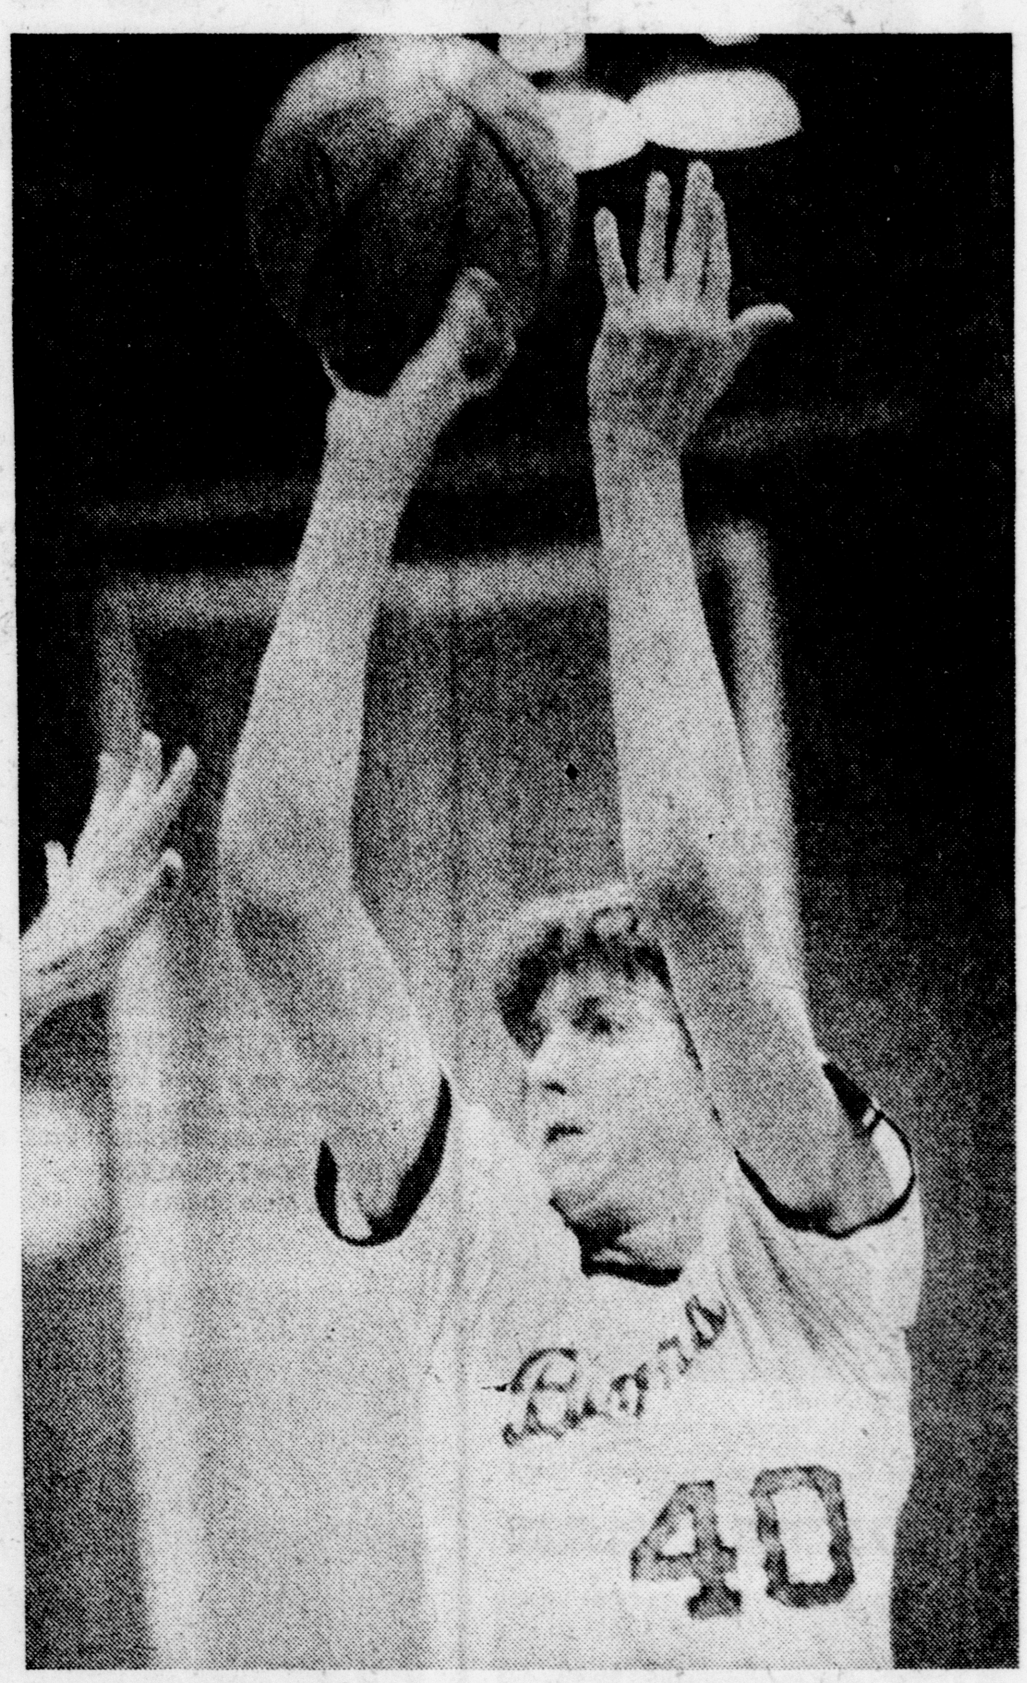
Grady showed particular pleasure over Grove's poise under pressure. "This has been important to us all season and it really showed tonight when patience was such a decisive factor. To win we felt an early lead was necessary and to preserve it required poise. Conant has come from way behind to win more than once this season."

Conant did make a mild run at the Bison midway through the third period, cutting Buffalo Grove's 10-point lead to 26-20. Outside shooting was responsible for closing the gap and after a subsequent adjustment in Grove's defense, the Cougars did not score again from the floor for a full eight minutes.

"Some people may say they just had an off night but I've never been an advocate of this theory," Grady said, "even when it's us on the losing end. When one team's offenses isn't producing, it's usually because the other team's defense is doing the job and I feel very strongly that our defense was the decisive factor in the game tonight."

Last Dec. 7, Buffalo Grove wrote a new standard into its three-years-young school record book. It was for best defensive effort in a game — 29 points — against Round Lake.

They can throw that one out now. And, at the same time, would you mind passing around the mashed potatoes and gravy again, Mrs. Grady?



THE MACHINE. Buffalo Grove's Brian Allsmiller had all eight cylinders functioning smoothly Wednesday night as he scored 23 points, blocked several shots and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Bison to a 48-28 win over Conant in the Mid-Suburban League title game.

'Tight' Cougars must look ahead to tourney play

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

One minute to mourn.

"We gave them one minute to celebrate after we beat Schaumburg. And we gave them one minute to celebrate after we beat Forest View to clinch the South title," Dick Redlinger said in the Conant Cougar dressing room after the South Division champions had dropped a 48-28 decision to Buffalo Grove.

"And now we're giving them one minute to mourn before we start looking to the regional."

One minute is 60 seconds too long. That the Cougars were even in the overflowing Buffalo Grove gym for the league championship was amazing.

Amazing because, individually, no Cougar would turn any heads as a basketball player. But together, as a team, they surprised everybody but themselves to win the South title and scrapped with the Bison on even terms until talent and size prevailed.

Their favorite saying is, "We're No. 6." A unifying jab at the "experts" who foresaw them finishing no higher than that in the South Division race.

"I think the kids were too tight," Redlinger said. "And I'd have to take the blame for that. We were telling them all week they'd have to play a good game. That they couldn't make mistakes.

"It looked like they were afraid to run the offense," Redlinger continued. "When we worked it inside we got some baskets but a lot of times we were open but we didn't pass."

Often, when they did get open, the shots they took came back in their faces, courtesy of Brian Allsmiller. The 6-8 junior, a franchise unto himself, blocked eight shots, hit for 23 points and snared 12 rebounds.

"He was rough," said Conant guard Pete Scaffidi. "He blocked one of my shots and then I started thinking about where he was before I shot.

"I think their size intimidated us."

Mike Frisch, Ron Sulaski and Brian O'Donnell, working with the artful feeds of Rob Totten, sucked Allsmiller into a pair of fouls in the first half. But the spectre of foul trouble got no larger for the Bison star.

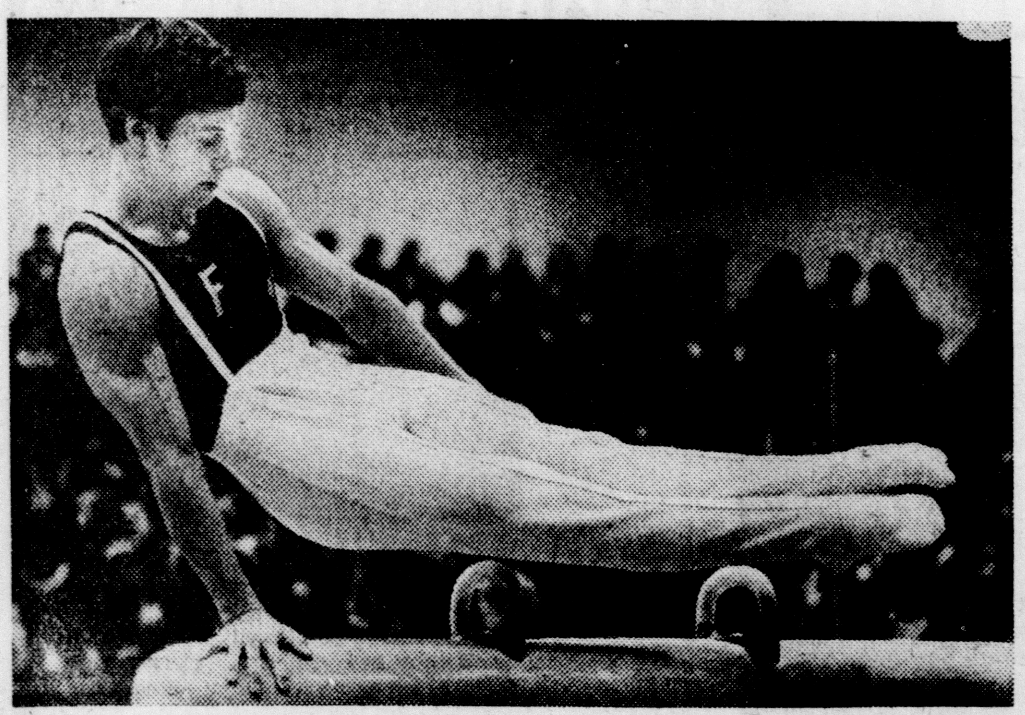
"We didn't take advantage of the inside," Redlinger said. "We didn't work with what they gave us."

What the Bison didn't give them was the outside shooting that would have loosened up the inside. Scaffidi didn't get off a jumper until the second half but Totten's two buckets from the top of the key brought Conant within range at 26-20 with 3:18 left in the third quarter.

But turnovers and Allsmiller kept the Cougars off the board the rest of the quarter and deep into the fourth. By then it was over.

"We've got to put this behind us and look to the regional now," Redlinger said. "I hope to play a few more games."

The minute to mourn was over.



FREMD'S Doug Smidl took a second on the side horse at the Hersey district with a score of 7.85 and advanced to the first session of the Rolling Meadows Sectional tonight at 7:00. The second session will be Friday.

Gymnastics sectional opens tonight

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Hersey, Rolling Meadows, Prospect and Buffalo Grove. Four teams with dreams.

At least one of those Mid-Suburban League gymnastics powers, and possibly more, will load up their bus next week for the sweet trip to the state finals at Prospect.

The winner of the Rolling Meadows Sectional, which will be run in two sessions tonight and Friday at 7 p.m., will join three other district champions and the next two highest scoring teams to battle for the state title that Hinsdale Central currently holds.

Adding to the excitement is the fact that Rolling Meadows, Hersey and Buffalo Grove, district champions all, each hit their high score of the season in taking their respective crowns.

The most stunning performance was turned in by Dennis Mazur's Buffalo Grove Bison, who copped their own district crown with a best-ever 139.39 score. Mazur has set his sights on the 140 mark for the sectional.

"That was the best meet we've ever had," Mazur said. "But I don't think we'll have a chance to win the sectional. We're shooting for Prospect.

"I took the three best scores on each event from all our meets this year and added them up," Mazur continued. "And it totaled 144.64 So we are capable of hitting that.

"But with Hersey and Meadows going around 146 I think it will be between them for the sectional."

With no realistic team hopes the Bison are hoping to grab some individual glory. Fred Bista (free ex), Lee Battaglia (high bar), Dewey Deal (P-Bars) and Mark Farrington (still rings) all took district titles last week.

Deal will also get reacquainted with Mundelein's Jeff Martin in the all-around derby.

"We put in a new side horse routine for the district," Mazur said, "and Dewey wasn't used to it. So we're going back to the routine he's more comfortable with. I think if he hits it and all the other events like he has he'll beat Martin."

But the match between Deal and Martin will take a backseat to the Danny Muenz Show as the Hersey senior, with a district all-around title to his credit, rolls into the sectional

Muenz was more than a point better than the other all-arounders in the district tournament and his 8.06 average set the tone for the Huskies' high mark of the season, 146.21.

"We've got a good chance of winning the sectional," said Hersey coach Don Von Ebers. "It won't be any easier than the conference meet, though. We've got to watch out for Meadows and Prospect can get closer than they did in the district."

Hersey's 146.21 score was the result

Paul Logan

Associate Sports Editor

(Editor’s Note: Last December Paul Logan’s column told of a unique Christmas present — see the star of “Jaws” up close. This is a followup account of two men who encountered some great white sharks.)

Like a living battering ram, the 25-foot great white shark bent the diving cage’s bars. Matt Hooper appeared to be its next victim.

This was one of the more chilling moments in the movie “Jaws.”

“It’s called terror,” said Richard Dreyfuss when asked this week what he thought it would really be like seeing a real white shark. As Hooper, he only faced a mechanical monster.

Dreyfuss, presently performing at the Arlington Park Theatre, said he was “supposed to go with Peter (Benchley) last October (to see a real great white), but ABC wouldn’t insure me.”

Earlier this month, four men spent over $5,000 to live such a fantasy.

“It was the biggest ‘up’ any of us ever had in the sea,” said Carl Roessler, the vice president of the San Francisco travel service which set up the Australian trip. “It was absolutely mindblowing!”

During a three-day period, they saw eight great whites. There were four around the boat on one day, including an 18-footer weighing about 3,400 pounds!

These size estimates weren’t made by rookies. Also on board were shark experts Ron and Vallerie Taylor as well as Rodney Fox, who once survived after being in the jaws of one of these sea monsters.

“I made up my mind that things were extremely safe,” said John Bell, a business executive and veteran diver from a suburb of Indianapolis, Ind. “We had outstanding guides. They added to the safety.”

Unlike the film version, the shark cage was small — 4 foot by 2 foot by 8 foot.

Bell said he was so “engrossed with trying to get good motion pictures,” he wasn’t concerned with the sharks penetrating the half inch steel-barred cage. “There was plenty of food (20-pound chucks of horsemeat) outside the cages for the sharks to bite on.”

He experienced one thrilling, chilling moment. The 18-foot shark accidently got the cage’s rope tangled in its mouth while chewing some horsemeat. Bell became concerned when the huge man-eater dragged the cage completely under water. He was only using a snorkel because the cage was too small to use scuba gear.

After about a 25-second rocky ride, the shark broke free. “I was told later that if it made up its mind to get through the bars, it would have had no trouble getting through them,” said Bell.

If there was any danger, it was on the deck. Besides the boat’s crew and its four tourists, there was a TV film crew from a local station. With so many people taking movies and photographs, everyone had to be careful not to knock someone overboard.

Both Bell and Roessler were impressed with how cautious these sharks were. And there was something else, too, “No matter how carefully you are looking, you never see it coming. They almost always come from behind you,” added Roessler.

Dreyfuss said he would never go swimming or wading in the ocean again. “When you’re unconscious of what’s going on beneath one half of your body, I don’t like that sensation. I’ll only scuba dive so I can see what the bleep is going on.”

The movie has made many people more aware of sharks, but not only as underwater threats. They’ve become moneymakers.

Richard Dreyfuss

“Jaws mania” throughout the world has unfortunately attracted Australian fishermen. Because of the great worth for its huge teeth, the great white shark has become the hunted rather than the hunter.

No developments in baseball talks

Representatives of the major league baseball owners and players held a brief, jet-age style negotiation session here Wednesday, but failed to make any progress in the contract dispute that threatens the upcoming season.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, met for three hours with American League President Lee MacPhail, National League President Chub Feeney, and John Gaherin, chief negotiator for the owners.

Feeney said no new proposals were discussed at the meeting and both sides would meet again in New York City Friday.

Miller said no progress was made and termed the meeting “rehash” of the owners’ position.

“We got such reactions, most of the questions were to clarify,” he said.

Asked what the reactions were, Miller replied, “That’s my definition of ‘no progress.’ ”

MacPhail and Feeney announced Monday the owners would not open spring training, scheduled to begin March 1, until a new Basic Agreement was reached with the Players Association.

Miller repeated his charge that the owners’ action was intended to mislead the public into believing the Players Association is holding up the 1976 season because of its demands on the Reserve Clause.

Marquette cagers vs. girls?

Marquette University has come up with a way to raise money for charity that seems like a cross between P.T. Barnum and Mad Magazine.

In a game the sports world may not be ready for, the No. 2 ranked Marquette Warriors next Monday will play the Marquette girls basketball team.

To try to even up the mismatch — the center for the girls team is a towering 5-foot-7 — the Warriors will have to wear boxing gloves and won’t be permitted to enter the free throw lane.

Adding to the fun, Al McGuire will coach the girls and Tat Shiely, coordinator of women’s athletics and the women’s regular coach, will direct the men’s team. The game will be played for laughs and to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Fund.

For an offense, McGuire said he’ll “come up with some gimmicks to get our people free in the lane” and for defense “maybe I’ll just have them flirt with the guys.”

“We hope to out-finesse them,” McGuire said. “And, hey, I won’t tolerate the hand check. The officials will hear from me if they let that happen.”

NU football gets 4 Chicagoland stars

Quarterback Kevin Strasser, who accumulated 1,221 yards in total offense last season for Elmhurst Immaculate Conception High School, Wednesday signed a national letter of intent to attend Northwestern University next fall.

Wildcats Coach John Pont also announced the signings of fullback-linebacker Tim Lawrence of Brother Rice High School, and of two tackles, Walter Versen of Loyola Academy and James Ford of St. Laurence.

Pont noted that all four “come from winning programs in a very strong football climate in Chicago.”

Strasser was all-conference in the West Suburban Catholic League for three straight years and was named to the all-area team this year. He led the Knights to league championships in 1973 and 1974 and a runnerup finish in 1975. Last season he ran or passed for 16 touchdowns.

Lawrence was selected to the New World all-America high school team this year and led his team to the 1975 city Catholic League championship, averaging more than 100 yards per game rushing. He also was named most valuable player in the post-season prep bowl.

Versen, a 6-foot-5, 245-pounder, and Ford, a 6-foot-4, 268-pounder, were both all-Catholic League picks last fall.

Court hearing in cage bribe case

Two Texas A&M freshmen and their attorneys go into a court-ordered hearing with Southwest Conference officials Thursday to rebutt charges they received bribes to play basketball for the school.

Kenneth W. Herrick, presiding officer of the SWC, said the conference could, after the hearing, disclose the evidence against the two players, Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams.

The same nine faculty representatives, who 12 days ago ruled the evidence merited suspending Godine and Williams, will then vote on whether to reimpose the suspension after the hearing.

The faculty representatives have refused to discuss the merits of the case or their Feb. 15 meeting, in which the vote was taken to suspend the two players through the 1976-77 season. Several SWC officials have said the vote was ‘decisive.”

Since then, though, Godine and Williams have sat out only one game. Three days after the SWC meeting, a federal judge in Dallas ruled the pair did not receive a chance to defend themselves against the charges and, until they did, could not be suspended.

Electrical problems cited in track fire

Electrical problems may have caused the fire that killed 68 harness-racing horses, valued at about a half million dollars, Tuesday at a Cahokia Downs Race Track barn.

William N. Buxton, a state fire marshal, said track personnel told him the complex in which the barn is located had electrical problems “for some time.” Buxton said the fire may have been caused by a faulty circuit breaker panel near the west end of the barn.

The 630-foot barn, which was destroyed by the blaze, was to be equipped with an $850,000 sprinkling system after the racing season ends April 9.

Bison win league honors

Stonerook added six points to the cause.

Conant’s zone was effective, too. But when Allsmiller found the inside bottled up, he moved outside where he drilled successfully from the 15-and 20-foot range. The big redhead was 10 for 17 for the game, including six baskets in eight attempts in the second half.

It was in the second half, however, that the Cougars made a dash for the Bison. Baskets by Scaffidi and Sulaski and a pair of 20-footers by junior guard Rob Totten closed the gap to 26-20 with 3:18 left in the third quarter.

But Heesch took a nifty pass from Ledna under the bucket for an easy two-pointer, and Allsmiller canned a couple of 18-footers from his favorite spot to the left of the free-throw circle. Suddenly the Bison were up by their biggest margin, 32-20.

Conant went more than seven minutes without a score until Totten made a free throw with four minutes left in the game. The Cougars’ record fell to 14-8 shortly thereafter, but not before the Bison built the lead to 39-20 and iced it away.

EISENHOWER WINS TITLES

Eisenhower Junior High of Hoffman Estates won two first-place trophies in basketball this season. Both the seventh and eighth grade boys were conference champions in School District 54 and established a district record by having two undefeated teams at the same school. The seventh grade team, coached by Bob Miller, was 9-0 for the season. The eighth grade team, coached by Tim Essig, was also 9-0 this season and had 18 consecutive wins over two seasons.

This past week, the eighth grade team also won the District 54 Invitational Tournament held at Addams Junior High in Schaumburg. Of the eight competing teams, Eisenhower was again victorious by defeating Lakewood Junior High, Sandburg Junior High, and hosting school, Addams Junior High in the championship game. By this tourney win, Eisenhower extended its undefeated streak to 21 games.

Rolling Meadows gym sectional opens tonight

of the best balance the Huskies have displayed this year.

The Huskies took at least two medals in every event except still rings and picked up a trio of awards in free ex and P-Bars.

Rich Stange and Mike Caruso really took up the slack for Hersey. Stange tied Muenz for the high bar title and grabbed a third on P-Bars while Caruso grabbed the fourth place award on P-Bars.

"We made the same typical mistakes," Von Ebers said of his district title. "Our third and fourth men on each event have improved but they have to come up even further.

Rolling Meadows was a runaway winner at the Hoffman Estates district, winning individual titles on every event but P-Bars.

Head coach Vic Avigliano was happiest with his side horse team, which was lead by district champion Bob Gauger.

"Our side horse finally started to look good," Avigliano said. "We scored more than 15 points, anyway."

The other events are stocked with talent three and four men deep. Dave Bycroft (rings), Keith Liszewski (high bar), Mike Illingworth (free ex) and Glenn Johnson (trampoline) are all title contenders.

"It's very important," Avigliano said, "that (Guy) Owsiany is finally starting to come around. We need that strong all-arounder."

Prospect moved their team into the sectional with a 139.32 score in the Hersey district. The score was the highest of the runnerup teams in the three districts subsidiary to the sectional.

The team advancement procedure from the sectional to the state finals will be the four sectional champions plus the next two highest team scores.

For individuals the top three in each event plus the two best all-arounders from each sectional will automatically advance. Advancement will also be available to the next 12 rated individual event performers from the four sectionals plus the next eight rated all-arounders.

Prospect has two individuals who should march through the sectional to the state finals. Glenn Wilke has been to the state finals before and should go again after a district third place finish on the still rings.

Jim Tangney is also a threat on P-Bars.

As a team, Prospect has fought Hersey and Rolling Meadows tooth and nail all year and despite being beaten in the district they are far from out of the team sectional fight.

The at-large qualifiers to the Meadows Sectional include Arlington's Mark Titre, Rob Erickson, Tom Staley and Kyle Chamblee; Hoffman Estates' Tom Heuer and Paul Major; Doug and Dave Smidl of Fremd; Bill Schanel and Jeff Worst of Conant; Wheeling's Dale Brungraber, Tim Olsen and Jim Geske.

Tonight's session of the sectional will include free ex, side horse and high bar. The trampoline, P-Bars and still rings events will take place Friday.

'Black Saturday' results despite two swim marks

by BOB GALLAS
Swimming Editor

Rolling Meadows' swimming ace Tom Stahnke set two new records in last Saturday's Arlington District meet.

Yet he still refers to it as "black Saturday."

First off, even though he set a new record in the 50-yard freestyle with a 22,970 second clocking, a judges' decision gave the district title to Tom Cole of Prospect.

"I guess it just wasn't the Stahnke family's day," said the tall young man who's a threat in this weekend's state meet in both the 50-freestyle and the butterfly. "After losing the 50 the way I did, my father got so excited when I won the butterfly that he jumped up, slipped on a patch of water and broke his leg," Stahnke explained.

Despite the injury, Stahnke's father and mother will be poolside at Hinsdale South Friday as their son tries to get into the finals in his two events. Nothing has stopped them from seeing son Tom's meets.

Swimming competitively since he was eight years old, Stahnke said he can't remember when his parents weren't watching him compete. "No matter where in the state the meet was, they'd be there," he said.

Only a junior, Stahnke is ranked sixth statewide in the butterfly, through his district record time of 54.0 seconds set last weekend. In the 50-freestyle, his time just misses the top 18 in the state, although he has gone 22.4 in the event this year, which would put him fourth statewide.

"I haven't gone that fast in some time, though," Stahnke said, adding he thought his best chance was in the butterfly event. "But everything goes so fast in the 50, just one mistake can kill you," he said. "Last year the top seeded guy in the 50 didn't even make the finals."

This is the second trip to the state meet for Stahnke, who was sick the week before the big event and did not make the final cut last year. But the experience, Stahnke hopes, will help him be more relaxed this weekend.

Will he be out to avenge himself after Saturday's decision went against him in the district meet?

"A little, I guess," said Stahnke, who at 6-foot-3 looks down to few swimmers. "But that's the way it goes. I'm just going out there, do the best I can and let my times speak for themselves."

At any rate, Stahnke will be ready to go when the gun sounds in the prelims Friday. "I'm ready right now," he grinned. "I've been swimming each length of the pool over and over in my head so I'll know what I'm doing."

Does he ever get tired of swimming, after thousands and thousands of yards swum every day?

"Naw, I really enjoy it," he said. "Actually, it gets better — if you keep improving."

Metro playoffs begin tonight at two arenas

Following a tremendous finish in regular season play, the Northwest Division of the Metro Hockey League starts a "new season" tonight. It's playoff time.

St. Viator will take on Maine East at 7:30 p.m. at the Randhurst Twin Ice Arena. Rolling Meadows will meet Hersey at 9:00.

At the Oakton Recreation Center, Maine South will face Palatine at 7:30 and Fremd will tangle with Arlington at 9:00.

St. Viator finished first in the division race with a 23-4-1 record. The tie came last Sunday against Maine East, 4-4. Meanwhile, Maine South topped Arlington 4-2 to finish an eyelash (23-5-0) behind the champs.

Other Sunday action had Fremd beating Palatine 6-5 and Rolling Meadows defeating Hersey 4-1.

Palatine finished with an 18-9-1 mark with Maine East right behind at 17-10-1. These two along with Maine South and St. Viator will fight for the right to advance in the championship bracket. They'll play a round robin that continues on Sunday and again on Thursday.

The championship and consolation playoffs on Sunday will all be held at the Randhurst arena. The matchups will have Fremd vs. Hersey at 4 p.m., St. Viator vs. Palatine at 5:30, Maine East vs. Maine South at 7:00 and Rolling Meadows vs. Arlington at 9:00.

A week from Thursday will be the final round. The championship and consolation winners advance to Glenview to take on the Northeast Division champs on March 7. March 10 will be the Metro championships at Northbrook.

Palatine entry draws second post position in Angel Derby

Marion P. Jayne with daughter Patricia Jayne Keefer, both of Palatine, has drawn second post position for takeoff in the 1976 Angel Derby.

More than 120 of the world's serious women pilots will vie in the all-woman international air race which will be flown May 27-31 over an historical route between Quebec City in Canada and Fort Lauderdale in the United States.

The winner will receive $3,000 in cash and a trophy, plus a $1,776 Bicentennial Bonus award.

This Grand Prix of cross-country air racing is one of the City of Fort Lauderdale's bicentennial celebration events.

The Angel Derby emphasizes pilot ability and not the power produced by the airplane engine. Airplanes rated from 145 to 570 horsepower are eligible to participate with the difference in horsepower compensated for through a handicap system.

A breakfast worth getting up for

Crisp mornings call for a hearty breakfast. Make it a well-balanced menu, too, with taste-tempting foods low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

The American Heart Association has designated February as National Heart Month — a good time to make a resolution to take care of your family as well as yourself. Coronary heart disease is a serious problem in this country, and one of the recommendations of the Heart Association is to cut down on the amount of saturated fat and cholesterol in the foods you eat and use polyunsaturated fats instead.

There are a number of appetizing foods in the grocery store today that are designed to help you do this conveniently and economically as well. They are made from textured vegetable protein which offer good nutrition with good taste — but without animal fat or cholesterol. These recipes were developed by Morningstar Farms.

Cherry Crepes

16	crepes
1	21 ounce can cherry pie filling
¼	teaspoon cinnamon
	Confectioners sugar
	Grated orange rind

Combine cherry filling and cinnamon; spoon 2 tablespoons filling down center of each crepe and overlap edges. Place in chafing dish or oven-proof serving dish. Heat through. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and orange rind. Makes 16 crepes.

Crepe Batter

½	cup egg substitute or eggs
1	cup skim milk
1	cup sifted flour
	Dash of salt
1	tablespoon melted margarine
	Polyunsaturated cooking oil

Combine all ingredients except oil; blend to a smooth batter the consistency of heavy cream. Strain, if necessary, to remove any lumps. For each crepe brush a heated 6½ to 7-inch non-stick skillet with oil. Quickly coat hot skillet with 2 tablespoons of batter, tipping pan in all directions. Place over medium heat until edge begins to brown. Lift edge with a spatula and flip over. Brown on second side. Batter is best prepared several hours in advance or refrigerate overnight. Makes 16 crepes.

French Toast "Logs"

1	pound loaf unsliced bread
1	cup egg substitute or 4 eggs
½	cup skim milk
1	tablespoon sugar
½	teaspoon cinnamon, if desired
1	cup finely chopped nuts
	Margarine or polyunsaturated cooking oil

Trim crust from loaf of bread. Cut into "logs" approximately 1½ by 1½ by 3 inches. Combine egg substitute, milk and cinnamon. Dip bread in mixture and then roll in chopped nuts. Brown on all sides in hot margarine or oil in skillet. Sprinkle with confectioners sugar and serve hot with syrup, if desired. Makes 10 "logs."

Sauteed Fruit 'n Strips

Saute apple slices or pineapple rings in skillet with texturized protein bacon strips. Sprinkle fruit lightly with sugar and allow to glaze before serving. Serve hot for breakfast or brunch.

Breakfast Strips with Apple "Hearts"

1	package texturized protein bacon strips
	Polyunsaturated cooking oil
4	apples
¼	cup red cinnamon candies
½	cup water
½	cup sugar

Slice apples crosswise ½-inch thick. Cut with heart shaped cooky cutter. Combine cinnamon candies, water and sugar in large skillet. Bring to a boil, stirring until candies are dissolved. Add apple "hearts"; simmer until tender and glazed, about 10 to 15 minutes. Prepare texturized strips by browning in cooking oil according to package directions. Garnish with glazed apple "hearts."

Study breaks down hot dog eaters

A new survey of hot dog consumption just proves what everybody's been saying all along: the frankfurter is a universal favorite. The study for a sausage casing manufacturer shows franks are served in 95 per cent of all homes in the United States.

But even the manufacturer was surprised to find that most hot dogs are eaten as the main dish at a meal, not as a snack.

More surprises: adults eat more hot dogs than children, and women eat more hot dogs than men.

The study by Market Facts, Inc., for the Films Packaging Division of Union Carbide, described the heaviest users as child-oriented mothers representing 32 per cent of all American households. They bought 41 per cent of all the hot dogs reported in a given four-week period.

Three types of women fell into the heavy user category. The study profiles one as a young blue collar mother with a large family, a husband with income slightly below average and little interest in cooking. She's apt to serve hot dogs for dinner, on a bun or bread, with a side dish of beans, the study said. She doesn't think hot dogs are better today or nutritionally adequate, but she doesn't really care. They're a good buy in her food budget because they fit her family's life style.

Another heavy user was described as the young, fairly well-educated urban mother who shops carefully, checks prices, tries new brands and new products, reads recipes and is apt to serve hot dogs wrapped in bacon or biscuit dough as lunch for a neighbor or friend.

The third big user is the family-centered suburbanite, well-educated, with above-average income and a casual approach to life in general. She's always on the lookout for new ideas and recipes, likes to use hot dogs in casseroles and macaroni dishes and thinks they are a good buy.

The lightest users, according to the study, also fall into three classes:

- The old-fashioned homebody with little formal education and a low income whose husband is either a blue collar worker or retired. She worries about artificial ingredients and preservatives, but thinks hot dogs are purer and more nutritious than hamburgers.
- Another light user is the middle-aged wife of a low income blue collar worker. She doesn't like housekeeping, worker. She doesn'tlike housekeeping, cooking, shopping or meal planning; she relies heavily on convenience foods, often overextends her budget and doesn't think hot dogs are quick and easy to prepare.
- The study calls the third a self-satisfied traditionalist, wife of a white collar worker in a small town whose ideas, tastes and attitudes in general are conservative and formal.

Middle of the roaders were pictured as young upscale feminists, active, affluent urbanites and middle-aged homemakers living in rural areas or small towns. The latter pride themselves on their cooking and think their families think they are the world's best cooks.

Like the lightest users, the five per cent of nonusers are older persons.

Adverse publicity about additives and preservatives hasn't hurt hot dog sales, although consumers do want to know about ingredients and fat content, and they wonder about nutritional value.

For purposes of the study, a light user was a household that ate fewer than 20 hot dogs in a four-week period; a heavy user, a household that ate 20 or more during the same length of time.

HOT DOGS are eaten in nearly all American homes, according to a recent survey. Adults, mainly women, are the biggest consumers.

Herald food price survey

Consumers should be finding some good bargains in canned fruits and vegetables at supermarkets, according to a release from the Cooperative Extension Office in Rolling Meadows. A tremendous surplus in these items has been reported, reflecting good weather and crops in 1975 as well as slow consumer demand due, in part, to the increase in home gardening and food preservation.

However, a Tuesday morning price survey of five area chain supermarkets showed no significant price drops in canned items, although prices Tuesday are not necessarily the same today because of in-store sales or weekly price adjustments.

At Jewel, all surveyed canned items remained the same as last month's readings. Butter continued its downward trend from January, retailing 10 cents less than the previous quotation. Several staple items also dropped slightly from February, including flour, sugar and coffee.

Lean ground beef was 10 cents less than last month at Butera, selling for 59 cents a pound, which is the lowest reading of the five stores surveyed. Large grade A eggs were also lowest at 69 cents a dozen, 14 cents less than February. Other store prices remained relatively stable.

Beef prices are somewhat higher than last month at National, but other meat items held steady. Eggs were slightly higher, offset by decreases in fluid milk, margarine and butter. Processed fruits and vegetables were as much as nine cents higher compared to the previous survey.

Beef prices dropped about 10 cents at Treasure Island, with chicken showing expected seasonal increases. Fluid milk was about 15 cents higher, but was still the lowest quotation of the five stores surveyed. Other prices throughout the store held relatively steady.

At A&P ground beef was 10 cents higher than last month, but other meat items in the survey were stable. No price changes were noted in processed items and only slight fluctuations were noted in staple foods, compared to last month's readings.

A&P BINGO OFFICIAL RULES

1. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. Get a FREE A&P BINGO game piece on request at end of check-out lanes or at office of A&P store — one game piece per adult, per store visit. Game materials also may be obtained by mailing a request to A&P BINGO, P.O. Box 711, Westport, Conn., 06880. Limit of one game card and one game piece per request. A self-addressed envelope must accompany each request.

2. Push out diecut portion of game piece revealing 3 number tickets and one bonus prize ticket. Place the numbers on the matching spaces on the other side of this card. Each ticket will fit into the special slots cut into this card. When you collect the numbers needed to properly complete any straight row of 4 boxes — either horizontally, vertically or diagonally — insert your name and address on the bottom portion of the specific card and present your card to the Store Manager who will arrange for verification and awarding of your prize. (Prize is limited to amount shown for game regardless of the number of rows completed.) No numbers needed in spaces marked "FREE". "FREE" spaces are not transferable. Game pieces must be initialed in the presence of Store Manager.

3. SPECIAL BONUS PRIZE SECTION. Every A&P Bingo game piece contains a Bonus Prize Stamp which should be affixed to the special Bonus Prize section along the bottom of the other side of this card. When you collect 12 stamps needed to complete the special Bonus Prize section, you have won a FREE A&P product. The Store Manager will tell you what you have won.

4. Game materials void if illegible, altered, mutilated, defaced, forged or tampered with in any way.

5. Game materials void where taxed or restricted by law.

6. Game ends upon announcement by A&P. All prizes must be claimed within 7 days after announcement or they are forfeited.

7. A&P reserve the right to reject and void any materials containing printing or other errors that may appear in any materials used in the game. We also reserve the right to reject any A&P Bingo game material not obtained legitimately through authorized personnel.

8. Only game materials marked Series C-1 may be used for this game and only in stores of this Division of A&P, when legitimately obtained as stated above.

9. All game materials submitted for winner verification become property of A&P.

10. Employees of A&P, its suppliers, its advertising agencies and members of their immediate families are not eligible to win.

11. The A&P Bingo game is available at 85 A&P food stores located in Illinois and Indiana. This promotion is scheduled to end on April 21st, 1976. A&P Bingo will officially end, however, when all game tickets are distributed.

Reliable, tasteful meals

by LOIS SEILER

Working as a professional cook for nine years was a challenge for Mary Rogas of Mount Prospect. Without prior professional experience, Mary was hired by Arthur Rubloff, well-known Chicago commercial realtor, to cook for his private dining room.

Mary applied for the job at her husband's urging, and Larry's faith in her culinary ability was justified. The eldest of eight children, she learned to cook at an early age, and had plenty of practice over the years, preparing meals for her own family of five.

Working at a meat market while in high school familiarized Mary with all cuts of meat, yet the only cooking class she had ever attended was a course in gourmet foods at adult evening school.

However, her knack for preparing tasty meals was well-utilized when working for Rubloff. She cooked for as few as four to as many as 30 on the average of three times a week, ordering the food and preparing the entire luncheon. For large groups, Mary had extra help to assist her in serving.

A popular dish was her Chinese Pepper Steak, also a family favorite. Mary makes this with flank steak, which is marinated first for flavor and tenderization. After browning, it is cooked in the marinade with green peppers and mushrooms and served over rice.

An Oriental Salad is the perfect complement to this pepper steak. It consists of fresh spinach, thinly-sliced onion rings, bean sprouts and water chestnuts tossed with a catsup-flavored vinegar and oil dressing. Mary serves this on individual salad plates, garnishing each with finely-chopped hard boiled eggs and croutons.

Both the pepper steak and salad are exceptionally tasty and attractive, yet neither take long to prepare, which is ideal for the busy homemaker or career woman. Because vegetables are included in both the main course and salad, only hot rolls need be served as an accompaniment.

Mary mentioned that for luncheons Arthur Rubloff preferred a light dessert, such as sherbet, ice cream with cherries jubilee or a fancy gelatin with cookies. However, when Mary serves this menu for dinner at home, she likes to prepare an apple cake for dessert.

ONE OF Mary Rogas' favorite recipes as a professional cook was Oriental Salad with water chestnuts, bean sprouts and spinach. She tops individual plates of salad with seasoned croutons and a homemade dressing.

Made from an old family recipe, this cake is more torte-like in texture and appearance. Well-flavored with chopped apples and walnuts, it is served cold topped with whipped cream.

Mary now works part time at Northwest Stationers in Mount Prospect. The Rogases have a married son living in Bensenville, a married daughter in Palos Hills, two grandchildren, and a daughter, Terri, living at home.

CHINESE PEPPER STEAK

1 pound flank steak
2 green peppers, cut in squares
1 large jar mushrooms, drained, or ½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 teaspoon sugar
¾ tablespoon cornstarch

Cut flank steak into strips, then into bite-size pieces. Mix together soy sauce, wine, sugar and cornstarch. Place meat into mixture and let marinate at least two to three hours.

Drain meat and brown quickly in about 2 tablespoons corn oil. Add green pepper, mushrooms, marinade and about two tablespoons water. Simmer, covered, about 15 minutes. Serve over plain rice. Serves 3 to 4.

ORIENTAL SALAD

1 10-ounce bag spinach
1 can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
¾ cup bean sprouts, drained
1 red onion, sliced in thin rings
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped fine with pastry blender
1 cup seasoned croutons

Dressing:

1 cup salad oil
¾ cup sugar
½ cup red cider vinegar
3 teaspoons salt
½ cup catsup

Mix all dressing ingredients together in a jar. Shake to blend well. Will keep two to three weeks in covered container in refrigerator.

To prepare salad, wash, drain and dry spinach. Remove stems and break into bite-size pieces. Mix together with water chestnuts, bean sprouts and onion rings. Toss with just enough dressing to coat lightly.

Divide among six salad plates. Sprinkle croutons and chopped eggs over top. Serves 6.

APPLE CAKE

¼ pound butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely-chopped apples
½ cup chopped walnuts
Whipped cream

Cream together butter and sugar. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, soda and salt and beat into creamed mixture. Fold in apples and walnuts.

Turn into a greased, 8-inch square pan and bake at 350 degrees about 40 minutes. Cool and chill. Cut in squares and serve cold, topped with whipped cream. Serves 6.

Consumers prefer old range ways

Survey results from 3,399 home economists who inform and advise homemakers show that 98 per cent of the homemakers prefer ranges that let them cook with conventional flat-bottom pots and pans, said Anne Cain, home products adviser to PPG Industries in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Cain said the same women showed an overwhelming interest in new easy-cleaning, smooth-top electric ranges, some of which require special cookware. More than half of the home economists surveyed said the elimination of clean-up chores was a main advantage of smooth-top ranges.

Writing on cale scribbled long ago

The first writing on cakes is thought to have occurred in 1830 when Franz Sacher of Vienna created a torte for Prince von Metternich, says George Lang, who heads a food and design consulting firm in Chicago. Writing in Hospitality, a restaurant trade magazine, Lang said the sugar baker wrote the prince's name in frosting on top of the chocolate-glazed cake. From then on, Austria, Hungary and other Danube Valley countries invented cakes for celebrities and important occasions, and decorated them with the appropriate names.

Flavorful variations spice dish

Do you know anyone who is not on a diet, has not been on a diet or is not talking about going on a diet? This four-letter word ranks right next to a certain three-letter word in popularity for conversations and reading. For good reasons.

Today, most doctors advise men and women over 40 to cut down on calories and on foods high in saturated fats, which contribute to a rise in the blood cholesterol level. Being overweight adds to many health problems and can shorten one's life. This is why diet and exercise programs prove so interesting to Americans of all ages.

Among the foods medical and nutrition experts suggest is fish — it's lower in saturated fat than meat, is a good source of protein and most fish is lower than meat in calories.

To encourage the eating of more fish and seafood in your home prepare it for special eye appeal as well as taste appeal. A tomato sauce is classic with fish, but try a different topping for baked fish using orange juice as they do in Spain and Andorra. Another treat is fish fillets broiled with a gremolata — a mixture of lemon rind, garlic, chopped parsley and sunflower oil margarine used instead of butter. This is a quick, tasty recipe.

FISH FILLETS WITH GREMOLATA

1 pound fish fillets, fresh or frozen

½ teaspoon salt

¼ teaspoon pepper

2 tablespoons sunflower oil margarine

¼ cup chopped parsley

1½ teaspoons grated lemon rind

1 clove garlic, minced

Place fish on foil-lined broiler pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with 1 tablespoon margarine. Broil 6 inches from heat for 5 minutes. In small bowl cream remaining 1 tablespoon margarine with parsley, lemon rind and garlic. Spread over fish and broil 1 minute longer, until fish flakes when tested with a fork. Makes 4 servings.

ROLLED FISH FILLETS WITH ORANGE TOMATO SAUCE

2 tablespoons sunflower oil margarine
½ cup chopped onion
2 large tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf savory or thyme
1 pound flounder fillets, fresh or frozen

In a medium sauce pan melt margarine. Add onion and cook until tender. Add tomatoes; simmer 10 minutes. Add orange juice, salt and savory. Simmer 5 minutes.

Roll flounder fillets and place in a shallow baking dish. Pour orange tomato sauce over rolls. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Garnish with parsley and orange slices. Makes 4 servings.

Forecast adequate canning lid supply

There should be enough home canning lids in 1976, twice as many as last year when there was a shortage, says the Agriculture Department's special assistant for consumer affairs.

Nancy Steort said the increase is due because manufacturers are making more lids — and there are more manufacturers.

She estimated more than 4 billion lids will be available this year, compared to 2.1 billion last year. Mrs. Steorts said nearly 3 billion regular-size lids should be available, as well as 333 million wide-mouth lids, more than 500,000 regular lids and rings and nearly 150,000 wide mouth caps.

THERE WAS A SHORTAGE of lids last year. In 1974, consumers were faced with a shortage of both canning lids and jars. Mrs. Steorts said the Agriculture Department's "best estimate" of demand for 1976 indicates that this year's supply will be ample.

She said between 19 and 23 million consumers will be home canners this year compared with 16 to 20 million last year.

She said the lids will be distributed in the traditional pattern — first shipments to southern states, moving north as the canning season approaches.

Do-ahead recipe

Two casseroles can be prepared almost as quickly as one. Home economists at the National Macaroni Institute have this recipe for Macaroni and Cheese which is ideal for freezing.

It will keep well frozen for about a month. The recipe provides for two casseroles, one to serve immediately, and one to freeze for later use. And for the cook who likes to make the same favorite macaroni and cheese often, but likes to change it each time, several variations are suggested.

TWICE AROUND MACARONI AND CHEESE

4	cups elbow macaroni (1 pound)
2	tablespoons salt
4	to 6 quarts boiling water
½	cup chopped onion
6	tablespoons butter or margarine
6	tablespoons flour
6	cups milk
2	teaspoons salt*
1	teaspoon dry mustard
½	teaspoon pepper
2	teaspoons Worchestershire
4½	cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese

Gradually add macaroni and 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Meanwhile, cook onion in butter over medium heat until crisp-tender. Quickly stir in flour. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly; add seasonings. Cook stirring, until sauce boils 1 minute. Stir in 4 cups of the cheese; continue stirring until cheese melts. Remove from heat; combine with macaroni.

To serve immediately: Turn one-half of the macaroni-cheese mixture into greased 1½ quart casserole. Sprinkle with remaining ½ cup cheese. Bake in 400 degree oven 20 minutes or until bubbling and lightly browned. Garnish with parsley, if desired.

To freeze and serve later: Cool remaining macaroni-cheese mixture quickly. Turn into 1½ quart casserole lined with heavy duty foil (allowing extra foil for fold). Seal with double fold. Freeze, then remove casserole. When ready for use, remove from foil; replace in casserole. Cover, Bake in 375 degree oven 1 hour. Uncover, sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese or 2 tablespoons seasoned bread crumbs. Continue baking uncovered 30 minutes, or until bubbling hot. *Salt loses flavor on freezing; increase salt to taste for freezer casserole.

Variations:

- Add ½ cup chopped or sliced pimiento-stuffed olives to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 can (6 ounces) sliced or chopped mushrooms, drained, to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 can or jar (7 ounces) pimientos, drained and diced, to cheese sauce.
- Add 3 tablespoons caraway seeds to cheese sauce.
- Add 4 tablespoons poppy seeds to cheese sauce.
- Add 1 cup chopped green pepper to butter and cook with onion until tender.
- Top unfrozen casserole with 2 medium tomatoes, sliced, before baking. The frozen casserole may be topped with tomato slices during the last 30 minutes baking.

Egg rolls easily impress crowds

EGG ROLLS make a good party appetizer, according to Mrs. Edward Wydra, (right) a member of the Mount Prospect Women's club. She demonstrated Chinese food techniques to the club recently, here assisted by Mrs. Richard Plant, president of the organization.

When looking for an appetizer to serve large crowds, try eggs rolls, said Bernice Wydra to the Mount Prospect Women's Club recently.

"It is such a wonderful thing to have on hand," she said.

Mrs. Wydra said she has been cooking Chinese dishes for about three years, collecting recipes from favorite restaurants and adding her own touches. She has never taken any lessons on Oriental cooking, "I just picked it up," she said.

She includes peanut butter in her egg roll recipe to "hold the mixture together," she said. But she added that the peanut butter doesn't contribute noticeable flavor in the finished product. Won Ton skins can be purchased at either National or Treasure Island Food Stores.

Once the ingredients are chopped, "It only takes about 10 minutes to finish the egg rolls," she said.

Here are the recipes she demonstrated and served to the women's club:

EGG ROLLS

½ pound frozen shrimp, tiny size
1 cup cooked chicken, chopped fine, or equivalent amount of pork or veal, chopped fine
1 cup celery, chopped fine
½ cup water chestnuts, chopped fine
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon Accent seasoning
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
2 tablespoons peanut butter
Peanut oil
Won Ton skins (egg roll wrappers)
Egg white

Combine all ingredients. Place 1 teaspoon of mixture on each wrapper, brush edges with egg white to seal. Fold into triangle, then brush edge of point and fold again. Heat peanut oil to 375 degrees and deep fry for 3 to 5 minutes, until browned. These rolls may be frozen and reheated in 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes. Serve with sweet and sour sauce or a mustard sauce. Makes 50.

MUSTARD SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted and cooled
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup light brown sugar
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
3 tablespoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon paprika
½ cup cider vinegar

Combine egg, sugar, mustard, paprika and vinegar. Add to cooled butter or margarine. Cook over low heat 4 to 5 minutes. Makes about ¾ cup.

CHINESE ALMOND COOKIES

1 cup lard
1 cup sugar
1 egg
¾ teaspoon almond extract
2¾ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
Almonds

Beat together lard (lard gives the correct texture for the cookies, as opposed to margarine or butter) and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg and extract. Blend well.

Sift together flour, baking soda, salt; add to creamed mixture. Shape into large ball.

Roll to a scant ¼ inch and cut with round cutter. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, top each cookie with an almond. Bake at 325 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until cookies are very lightly browned on the edges. Makes about 50 cookies.

Wheat won't affect bread

The Agriculture Council of America says although poor weather conditions in the Great Plains may reduce this year's winter wheat crop any crop loss shouldn't affect food prices in the near future.

"We definitely have a problem with wind and drought damaging winter crops right now," said council chairman E. L. Hatcher, "but losses could be checked somewhat if we get the moisture we need."

Hatcher, a wheat and beef producer from Lamar, Colo., said the consumer "is assured of adequate supplies regardless because total stocks will more than triple domestic requirements."

As of Feb. 1, the Agriculture Department said the winter wheat crop was below normal, but it failed to make an estimate. However, growers groups say the prospects are "well below" the last estimate of just under 1.5 billion bushels in December.

HATCHER SAID the market price for wheat has risen about 25 cents a bushel since the first of the month but still is more than $2 lower than two years ago.

"We haven't seen any drop in bread prices at the supermarket during that time," he said, "so why should prices go up now?"

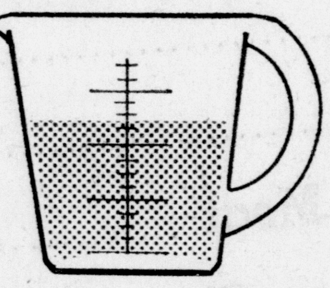
Since wheat makes up only 13 per cent of the total cost of a loaf of bread, he said, a jump of as much as a dollar a bushel in the price of wheat "would only increase the price of a loaf of bread by 1.2 cents."

The Agriculture Council of America is a nonpolitical, nonprofit organization of farmers, ranchers, farm and commodity associations and agribusiness firms. Its purpose is to improve communications between farmers and consumers.

Try dry beans

Beans baked the Rocky Mountain way is a departure from the Baked Beans of tradition, mostly by way of seasonings. It is less sweet in flavor and has a bit of zip compared to beans cooked by Pilgrim mothers. Since dry beans are in plentiful supply this year, and because beans are high in protein, this recipe, in both metrics and American Standard measurements, is a goood way to stretch a budget.

Cooking with metrics



BAKED BEANS, ROCKY MOUNTAIN STYLE

.9 kilograms or 2 pounds Great Northern beans
3 liters or 12 cups water
1 medium onion stuck with 2 whole cloves
1 small bay leaf
1 large clove garlic
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon salt
1 medium onion, peeled, left whole
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons salt
10 milliliters or 2 teaspoons dry mustard
60 milliliters or ¼ cup brown sugar
125 milliliters or ½ cup molasses, light or dark
125 milliliters or ½ cup catsup
2½ milliliters or ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
225 grams salt pork, rind on
750 milliliters or 3 cups bean liquid and water

To prepare dry white beans before baking:

Simmer soaked beans in measured amount of water with onion, bay leaf, garlic and salt, plus 30 milliliters (2 tablespoons) butter or salad oil to keep down foam. Cover tightly. Cook until nearly tender, about 1 hour. (Best test — put a few beans in a spoon. When blown upon, the skins will crack.) Time will vary according to hardness of water, altitude, and maintenance of simmering point.

Remove from heat, discard onion, garlic, bay leaf. Pour beans into colander to drain, saving liquid. Add enough water to make 750 milliliters (3 cups).

To prepare cooked beans for baking:

For the oven, use a 4-liter (about 4 quarts) heavy bean pot. Place whole onion with beans on top. Scrape, wash salt off pork. Cut pork nearly through on fatty side to about 250 millimeters (½-inch) deep and 250 millimeters apart all over surface. Push salt pork down into beans, letting only the top edge come up above them.

Mix together all other ingredients. Add bean liquid. Stir well. Pour over beans. Cover tightly with foil and lid. Bake all day or night, a minimum of 6 to 8 hours, at 120 degrees Celsius (250 degrees Fahrenheit).

For slow electric cooker, follow manufacturer's directions. At end of time, if no sauce is covering beans, gently add a bit of boiling water around the sides using a wooden spoon. Cook another ½ hour without the cover.

The ultimate goal: U. S. citizenship

by ELEANOR RIVES
(Last of four parts)

Destination U.S.A.

Destination U.S.A.

They come with hope, courage and strength, wave upon wave of immigrants, separating themselves from their friends, their families, their native land, hoping to find a new and better life.

"We are going to that country where everybody is welcome," solemnly declared the mother in a Yugoslavian family. Today they are happy Palatine residents — all U.S. citizens.

The United States is a nation of immigrants. Between 1820 and 1974, it welcomed 46,712,725 of them. The total of almost 400,000 people who came in 1974 is 23 per cent larger than the average of the 1960s. And, according to Tom Bethell, an editor of The Washington Monthly, writing in Newsweek last May, if the present rates of immigration continue through this decade, there will actually have been as many immigrants in the 1970s as in the 1890s — one of the peak immigration decades.

ONE CANNOT help but admire these newcomers. To assume the role of an immigrant takes much courage, for the requirements are rigid, the process sometimes tedious, and even when one has succeeded in entering the country, many problems lie ahead.

Mrs. Margot Cooper, who has taught English for New Americans in Dist. 214's adult education system for more than six years, has acquired a deep understanding and genuine fondness and respect for foreign-born people.

"The basic problem is obvious," she said. "It is language. Most other problems stem from that one.

"Can you imagine, with only a smattering of English, trying to deal with doctors, lawyers or public service people? Suppose you were involved in even a minor auto accident."

MANY OF HER students complain that Americans speak too fast, that they cut off ends of words. Consider: "I dunno," "Where ya going?," "Be seein ya." It's downright confusing. It's even more confusing over the telephone without being able to see the person speaking.

One of Mrs. Cooper's Japanese students tried to order a Big Mac and a 7-Up at a drive-in. He ended up with seven Big Macs. Another student, a brilliant woman, was frustrated at being considered unintelligent because of her communication difficulties.

"Because these newcomers speak imperfect English, many Americans consider them second-class citizens," said Mrs. Cooper.

BARBARA BREITLANDER agreed. Barbara has been teaching foreign-born persons for eight years now, and is in her fourth year of teaching classes at Harper Community College which help immigrants prepare to become naturalized citizens.

"A newcomer to this country needs 'survival English' as quickly as possible," she said. "How can one shop for food, go to the dentist, fill out forms for jobs and have job interviews?"

Both women pointed out that there are also cultural differences that newcomers must adapt to.

"Some nationalities are very shy," said Mrs. Cooper. "For example, Asian women find it difficult to be aggressive and ask questions — it's not their place. At one of my session-culminating international dinners, a Japanese woman, aided by a Filipino woman, opened every closet door in my house rather than ask where the bathroom was."

ONCE AN IMMIGRANT has a workable knowledge of English and has lived in the United States five years, he may apply to become a naturalized citizen. At that time, classes such as Ms. Breitlander's are invaluable. Students acquire a basic understanding of government and some U.S. history, at the same time enjoying an informal social experience.

One such family that attended her classes and went on to become U.S. citizens is the Wuertz family of Palatine — Franz, Theresia and daughters Elfriede and Katharina.

Born in a German section of Yugoslavia, the Wuertzes were living in Germany at the time they made the decision to become immigrants to the U.S. The dramatic, almost unbelievable chain of events in which they lost their home and their country during World War II started when they moved to Germany. A few years later, Franz was conscripted into the German army.

THERESIA AND HER baby girl, Elfriede, returned to Yugoslavia, where Katharina was born. When the Serbs took over Yugoslavia, Theresia and her two little girls and their grandmother were seized, their home and all their possessions taken from them, and they were thrown into a concentration camp.

Later they escaped by foot in the middle of the night — in two feet of snow — and managed to board a boxcar, where they hid among the baggage. Finally they reached Germany once more and were reunited with Franz when the war was over.

Times were hard in Germany then. And the Wuertzes knew they were not really welcome there. That's when they decided upon the country "where everybody is welcome."

THEY MADE THEIR first application in the late 1940s. But the Yugoslavian quota was quickly filled. They tried other years with no success.

Finally, in 1959, Elfriede wrote to the consulate in Frankfort, quickly received and returned the forms, and two weeks later, the four Wuertzes had completed their physical examinations, blood tests, x-rays — everything. Another week and approval came through.

And so, on the S.S. America heading for a new life were Franz and Theresia and their two girls, 17 and 18, both of whom had learned "British type" English in school. The 10-day voyage gave them a chance to attune their ear and modify their pronunciation.

IN 1974, THE Wuertzes made a group decision. They would apply for U.S. citizenship. But they would do so only as a family. All four must pass or none.

To prepare for this momentous occasion, they enrolled in Barbara Breitlander's class at Harper. "It helped us freshen up on history and the Constitution," said Katharina.

"Once your application and fingerprinting is in, it takes about three months before you are called in," Elfriede explained. "We were all scared. We thought the test would be hard. But we weren't alone. There were about 100 other people there of all nationalities.

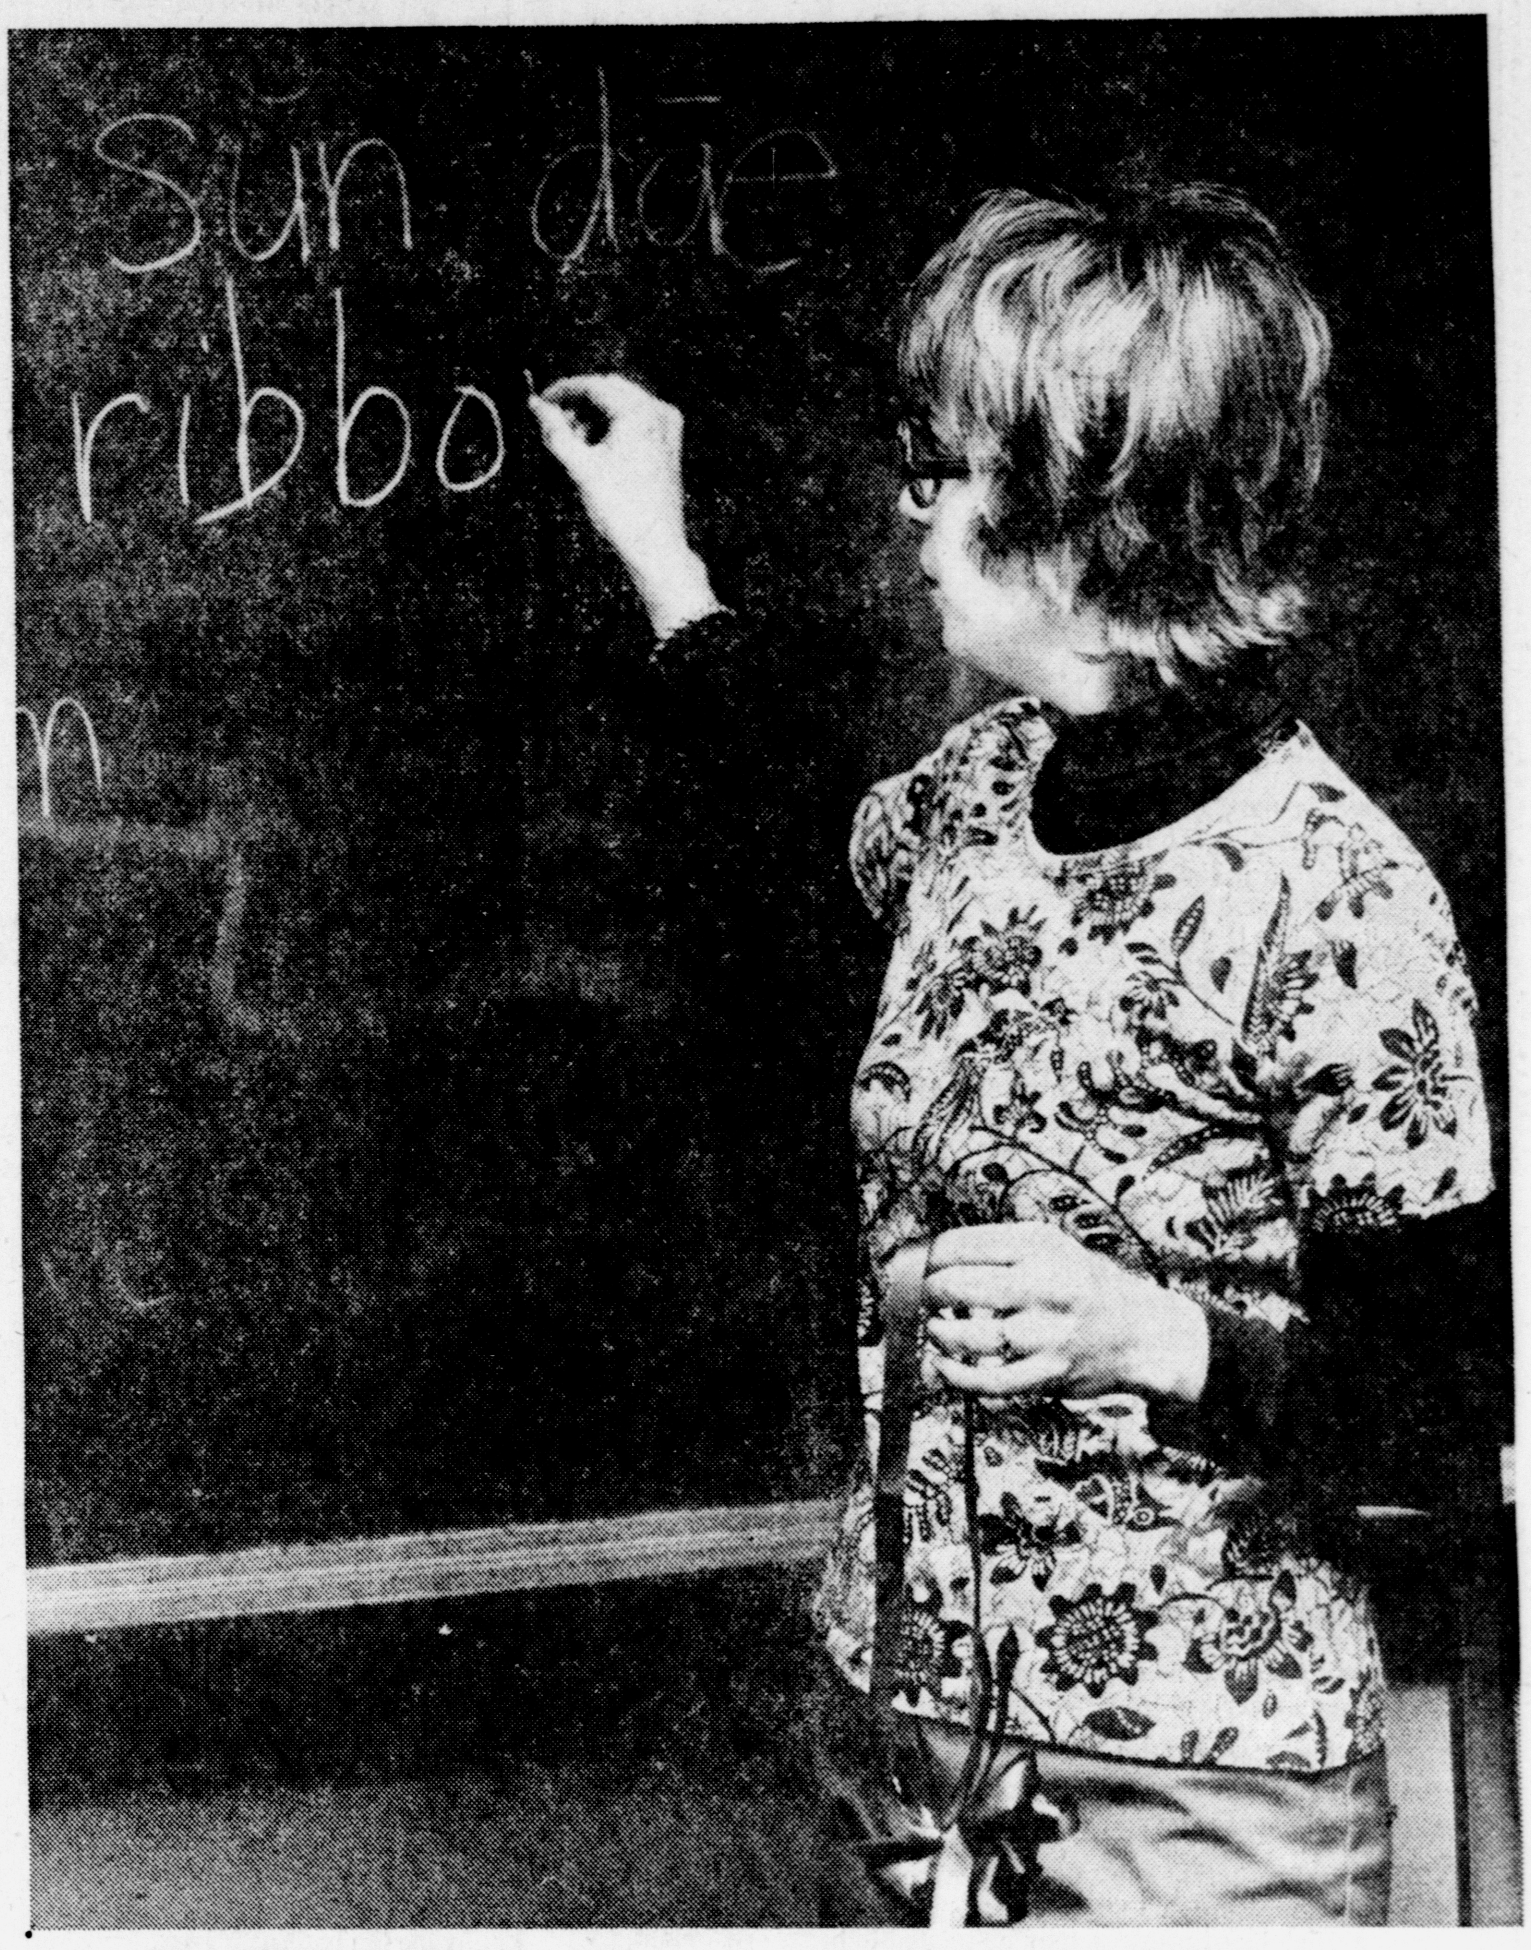
"THEY SEEMED TO go easier on the older people, and to ask more questions of the young. They really hit Katharina with a lot of questions — like 'Who was vice president to Abraham Lincoln?' But they helped her, too."

Elfriede was asked to name the last five presidents, counting backwards.

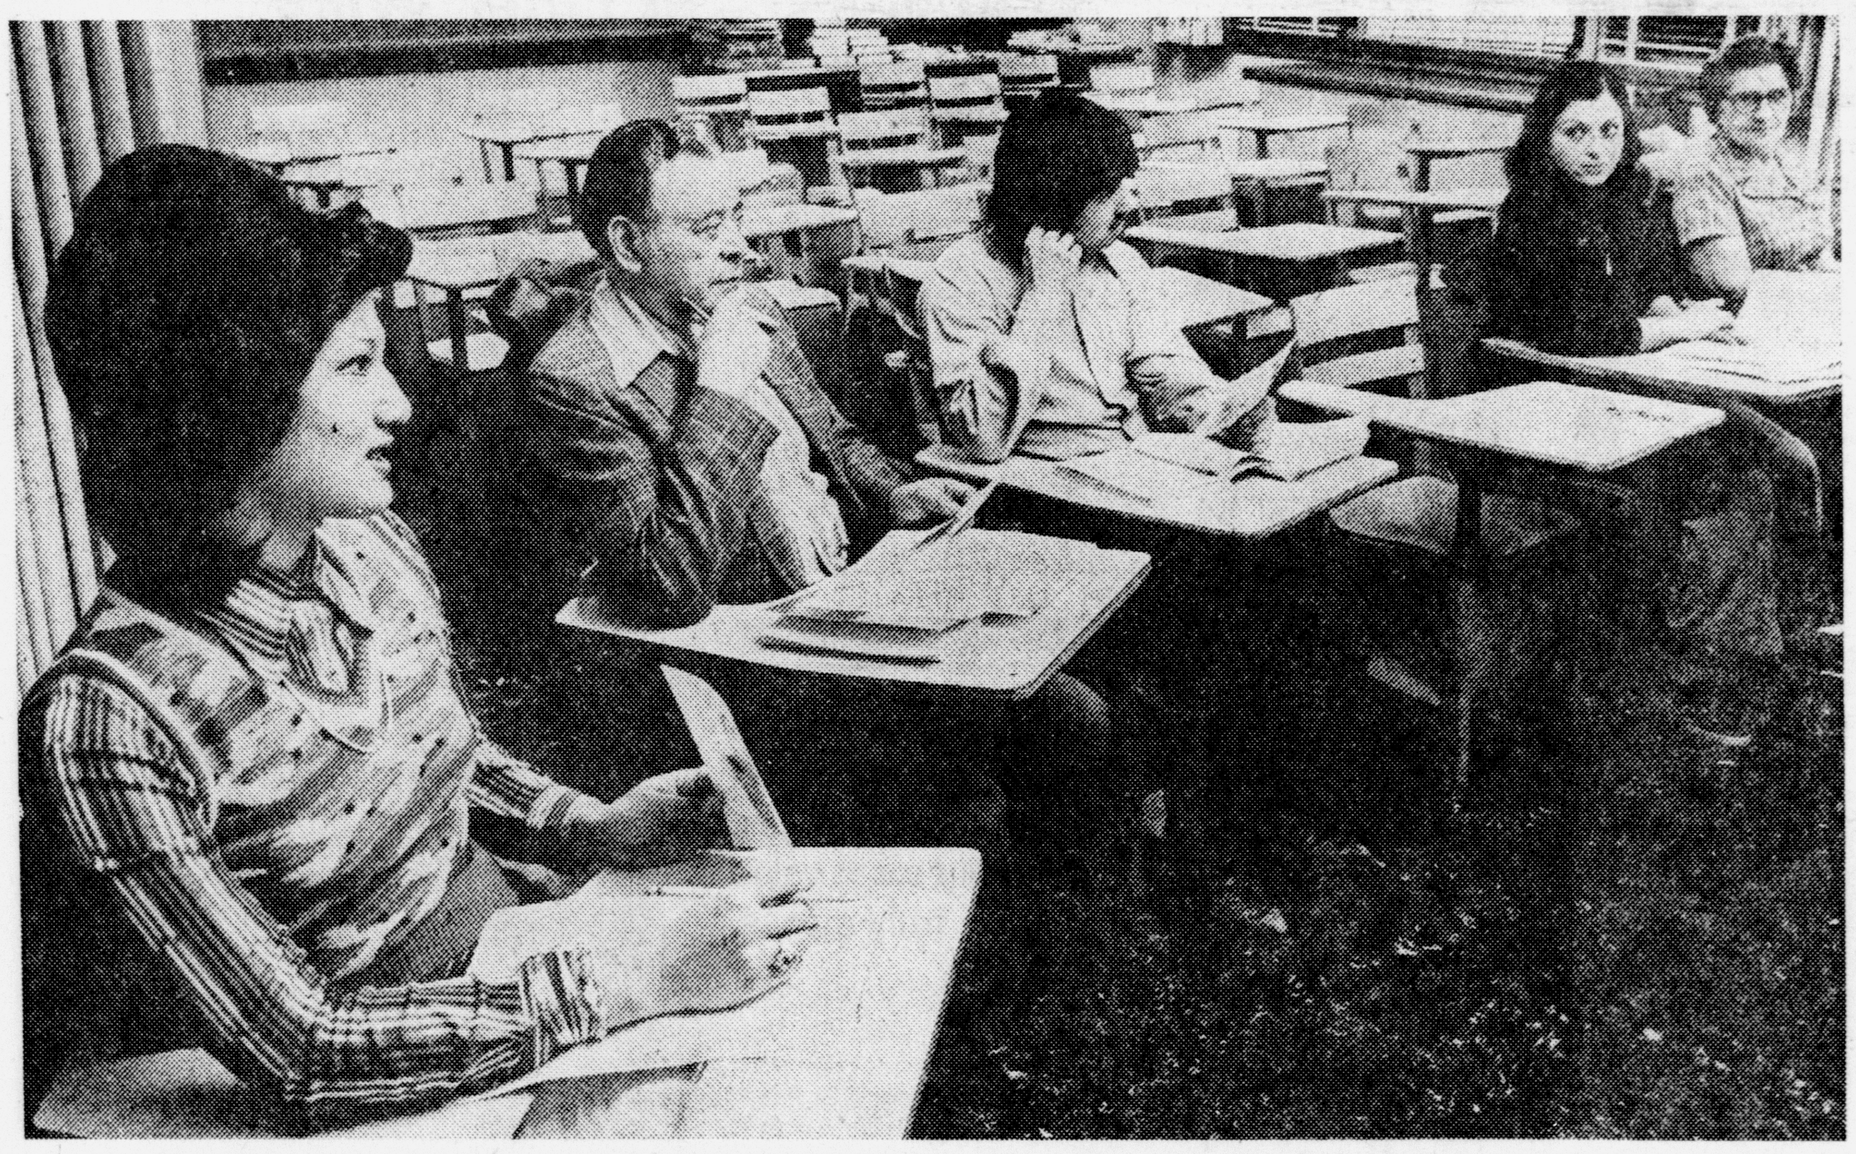
"Then before we could be sworn in, we had to prove that we could write in English. What did they ask us to write? That ever-lovin' phrase, 'I speak English well!' "

The four Wuertzes laugh over this as if enjoying an inside joke. Why not? They are obviously happy. They are U.S. citizens.

All four of them. Together.



THE LANGUAGE BARRIER poses a basic problem for non-English speaking immigrants and most other problems stem from that. Mrs. Margot Cooper has been teaching English to new Americans for several years and understands the frustration they experience.



IMMIGRANTS MUST HAVE a workable knowledge of English to become eligible for U.S. citizenship. The class in English for New Americans offered in Dist. 214 is only one of several open to foreign-born residents of the northwest suburbs.

Hushed up crime: child sex abuse

A public hearing of the Illinois Rape Study Committee this week brought into the open a serious problem long hushed up in polite society: the sexual abuse of children.

According to testimony presented,

- Sexual abuse of children most often is committed by family members in the home, not by strangers accosting children on the street.
- Sexual abuse of children is a problem that cuts across all socio-economic lines. It occurs in middle and upper classes as well as among the poor, and it is possibly more prevalent among whites than blacks.

The Rape Study Committee is chaired by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie. Rep Peter Peters, R-Chicago, is vice chairman, and Rep. Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, is secretary. The committee has successfully sponsored legislation dealing with the handling of rape cases in Illinois.

A bare minimum of 3,700 children are being sexually molested every year in Chicago, estimated Jerry Alexander, president of the Citizens Committee for Battered Children. He said Michael Reese Hospital alone treated 260 such children under 16 last year — even though the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services reported only 87 cases for the year.

THE CHICAGO POLICE Department handled 575 cases in 1975, and the commander of the department's youth division estimated actual cases are at last double that figure.

Of the sexually abused children treated at Michael Reese, Alexander said, 90 per cent were victims of family members, and only five assailants were prosecuted.

But Alexander repeatedly urged that "punitive legislation" and "vindictiveness against the abusers" is not the answer. "That won't help the child. Remedial efforts are needed to change parental (abuser) behavior."

Alexander described the effectiveness of his organization's Parental Stress Hotline, as well as such efforts in other states, in handling child abuse situations. He advocated a legislative commitment to "crisis intervention," with the state placing highly trained homemakers into the home to "put that family back together again."

"THOSE PARENTS love their children, and the child loves that parent, but the parents don't know what they're doing," Alexander said.

Alexander and other social workers testified that sexual abuse of children is a vicious, self-perpetuating cycle: such children almost inevitably grow up to be emotionally disturbed and unable to function sexually and socially in a normal manner. And a very high percentage of abusive parents, rapists, prostitutes, as well as people with sexual problems were themselves sexually abused as children, they testified.

But Rep. Geo-Karis disagreed with Alexander on the de-criminalization of sex abuse.

"You take the position the abuser shouldn't be penalized? You would leave the sex-abusing parent in the home?" Geo-Karis asked.

"What do we accomplish (by penalizing the abusing parent and/or removing him from the home)?" Alexander asked her in response. He declared the current practice of placing such children in a succession of foster homes has been a "disaster."

THOMAS HANRAHAN, director of the Child Advocate Association, also questioned punitive measures against abusers and called for more treatment facilities for both abused children and abusing adults, for better sex and parenting education in the schools, and for better coordination of police and state agencies.

But state social agencies were criticized by most witnesses as inefficient and unresponsive. Much of the blame was laid on under-staffing and lack of training, but suggestions by the legislators for increased funding or creating a new agency to handle child abuse problems were rejected by those testifying.

A group of social workers from the Southwest YMCA and Oak Lawn High School described a community program they have established to meet these needs locally.

THE SOCIAL WORKERS described several cases in which teenagers had come to them after being molested by fathers, brothers and other teenagers. They emphasized the need for sex education from grammar school through adulthood.

"In many of these cases, the incidents are denied or are considered unimportant by the parents," said one counselor.

A former assistant state's attorney, Edna Epstein, urged that the rules governing the testimony of children in court and the use of corroborating statements by adults, as well as treatment of child victims by the court system, be revised to make prosecution easier.

Born to keep house? That's you, brides!

Keeping up

by Monica Wilch Perin

Anachronism: n. 1. a person, object, thing, or event that is chronologically out of place, esp. one appropriate to an earlier period.

I was browsing through my bookshelves one evening, while my husband was doing the dishes (it had been an especially trying day at the office, else I might have given him a hand), and I ran across a real gem of a little book that I had overlooked for two years.

The book, entitled "Happy Living! A Guidebook for Brides," had been given to me by an Ohio department store bridal salon when I had "registered" (against my better judgment!).

Upon mentioning this book to a friend for reasons to be disclosed shortly, I learned that she received the book from Carson Pirie Scott when she had registered there three years ago. The same book, copyright 1970 (original edition 1965) by American Bride Publications, Los Angeles, is still being given out by Carson's.

AUTHORS EVELYN Enright and Ann Seranne open their volume with this Introduction:

"The beauty of your wedding day can last a lifetime if you are as anxious to become a good homemaker as you are to be a lovely bride."

It goes on:

"No doubt you have qualms

The doctor says

Cholesterol absent from plant foods

Would you publish a list of foods which tend to raise cholesterol level? In other words, which foods one should avoid if the cholesterol level is on the high side.

There is no cholesterol in foods of plant origin. It is only in animal products. The chief sources of large amounts of cholesterol in the diet are egg yolks, butter fat in butter, milk, cheese and some organ meats, especially liver, brains and sweetbreads.

Meat, fish and poultry all have about 70 milligrams of cholesterol in three and one-half ounces (100 grams) raw weight. You should try to limit your cholesterol intake to 300 milligrams a day. By using fortified skim milk, buttermilk, uncreamed cottage cheese for dairy products, avoiding the high cholesterol foods and using vegetable margarines, you can still eat quite a bit of the meat, fish and poultry group without consuming too much cholesterol.

Unfortunately there is much more to keeping the cholesterol down than just eliminating the high cholesterol foods. You need also to eliminate or avoid body obesity by diet and exercise and you need to limit your total fat intake of any type and particularly control saturated fat intake.

For more information on the principles of diet to prevent heart disease send 50 cents for The Health Letter, Number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. My buddies and I are having a discussion concerning ulcers, nerves and high blood pressure. Which occurs first, ulcers and then a nervous condition and high blood pressure or a nervous condition and then an ulcer and high blood pressure?

Have fun. Doctors still argue about these points, especially in specific cases and the conclusions are sometimes no more enlightened than the ones you may make.

The problem is that one can't generalize. Certainly one can have high blood pressure and not have any problems at all with nervous tension. High blood pressure may be related to being overweight, to having kidney disease or even to having certain hormonal abnormalities in the body.

Ulcers are often associated with excessive nervous tension, but again we do see them in people without any clear evidence of abnormal stress and we see a lot of people with lots of stress who have neither high blood pressure nor ulcers.

We see people with an infinite variety of stress reactions, nervous disorders and even psychosis who have neither medical problem.

We know that when people are sick from any cause, they may then become nervous, depressed or emotionally unstable. It is pretty depressing to find out you have a serious cancer or that you have a serious heart disease or have just had a stroke.

So you can't separate the physical, chemical and emotional responses of the body any more than you can decide which comes first, the chicken or the egg.

Oakum only material to caulk log cabin

Dear Dorothy: Is there a way to caulk a log cabin other than using oakum? I'd like to use a material that could be sprayed into the cracks — that would set, but not so hard that it would chip or fall out. — Dorothy C. Sauer

My checks result in the answer that oakum is the only reliable product for this kind of job. When you learn that this fiber is impregnated with tar, creosote or asphalt and is used for caulking wood hulls and for packing joints in caissons, you realize it's the sturdiest of materials. Prompts the comment that, thanks to the questions that come this way, I keep adding to an unusual education.

Dear Dorothy: From an old book on spices, I learned that cloves are the most effective of all spices in preventing food spoilage. Since then I've made it a habit to drop three cloves into chicken or beef stock — or foods like boiled beans, rice, grits. Sure enough, they do keep better. It's an especially valuable tip for those who make soup stocks which spoil fast. — Lois Snyder Hennessy

General agreement yes, but I hold that soup should never be refrigerated for longer than two to three days. If it's to be kept longer, it should be frozen.

Dear Dorothy: I have some tiny crystal saltshakers that have a film in them I can't remove. Any ideas? — Drew Sheridan

Sometimes putting them in the dishwasher compartment made to hold silverware will do the trick. Another way is to fill them with full-strength household ammonia and let them stand for 24 hours. Rinsed with hot water and left to dry, they ought to sparkle.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

about your ability to choose china, silver, glassware, linens and kitchen equipment." (No doubt. ANY woman would feel insecure about her ability to make such heavy decisions!)

"Then there is the even more overwhelming task of coordinating dozens of separate elements — furniture, fabrics, floor coverings and accessories — into a harmonious whole." (I've been married two years and still can't afford a "harmonious whole" for even one room!)

Of course, the book notes in a chapter titled "For Bridegrooms Only," it isn't fair for husbands "as the head of the household" to "leave all these decisions to your wife."

The book tells husbands: "You may be color blind, but it's nice to have you along when buying furniture. While women are influenced by style and color, men usually consider comfort and practicality first."

And, husbands, "Grumble all you want. It IS a man's prerogative to show disdain for shopping, even though he may secretly enjoy it."

More comfort for the bride:

"While you may be dismayed by the stores of knowledge you have yet to acquire about homemaking, remember that as a woman, you are endowed with an instinct for domesticity. There is nothing in life more gratifying than the ability to create and maintain a warm, livable home for someone you love."

Not only were you ladies born to keep house; "Happy Living" takes care of any lapses in your chromosomes by providing you a blueprint in a chapter titled "How to Keep House."

Here are some of the chores under "Daily Routine": Swab the kitchen floor with a mop, wipe range burners and refrigerator, dust and tidy rooms, vacuum, use dry mop on uncovered floors, wash the bathtub, basin and toilet, wipe the bathroom floor.

"These tasks, of course, are in addition to the essentials — dishwashing, bedmaking, marketing and cooking." (What's the matter with you women who only market once a month? Can't you get organized?)

"Once-a-week tasks": Scrub the kitchen floor, clean range thoroughly inside and out, defrost the refrigerator, wash inside and out, vacuum uphostery, draperies, blinds, window and door frames, rugs, floors and baseboards, vacuum lamp shades, swab plastic shades, clean bathroom, do the laundry and ironing, polish silver and decorative metals, swab railings and doorknobs, rub up wood furniture. (What ever happened to "spring" housecleaning?)

And now, ladies, if you have any time or energy left over after you finish your daily and weekly routines, you may ask your husbands for permission to go out to a NOW meeting.

Look Younger in the Face of Winter

You can look older sooner than you think. As early as your twenties, your natural moisture and oil supply decreases, leaving your skin vulnerable. Winter, with its chill weather, harsh winds and indoor heat can quickly dry your skin, making you look older . . . no matter what your age. Take a close look in the mirror. Is that really how you want your skin to look?

Now discover the secret of a mysterious beauty fluid, a secret shared by knowledgeable women of all ages in many parts of the world, who look their youngest no matter what the season. This beauty fluid, with its wealth of pure moisture and tropical oils, is known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion.

Oil of Olay works hand-in-hand with nature to ease away the dryness that can too easily make you look older too soon. The beauty fluid penetrates your skin's surface deeply and astonishingly quickly. And there's never, ever, a greasy afterfeel. The beauty fluid works almost exactly like your own natural moisture to soothe away dryness. And it helps maintain the oil-moisture balance of your skin, essential if it's to look as young and glowing as possible.

Watch as your skin virtually drinks in Oil of Olay. Within moments your complexion grows noticeably softer and smoother, so you can look your youngest, whatever your age. Soothe on Oil of Olay every single morning. It's marvelous under makeup or, if you choose to go bare-faced, it provides a moist environment for your skin. Again every single night, to work beautifully during hours of sleep. And whenever else a feeling of dryness tells you that the moisture content of your skin should be increased.

Enjoy the winter weather . . . the skiing, sledding, all the fun the season has to offer. Just be sure to let your skin enjoy the benefits of Oil of Olay. You will find the mysterious beauty fluid at your drugstore.

Winter Beauty Secret

In this weather, your skin can scarcely get enough Oil of Olay®. Carry it with you in your purse or tote bag, so you'll never be caught without its help.

America facing female crime wave sociologist tells scientist meeting

by AL ROSSITER JR.

America is facing a "female crime wave" and there may be more behind it than just the women's liberation movement which often is cited as the cause, a New York sociologist said this week.

Dr. Florence L. Denmark said the reasons responsible for the sharp rise in female crime rates during the past decade probably go far deeper than the increasing awareness of women's options in society.

"The female offender, whether acting by herself or with others, is not typically the emancipated intellectual striving for civil liberties," Dr. Denmark told a final session of the American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in Boston.

"Her crime is rarely an assertion of equal rights, or an unconscious attempt at achieving her own or other's rights. She may feel dominated by men or even wish to imitate men or obtain male approval for her actions."

IN A REPORT written with Dr. Ruth Rutschmann-Jaffe of Barnard College, Dr. Denmark said that although arrests of men are still far greater than women, the rate of increase in female arrests between 1960 and 1973 was three times that of males. Female arrests for violent crimes increased by 278 per cent for women compared to 88 per cent for men.

"Clearly, women are no longer limiting themselves to so-called traditionally female crimes of shoplifting and prostitution," Dr. Denmark said. "Kitchen knives have given way to pistols and sawed off shotguns.

"We seem to be witnessing a female crime wave," she told a special symposium on violence in America.

THE REASONS, she said, probably involve an interaction of psychological, social, economic, political and even religious factors.

Denmark said the rise in female crime cannot be fully separated psychologically from inner conflict and stress. And she said the fact that more women than men are reported to be suffering from some sort of mental illness suggests "a powerful link between what women are experiencing and what they are doing."

Home study fosters garden expertise

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Avid gardeners who are housebound and can't get out to an adult education class in gardening or pursue a college course may be interested in independent home gardening study.

Such a horitcultural correspondence course is offered by the University of Guelph, Guelph, Ont., Canada.

The only requirement for enrollment is an interest in horitculture. It is a one-year Home Gardener's Course, developed to increase general horticultural knowledge of the public.

Ten subjects are required to be covered over a one-year period, one month per subject with special allowances for vacation seasons, and a certificate awarded on completion.

MATERIAL COVERS such various subjects as houseplants and bulbs; vegetables and herbs; climate, soil and fertilizers; flower beds and patio containers; small fruits and trees; propagation; lawns and landscaping, and pest control. Tuition is $50 for the Home Gardener's Course and text books run $30.65 additional for five books.

Books may be mail-ordered directly from the Guelph Campus Bookstore.

Credit courses leading to an Ontario Diploma in Horticulture from the University of Guelph require 40 or more credit hours. This one is a three-year home study program. The offerings are a little more advanced: general botany, entomology, pathology, plant breeding; weed science, resource management, etc.

TUITION AND TEST fees run considerably higher for the ODH than for the Home Gardener's Course. but tuition fees are tax-deductible. scholarships and admission with advanced standing are available.

More information on this method of gaining more horticultural expertise in your own fashion at home, and at your own rate of speed, may be had by writing: Independent Study, University of Guelph, Office of Continuing Education, Guelph, Ont., Canada.

It's an interesting option for serious gardeners.

Luncheon show will feature young designers

Former Harper College students in fashion design, winners of scholarships from Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club, will model their current creations along with models from Bonwit Teller at "A Salute to the Bicentennial."

The luncheon show, an annual benefit sponsored by the BPW, will be held Saturday, March 6, in the Round Table Room of the Arlington Park Hilton.

Attendance at the show, one of the largest in the area, is expected to top last year's 700 guests. Each guest receives a "goodie bag" of surprises and dozens of other gifts will be presented.

THE AFFAIR OPENS with cocktails at noon, followed by luncheon at 1 and then the show. Donation is $8.50 and reservations may be made with Charlotte Shaughnessy, CL 3-4755.

Proceeds from the benefit will again go toward scholarships for freshmen design students at Harper. The scholarships are awarded in May when design students stage a showing of their ensembles and for which BPW members serve as judges.

Juniors sponsor self defense

"Self Defense for Women," a film sponsored by the Cook County Sheriff's Deputy Department, will begin a program offered free to the public by Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the multi-purpose room of Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines.

Originally planned as an informational program for club members, the Juniors felt that, due to growing concern and publicity on the subject, it should be open to all.

"Every woman should see this film and be aware of ways to protect herself," says Trooper Lawrence Ostrowski, who will speak following the film and demonstrate some of the techniques shown.

The program has been planned and coordinated by the Public Affairs Department of the club. Mrs. Beverly Rynes, chairman, may be contacted at 253-7157 for further information.
